10 NEW TREATY CRUISERS TO BE FIGHTING FURIES

U. S. Makes Drastic Changes in Design.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—The final 10 of the 18 cruisers 8 inch gun strength allowed the United States by the London naval agreement will be far superior in armor protection and all around fighting ability to any American ships of this type, built or building, it was disclosed in administration circles today. Construction of the first five of these vessels has been held up for several weeks, it was said, while the navy technical staffs prepared the new designs, which mark a radical departure from the plans on which construction of the first two American 10,000 ton 8 inch gun cruisers was started. Work on these ships is listed to go forward in less than a month.

Armor Increased.

Instead of being lightly protected from shell fire the new vessels are to be supplied with armor plate thick enough to protect the vital parts of the ship from 6 inch gun projectiles at normal fighting ranges. Over vital parts the armor will be from 4 to 5 inches thick, compared to 2½ inches on the two American 8 inch gun cruisers that have been completed.

The vulnerability of the Washington treaty cruisers built by the United States and other major naval powers, with the possible exception of Japan, was responsible for the decision of the navy department to depart from the new 8 inch gun cruiser plans and build vessels able to "stay in and fight it."

It is considered highly possible by naval officers that this action may have a profound effect on the cruiser plans of other powers.

Old Type Described.

The first treaty cruisers were designed chiefly for speed and firing power. Protection was sacrificed to gain great gunnery strength and a long radius of action. At short ranges the armor of the Washington treaty cruisers could be punctured by the projectiles from the 6 inch gun. All the major naval powers desired better protected ships, but not being able to build all three factors into ships limited to 10,000 tons, they chose speed and armament.

Weight savings effected by the new plans, with the development of light-weight propelling machinery, the use of aluminum furniture and paint, and more extensive substitution of welding for riveting, have made it possible for the United States navy to give its ships added protection without loss of speed or armament.

400 Tons Thus Saved.

Congressmen interested in naval affairs estimated today that a total of 400 tons had been thus saved. This was put into added armor protection. A saving of fifteen tons was effected by the use of aluminum paint alone. Gains in welding learned from study of the plans for Germany's 10,000 ton ships and Preussen have been applied to the plans for the new American ships.

The first two cruisers built by the United States were the Pensacola and the Salt Lake City.

These vessels, now completed, carry 10 inch guns, four 5-inch anti-aircraft guns, have a speed of 32.5 knots, and are armored rather lightly. The first of the next six cruisers, the keels of three now 75 per cent complete, were designed to increase the speed to thirty-three knots and to increase armor protection. One gun was removed and the ships are armed with nine 8-inch guns, six forward in two turrets, and three aft in one turret.

Ten to Be Latest Type.

Each of the ten last cruisers to be built will have nine 8-inch guns, eight batteries of four 5-inch anti-aircraft and destroyer guns, thirty-three knots speed, and close to five inches of armor over vital spots. Virtually the entire deck will have an armor skin of approximately four inches.

The 8 inch guns have a range of 35,000 yards, compared with 24,000 yards for the 6 inch gun. The projectile of the 8 inch gun weighs 260 pounds, compared to the 105 pounds of the 6 inch projectile. The range also will be shorter, and according to Chairman Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.] of the senate naval affairs committee, the new design will still greatly widen the gap between the fighting power of the 8 inch and 6 inch gun cruiser.

JAPAN TO LAUNCH CRUISER

YOKOSUKA, Japan.—(AP)—In the presence of the Empress Nagako, present for the first time at such a ceremony, the 10,000 ton cruiser Takao was launched today.

BROWN THRUSH TAKES A FLYER IN LA SALLE ST.

And Busy Brokers Forget Tickers.

Six million shares of stock were sold in the exchanges yesterday. In spite of this resonant item; in spite of leagues of nations and the growing crime list; in spite of enormous enterprises and the surge of industry in La Salle street your attention this morning, neighbors, is invited to the following lines of William Morris:

"O thrush, your song is passing sweet,
But never a song that you have sung
Is half so sweet as thrushes sang
When my dear love and I were young."

Because, neighbors, a brown thrush wants to go home. If you will pursue this item far enough you will discover why it wants to go home. Now, beginning at Wacker drive, walk south in La Salle street. You will notice that on both sides of the street buildings rise to amazing heights. These heights have from time immemorial, almost, been regarded as the sides of a canyon and have been so described. But it has remained for Mister Brown Thrush to find out to his sorrow just what a canyon it is.

Down Through City's Canyon.

By the time you have walked nearly to the new Board of Trade building, gazing upwards always, you will have a crick in your neck. But you will have arrived at the State Bank building which is at 120 South La Salle street. Standing among its fellows it measures some 23 stories up. And when you get inside it you will find that it is constructed in the form of a hollow square; a hollow square 23 stories high; offices on all sides and above you as far as the eye can reach; reserving always the fact that at the top there is a patch of sky. This is Chicago sky; mostly dusty, smoky and unattractive; but yesterday clear and blue.

A Visitor from Open Spaces.

Now a brown thrush some four days ago wandered into this vertical tunnel and still is there. Which offers some sort of an explanation of why some thousands of brokers and bankers and lawyers and clerks and bookkeepers and stenographers and janitors and scrubladies and office boys and messengers and policemen and firemen and citizens have dropped all interest in 6,000,000 shares of stock sold and the tariff and the crime situation and whether a mashie is better than a niblick on a short hole; have forgotten about tonnage of the mercantile marine and whether pajamas are better than the old fashioned night shirt and where does the wind come from and who set the first clock; neighbors, all the industry and human urge that makes a day in La Salle street has stopped as cold as if Gabriel had let go a wind of his mellow horn.

Thrush Hunts Way Out.

A brown thrush has been for four days frantically trying to find its way out of that perpendicular hollow square that we have been so clumsily trying to tell you about. And the whole population of this modern office building, suddenly fused into some sort of a spiritual community, is trying to do something about it.

A brown thrush belongs in the open country. It loves to bustle among the hedges with its fellows. It loves to be up early of a summer morning, whistle a chirp or two, snap up a nice tasty bug, and enter the day's affairs with gusto. But this brown thrush in the program of accidents which makes a lifetime forged into the city and somehow turned its rudder the wrong way. Before anything could be done about it, Mister Brown Thrush found himself in a place that seemed to have no top or bottom.

Office Folk Feed Wanderer.

He was discovered after the first day He dropped on the window ledge of a broker's office and found a crumb. A stenographer saw him and gave him a few more crumbs. The next day the news of his presence was all over the building. And every window sill held its offering of food, ranging from peanuts to all day suckers. Yet it wasn't food the thrush wanted. His chief desire was to get out.

But apparently the type of aviation to which Mr. Thrush has been addicted requires wide range. He could manage two or three stories on his way up and that was all. He would bang into the resisting brick wall and stop until he could manage a side spin into the nearest window ledge.

After two days the population of the building got down to business in

ALD. SCHLAGEL FORGETS PAIN, GETS HIS MAN

Edward Schlagel, 611 Webford avenue, Des Plaines, alderman of the Third ward in that suburb, has long suffered a leg ailment which at times has required the use of crutches. But yesterday he ran up and down stairs, hurdled fences and did other fancy footwork to capture a Negro wanted by the police as a thief.

Schlagel was in the vicinity of 38th street and Indiana avenue yesterday afternoon when he was stopped by a Negro who asked him to enter a house to give assistance to a sick man. In the hallway the Negro took $2 and a diamond ring, valued at $250, from Schlagel. Then Schlagel produced his Des Plaines alderman's star, at sight of which the Negro started up the stairs, with Schlagel in pursuit.

Up two flights they went, and down two flights in the rear. Over a fence the Negro jumped, and although struck on the head by a piece of wood, thrown by the fugitive, over the fence jumped Schlagel. Another fence, and another hurdle. Down the alley they raced with Schlagel gaining, and plunged into the arms of Policemen Wellington Britton and James Hawley at 39th street and Prairie avenue. The policemen recognized the Negro as James McNirl, 3620 Michigan avenue, who has been sought in the past but never caught with the evidence.

U. S. Plans to Seize Farms Housing Stills

Prohibition Administrator E. C. Yellowley yesterday invoked a 66 year old revenue act in an effort to confiscate the homes and large farms of two downstate families. This action followed the raiding of an alcohol still on each of the farms.

One of the farms is a 520 acre tract near Spring Valley, Putnam county, owned by Joseph Engelhaupt, and the other consists of 208 acres near Ladd, in Bureau county, owned by Elmer Flaherty. Dry agents Wednesday night wrecked a still which they valued at $50,000 on the Engelhaupt farm, and one valued at $20,000 on the Flaherty place.

Action Without Precedent.

Legal action to confiscate the farms and all property on them was suggested by Yellowley to Walter M. Provine, United States attorney at Peoria, who immediately drew up the actions to be filed in the federal District court. Yellowley announced that this action, unprecedented in this federal circuit, was undertaken because of his belief that both Engelhaupt and Flaherty knowingly and willfully permitted the operation of the stills on their farms.

Both Engelhaupt and Flaherty will be prosecuted on charges of misprision of felony, an offense known as countenancing law violations without reporting them to authorities.

The old revenue act under which Yellowley seeks to confiscate the farms was explained by Walter Wiles, expert on prohibition and revenue law libel matters in the United States attorney's office here.

Explains Details of Laws.

"This statute, which is directed against the operation of unlicensed distilleries, is exceptionally broad," Mr. Wiles said. "Four classes of seizures may be made for such violations: First, all property used in connection with the operation of the still; second, all property found in the building, yard or inclosure where the still is found; third, all rights, titles or interests of the distiller in the building, lot or plot of ground where the still is located, and fourth, all rights, titles or interests in such property of any person who knowingly permits the operation of an unregistered still."

Mr. Wiles expressed the opinion, however, that confiscation of large farms would be a difficult proceeding. The court must rule whether a 520 acre farm can be construed as one lot or plot of ground, he said. The Supreme court has upheld the confiscation of property on lots where illicit distilleries were found, he said.

Mr. Wiles confirmed Mr. Yellowley's statement that libel actions had never before been started against farms in this federal circuit, although buildings, lots and automobiles have been confiscated.

Dry Agents in Battle.

C. Edson Smith, deputy dry enforcer, yesterday reported a gun battle between two of his agents and two supposed bootleggers in which twenty-four shots were fired. Mr. Smith said he did not believe either of the bootleggers, who escaped, was hurt.

The shooting occurred after a raid on a still in an old house near Dolton. Smith held two prisoners, William Bardinella and Mike Pedris, while Agents William Connors and Roy Timlock scouted around. An automobile drove up and the raiders announced the place had been seized.

The two men in the car opened fire, according to Smith, and the agents, first barricading themselves behind trees, did likewise. The drys shot at the automobile until it was out of sight.

Eleven permanent injunctions for dry law violations were issued yesterday by Federal Judge Wilkinson, closing a drug store, a confectionery shop, a lunch stand-poolroom, a restaurant, and several saloons.

The orders were obtained by Assistant United States Attorney La Verne Norris.

STOCKS DROP 2 TO 10 POINTS AS 6,000,000 SHARES CHANGE HANDS

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—Stock prices dropped from 2 to 10 points today in the worst decline since the crash last October and the first 6,000,000 share day of the year. The selling reached enormous proportions in the last hour, when more than 2,000,000 shares changed hands. Some of the more volatile issues were off from 10 to 18 points.

Prices were still dropping at the end of the day, although a few issues held firm at the close. Selling was in large blocks, with sales of 5,000 shares and 10,000 shares on the decline.

The break in the market followed the reduction of the New York Federal Reserve bank's rediscount rate from 3½ per cent to 3 per cent last night, which was regarded as favorable news, and the statement by President Hoover that the worst of the business depression is over. Wall street had expected the cut in the bank rate and professional profit-taking was one of the factors in the liquidation of stocks.

SUITOR SHOOTS GIRL, ENDS LIFE IN ROSE ARBOR

For eight months Albert Brown, 27 years old, salesman, had wooed Sally Kuta, 17 years old, despite the opposition of her parents.

Last night she met him by stealth a block from her parents' home, 2619 Evergreen avenue, and they strolled into Humboldt park. As they sauntered arm in arm under the rose arbor to a bench, the salesman renewed his plea. She told him she was too young and pointed out as she had done before, that her father would never consent to their marriage.

Other young couples were startled by the four shots the salesman fired as she concluded her answer. They found the girl on the bench with a bullet near her heart. Her suitor lay on the gravel walk with three bullets in his body, dead.

Fifty Million Candle Power Lights Field

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., May 2.—[Special.]—Some fifty million candle power of light introduced night baseball for the first time into the organized ranks of the national pastime. In the course of the introduction tonight the local Western leaguers administered a 13-6 bedtime spanking to Wichita before 10,000 patrons who came to view a novelty.

As a spectacle the introduction was impressive. There is reason to believe that for the minor leagues, which are on a starvation diet, it may be a life saver, provided there are slight improvements. And for the majors it is a matter to be considered if evil days hit the big circuits or the magnates subordinate the competitive idea to gate receipts. At present they have one eye on each.

Foul Lost in Lights.

Despite the elaborate lighting system on which a General Electric engineer labored for seven years there were noticeable defects right at the start.

In the first inning the Wichita third baseman looked up for a pop foul. The ball went into the lights shining down from a tower in that region and the fielder lost it completely.

There also were regions of darkness at the extremities of the foul lines. This, in the opinion of the engineers, may be corrected by additional light, properly focused. There also was a stratum of darkness between the light thrown by lamps directed toward the ground and those shooting their rays into the regions inhabited by high fly balls.

This meant trouble for an outfielder trying to locate a low fly sailing at about the level of the grandstand roof.

Six Towers Light Field.

The light beamed down and across the arena from six steel towers, each 90 feet in height. Two of these skeleton like structures, topped by the lamps arranged in horizontal rows, poured out their rays from behind the grandstand. Each of these towers held fourteen 1,000 watt bulbs. Behind both third and first bases were towers of 36 bulbs each. The two other towers stood back of the left and right field fences, each showing 24 beacons at respective distances of 350 and 400 feet from the plate.

The battery of 146 bulbs, each designed for a capacity of 100 watts, was given an extra voltage of 10 per cent. This meant about 190,000 watts. At local rates three hour burning would run up Owner Lee Keyser's light bill approximately $25. The entire layout cost approximately $20,000.

From a spectator's viewpoint the night club idea might be satisfactory.

Four towers of light behind the ball made it easy to follow from the stand. But there is an element of batter's eyesight involved. Put a good hitter to work a few times under artificial light and he might be ruined for hitting in daylight. That's the first thing a major star would think about if a night appearance was suggested.

DRY RAID KILLER FREED; W. C. T. U. GIVES HIM POSIES

Platteville, Wis., May 2.—(AP)—A coroner's jury tonight released Sheriff Joe Greer of Grant county from all responsibility for the death of Edward Foht, killed as officers made prohibition raids on Bishop's island in the Mississippi river April 24.

The jury found that Foht was struck by a bullet that glanced from a tree. Witnesses testified that Greer fired twice in the air to warn Foht to halt.

After the verdict of accidental death was returned the local chapter of the W. C. T. U. sent Sheriff Greer a bouquet of flowers and a congratulatory message, county officials said.

HIDE NAMES OF 2 DRINKING DRYS AT SENATE QUIZ

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Statements describing two high government officials, both politically dry, as "heavy drinkers" were found in the files of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and suppressed today by the senate lobby committee.

Suppression of a letter written on June 20, 1928, by W. H. Stayton, chairman of the association, to the late Maj. Gen. George Barnett, left unsolved the mystery of whether a quantity of fine liquors, for which bills were found in Stayton's file, enlivened a political meeting addressed by former Senator J. W. Wadsworth Jr., or a dinner of Republican leaders shortly after the Kansas City convention to celebrate the nomination of Hoover.

Wadsworth, it appeared from his correspondence with Stayton, addressed a meeting in the University club of Baltimore on April 13, 1928, and discussed "the senate and the people" as well as "the exclusion of Smith of Illinois."

Liquor Bills Attached.

Attached to the exchange of letters arranging for the meeting were memorandums indicating the purchase of twelve bottles of champagne, four bottles of gin, two bottles of vermouth, five bottles of Scotch and three of assorted liqueurs, to a total value of $76.50.

Describing the memorandum as "a very interesting thing," Senator T. H. Caraway [Dem., Ark.], chairman of the committee, read the items into the record.

"Now, Mr. Stayton," asked Senator J. J. Blaine [Rep., Wis.], referring to Stayton's letter to Barnett, "have you any knowledge or information as to whether or not the liquor that is listed on the loose slips here which the chairman read, was served at a dinner evidently in celebration of a candidate for the presidency of the United States, just prior to June 20, 1928?"

"Was there such a dinner held?" asked Blaine.

"Yes," answered Stayton, "there was such a dinner held."

That Telltale Letter.

While neither Blaine nor any other member of the committee would disclose the contents of the Stayton-Barnett letter, it was learned that the chairman of a nationally known insurance company was quoted in it as having said he attended a dinner at which one high government official "drank heavily," while, of another official the letter asserted "every one knows how —— laps it up freely," and added "if you don't believe it, ask —— (a former United States senator)."

The letter, it was explained later by Caraway, was pigeonholed with the list of "wet drinking, dry voting" house members found in the files of H. H. Curran, president of the association, last week and similarly suppressed, because "of the prominence of those involved," as well as because, like the roll of congressional scofflaws, it is only remotely, if at all, connected with an investigation of lobbies.

Hoover "So Dry He Squeaks."

Digging further into Stayton's confidential correspondence, Senator Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.] found frequent references to and criticisms of President Hoover by the wet leader and in one case, by Representative H. H. Peavey [Rep., Wis.]. The latter, a La Follette radical, assailed the association for indorsing regular Republican candidates in Wisconsin, although some of the candidates were known as "bone drys."

"Hoover is so dry he squeaks," wrote Peavey complaining that the association was acting as a catspaw for "big business and the Republican party."

In another letter, written to Herbert L. Clarke of Philadelphia on March 19, 1929, Stayton questioned the sincerity of President Hoover as a dry and suggested that the President "believes he can get votes from the wets without espousing their cause, and that therefore, as a matter of vote getting he had better take the dry side."

Not Open to Argument.

"If he were sincerely a dry," continued the letter, "one might hope to convince him by argument or statement of facts but, as I know he is not at heart a dry, I fear I must approach the conclusion that he is a dry because of the prospective profi[t] in votes and nothing that has had to do with right and wrong or with fact will make any impression upon him."

Commenting in another letter written to J. R. Hamlen of Boston on Jan. 2, 1930, Stayton attributed the sudden revival of senate interest in the prohibition question to the desire of senators "who had, in connection with the recent election, said or done something committing them to either the wets or drys, to say something to catch the suckers on the other side."

"But the thing, having been started," the letter went on, "has demonstrated there is a rift in the drys' ranks which probably cannot be healed. Mr. Hoover is trying to persuade Borah to 'walk into my parlor,' but Borah, who would like to run for the persidency, is playing his own game and not confiding in Mr. Hoover, although he is dragging out of Mr. Hoover all he can get."

ASKS ENFORCEMENT CASH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—President Hoover today sent to congress a request for a supplemental appropriation of $250,000 for the Wickersham law enforcement commission to permit it to continue its investigation of the workings of the prohibition and other laws until June 30, 1931.

Together with his proposal to extend the life of the commission for another year, the President asked for extra appropriations of more than a million dollars to care for of the federal prisoners who are being jammed into the penitentiaries so rapidly that these institutions are unable to handle them. Bills for construction of new prisons are now pending in congress.

The requests for additional appropriations were forwarded to the house appropriations committee by the President with recommendations for other deficiency appropriations left out of the regular budget.

Funds Will Not Last.

Chairman George W. Wickersham and other members of the enforcement commission several times recently have indicated that they could not possibly complete their study by June 30, 1930, when their original appropriation of $250,000 expires. At that time, according to the director of the budget, only about $70,000 will be left.

Wets in both houses are expected to take advantage of the new Wickersham $250,000 request to attack the commission on the ground that it has concentrated its attention upon prohibition enforcement rather than upon the wisdom or unwisdom of the dry laws. Certain drys also are dissatisfied with the commission because they fear it may lean too far toward the wet side.

Prisons Overcrowded.

In his request for more prison funds, President Hoover asked for $293,623 more for maintenance of the Leavenworth penitentiary, which now is housing twice the number of prisoners it is supposed to accommodate. He asked an additional $54,477 for the Chillicothe, Ohio, reformatory, and a special appropriation of $30,177 for additional prisoners there. It had been estimated that there would be 1,400 additional prisoners, but instead there are expected to be 1,600.

Another $40,000 in addition to the $250,000 authorized is asked for construction work at the Atlanta penitentiary, and $3,000 more for prison inspection work.

By far the largest prison expense item was $1,002,860 needed to maintain seven prison camps established to care for overflow prisoners from the penitentiaries.

The locations of these camps and number of prisoners confined in each are as follows: Fort Bragg, N. C., 400; Fort Riley, Kansas, 200; Alderson, W. Va., 100; Idaho, 100; Arizona, 100; Camp Meade, Md., 200; and Camp Lee, Virginia, 600; total in the camps, 1,700.

Under the prison bills passed by the house and pending in the senate two new institutions comparable to Atlanta and Leavenworth, and a new hospital for delinquent criminals, would be built at an approximate cost of $8,000,000.

MEXICAN DIVORCE IS MADE ISSUE IN SEPARATION SUIT

Mrs. Mittie Jane Sauer, 628 Aldine avenue, yesterday filed a bill for separate maintenance in the Superior court against Paul J. Sauer of the Commonwealth hotel, an advertising man. The bill, drawn by Attorney Cameron Latter, charges that her husband obtained a Mexican divorce decree unknown to his wife.

The Sauers were married on June 19, 1915. In December, 1925, she went to California for a vacation, the bill says. When she wrote to him on July 1, 1929, declaring her intention to return, he is alleged to have refused her transportation and announced that he had obtained a decree of divorce in Mexico. He has since remarried, she alleges. Mrs. Sauer estimates her husband's income at $25,000 a year.

TWO HEADSTONES FOUND IN ALLEY; BLAME VANDALS

The Town Hall police last night said they believed that young vandals inspired by gin were responsible for the presence of two tombstones in an alley at the rear of 3640 Broadway. The tombstones were found earlier in the day by Patrolman Leo Segan.

One of the headstones, inscribed "Genevieve Gotham, 1882-1929," was stolen from Montrose cemetery last autumn an official of the cemetery said. It was claimed during the day by relatives of the dead woman and will be restored to the cemetery today. The other headstone, containing the inscription, "Mary Koppenberger, 1865-1928," is believed to have been stolen from Rosehill cemetery.

Wife Says Sleuthing Led Mate to Rum; Gets Divorce

Mrs. Florence Luce, 25 years old, 2919 West Jackson boulevard, won a divorce yesterday from Wayne Luce, a crime investigator, before Superior Judge Sabath. She charged cruelty and nonsupport, alleging that her husband became drunk and gambled during his investigations. The Luces were married on April 16, 1924, and separated on Feb. 5 of this year. The wife won the custody of a daughter, Danella, 2 years old, and alimony of $7 a week.

2 SEEK CONGRESS SEATS IN INDIANA ON WET TICKETS

Dry League Appears to Be Losing Its Power.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., May 2.—[Special.]—Dawning signs of a growing liberalism in Indiana, bone driest of the bone dry states, are reflected in two congressional districts—the 7th and 13th—where dry law modification candidates are running. The Anti-Saloon league prefaces its blue list with the remark, "No wet congressmen have been elected from Indiana since 1914," but the politicians aver the ice may be broken in 1930.

In the South Bend district, the 13th, in the northern part of the state, Samuel B. Pettingill, a South Bend attorney, a church member and a personal exponent of temperance, is seeking the Democratic nomination on a modification platform.

Calls Dry Law Monstrosity.

Mr. Pettingill terms national prohibition a "monstrosity" and sets forth it violates the basic principles of democratic government. He has one opponent in the primary, J. Harry Browning of Elkhart, who has received the blessing of the Anti-Saloon league.

This season, however, the league apparently has waned in strength.

Many candidates have declined to answer the league's questionnaire. Criticism of Volsteadism is reported steadily increasing among the churchgoers.

Mr. Pettingill is expected by the Democrats to have little trouble in winning the nomination Tuesday. Then the battle will come between him and Congressman Andrew J. Hickey [Rep. [La Porte], who is dry in his voting and is among the anointed on the league's list.

This struggle next fall is expected to be a whirlwind, with prohibition as the issue Democratic leaders point out that with about 90,000 votes in the district Hickey has been winning by only 7,000 to 9,000 votes, and with the signs pointing to a continuation next November of the Democratic swing that manifested itself last fall the district may land in the modification column.

Aroma of Klan Rule Days.

In the Indianapolis district—the 7th—there is a wet and dry struggle in the Republican primaries, but it is so cluttered up with machine politics and the aroma of the old days of klan and league misrule that it is not regarded as a real test of the rising liberal spirit Three drys and two wets are running for the Republican nomination. The leading wet candidate is Ira M. Holmes, for years a side kick in politics of George V. Coffin, Marion county boss.

The Coffin crowd, since the days when it ruled with the league and the klan, has played the dry end in politics, that being where the votes have been in Indiana, and the dry despotism being its ancient powerhouse. Holmes for ten years was a Coffin man on the election board. He was one of the counsel for D. C. Stephenson, the old klan ruler, in the trial which resulted in Stephenson being sent to the penitentiary for life.

Since throwing in for congress as a modificationist, Holmes has been passing out word that he has been ditched by Coffin. Today, however, it appeared that the Coffinites are lining up for Holmes.

Indorsed by Dry League.

The two leading drys are Asa J. Smith and Schuyler C. Mowrer. Both are overseas veterans and were wounded in action. Mowrer was with the First division and Smith with the Fifth marines. Smith used to be secretary to Harry New. Both are indorsed by the Anti-Saloon league. Congressman Louis Ludlow, Democrat dry, has neglible opposition in the Democratic primaries.

Frank E. Wright, author of Indiana's bone dry law, which denies by act of the legislature that alcoholic liquor is part of materia medica, filed as a dry candidate, but pulled out at the last moment in favor of Mowrer. Some assert this was at the suggestion of the league.

AUTOIST BADLY HURT.

Des Moines, Ia., May 2.—(AP)—Crowded from the road near Fort Des Moines, the automobile of Leroy Weeks, 35, of Lake Mills, Ill., hurtled into a ditch and he was badly injured.

Teachers Dry and Lawyers Wet, National Poll Shows

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—The educators of the country are dryer than the dryest state, and the lawyers wetter than the wettest state, in the Literary Digest's national prohibition poll, according to returns of the magazine's special classified polls as published in today's issue. Special ballots were sent out to six groups, the bankers, clergymen, educators, lawyers, physicians, and Digest subscribers.

A noticeable trend in these polls, which were conducted somewhat later than the main poll, according to the Literary Digest, is a heavy decrease in the proportion of the vote for modification.

In some cases geographical location seemed to have a greater effect on the voting than did professional grouping. Clergymen in the District of Columbia, Louisiana, Nevada, New York, and Wisconsin cast absolute majorities for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. On the other hand, lawyers in South Dakota cast 50 per cent of their vote in favor of enforcement, and physicians in Kansas polled an enforcement majority.

Bankers Divided Fairly Even.

The vote of the bankers was the most evently divided as between enforcement and repeal. A total of 218,711 ballots were mailed to bankers, of which 84,824 were returned up to the time of tabulation. The bankers voted 35,210 for enforcement, 34,518 for repeal, with 15,096 favoring modification of the Volstead law.

Geographical differences were especially noticeable in the bankers' opinions. In states like New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut they polled repeal majorities, and in states like Kansas, Arkansas, and Tennessee they gave enforcement majorities. There were, however, repeal majorities in Montana and Idaho and an enforcement majority in Delaware.

Clergymen Wet in Some States.

In the poll of clergymen 46,639 ballots were counted in the total of 116,235 sent out. Among them 34 per cent were recorded in favor of repeal. The group cast 26,863 votes for enforcement, 15,912 for repeal, and 3,864 for modification. Besides repeal majorities in four states and the District of Columbia, the clergymen gave repeal pluralities in three other states, Connecticut, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island.

The "champion" dry group, the educators, received 490,895 ballots and voted 157,083 of these. The overwhelming majority of those receiving ballots in this group were women, although thousands of men school principals and teachers and college professors were included. The vote was 95,422 for enforcement, 38,956 for repeal, and 22,705 for modification, the enforcement percentage being higher than that of Kansas, the dryest state. Only in Connecticut and New York did this group give more votes to repeal than to enforcement.

How Lawyers and Judges Incline.

To lawyers and judges 132,489 ballots were sent and 62,730 were voted. This group cast 55 per cent of its ballots for repeal, a larger percentage than any wet state. For repeal 34,886 were counted, for enforcement 18,101, and for modification 9,743. Only in one state did the lawyers give a 50 per cent enforcement vote, though an enforcement plurality was cast in eight others.

The physicians cast 32,235 ballots for repeal out of the 65,579 returned and the 154,670 sent out. For enforcement 19,956 ballots were counted, and for modification 13,568. The group gave more votes to enforcement than to reapel in only eleven states.

The largest of the six groups was that composed of Literary Digest subscribers, who received 1,023,621 ballots and voted 570,656. The percentage for repeal, 41.23, was, roughly, the same as in the main poll, but the percentage for enforcement, 39.41, was considerably higher, and the percentage for modification, 19.36, considerably lower. The vote was, for repeal, 235,270; for enforcement, 224,921, and for modification, 110,465.

Ballots in the various groups are still coming in, it was said.

B. W. CULLEN IS REINSTATED AS WATER OFFICIAL

An order reinstating B. W. Cullen as superintendent of the city water pipe extension bureau was issued yesterday by Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe, to be effective this morning. Cullen was suspended thirty days ago on charges of conduct unbecoming a public official and violation of his official integrity in the preservation of publi} funds.

A demand for reinstatement was made by R. E. Blackwood, attorney for Cullen. Attorney Blackwood told Wolfe that a civil service employe cannot be suspended for more than thirty days and cited the fact that this period has elapsed in Cullen's case. After a conference with James W. Breen, first assistant corporation counsel, Wolfe issued the order reinstating Cullen.

The specific charges against Cullen are that he kept a plumber, W. H. Cummings, on the pay roll for three and one-half days that it is alleged he did not work. The charge was made by John P. Allen, a division superintendent in the bureau, who was then named by Wolfe to act in Cullen's place. Cullen's reply to the charges was that Cummings was on special duty at the time it is alleged he did not work.

WIFE OF MISSING ROBBERY VICTIM ALSO VANISHES

Police yesterday found further evidence of terrorism in the disappearance of Angelo Gerbanas, 811 Morgan street, complaining witness in a burglary case, who either was abducted or fled from Felony court Monday as he was being called to the witness stand.

Gerbanas' wife vanished yesterday afternoon and police learned from relatives that she was in hiding because of threats. The police also got information from friends of Gerbanas indicating that instead of being kidnaped, he is hiding because he was threatened by two hoodlums seen in the courtroom Monday. Gerbanas was in court to testify against three burglars caught in the act of cracking his safe. The three prisoners are Michael Gallicio, Sam Lassaso, and Joseph Muscato, known as members of the "42" gang.

DRY BRIBE CASE TO JURY; SEALED VERDICT TODAY

Federal Judge Wham yesterday sustained a motion of Defense Counsel Leo Klein for a directed verdict freeing Edward Oszakowski of the charge of attempting to bribe prohibition agents. The case against Oszakowski's brother, Peter, chief of police of Niles, went to the jury and a sealed verdict was ordered returned today.

Willard Moglund and other prohibition agents testified that the police chief offered $149 as first payment on a $600 bribe to drop a liquor case against his two brothers, Edward and Mike, after a raid on the Avenue inn in Niles last Nov. 6.

Chief Oszakowski denied the dry agents' charges. He said he merely sought to put up bail to keep his brothers from going to jail.

Agent Moglund was transferred from the Chicago prohibition unit to New York several months ago after charges that he had beaten a Spanish-American war veteran and the husband of a woman he later married made him, according to his superiors, "too well kown here."

GRAND JURY ASKS BUSINESS SYSTEM FOR THE COURTS

The April grand jury in a supplemental report yesterday recommended that a modern business like system be installed in the Cook county courts to prevent the county from being defrauded as was charged recently in indictments voted against John McLaughlin, bailiff, and Frank Bolin, former court clerk. The two officials are charged with issuing pay checks for jury duty not performed and then cashing them with the connivance of others.

The grand jury recommended the establishment of a central jury plan under which the jurors would be drawn for all the judges and then assigned to courts as needed.

Each juror should be made to present his summons with his signature attached to the judge at the time he reports for jury duty, the grand jury report said. This would help to prevent forgeries, according to the report. It was also recommended that the pay checks be mailed to the jurors' homes as an added safeguard.

FLYER DIPPING TO SALUTE KIN FALLS TO DEATH

Army Pilot Crashes on Uncle's Farm.

Mexico, Mo., May 2.—[Special.]—The brief aerial "visit home" of Lieut. Harold E. Brown, athlete, West Point graduate, and United States army flyer, ended in death today. He was killed instantly when the plane in which he was flying from California to Selfridge field, Michigan, crashed on the farm of his uncle, Robert M. Brown, southwest of here.

As Lieut. Brown swooped low over the farmhouse to wave a greeting his plane apparently stalled or struck an air pocket and fell. His skull was crushed and his neck broken. The ship, a Curtiss pursuit monoplane, powered by a Liberty motor, was badly damaged.

A few minutes earlier the flyer had circled several times over the farm of his father, C. M. Brown, prominent farmer and stockman, three miles away, and waved greetings to his parent.

Lieut. Brown, flying east from the recent California maneuvers via Salt Lake City and Denver, spent last night with his cousin, Lieut. Basil Offutt, flyer at Fort Riley, Kas. He flew from Fort Riley to Columbia, Mo., this morning. After refueling at Columbia he went east over U. S. highway No. 40 for several miles, leaving the highway to fly over Hatton, his birthplace, and the homes of his father and uncles before continuing eastward to Selfridge field.

Lieut. Brown was 27 years old. He was a 1928 graduate of West Point. He was captain of the polo team in his senior year. He was an outstanding athlete at the Mexico High school, where he graduated in 1922. He attended Westminster college at Fulton and the University of Missouri at Columbia before receiving his West Point appointment. He is survived by his widow, formerly Minerva Claire Grover, of East Orange, N. J., to whom he was married in 1928, and by a three months old son.

Woman Killed in Crash.

Fort Scott, Kas., May 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Joseph A. Wasson, Marshall, Mo., was killed and W. E. Brown, Waco, Tex., an airplane dealer, was injured slightly today when an airplane in which they were flying to Tulsa, Okla., crashed in a corn field south of here and burned.

Mrs. Wasson was the wife of the assistant sales manager of the Nichols-Beazley Airplane company of Marshall, from which Brown purchased the plane.

FRENCH AVIATRIX FLIES 36 HOURS; SETS NEW RECORD

Lands Ship After Fuel Is Exhausted.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, May 2.—[Special.]—Mlle. Lena Bernstein, French aviatrix, landed at Le Bourget field shortly after 7 o'clock tonight, having set a new feminine world's endurance record with 35 hours 46 minutes 55 seconds in the air. It was her fifth attempt this season to better the mark of Mlle. Maryse Bastie, 26 hours 47 minutes 30 seconds, set last July.

Though she attained her object and had broken the record at 10:30 this morning, Mlle. Bernstein continued flying all day, determined to advance the mark to the limit of possibilities. Her landing tonight was forced by exhaustion of her fuel supply rather than the strength of the aviatrix, who made a fine landing and smilingly responded to the cheers of a large crowd.

Flew Longer Than Lindy.

Some idea of her remarkable demonstration can be had when it is recalled she remained two hours longer in the air than Col. Lindbergh in his flight from New York to Paris, which he accomplished in 33 hours.

Capt. Cartier of the 34th aviation regiment at Le Bourget presented Mlle. Bernstein with a large bouquet of flowers, and a representative of the air ministry presented her with official felicitations.

Mlle. Bernstein has an excellent flying record and on her trans-Mediterranean flight last year, one of the most notable efforts of feminine aviation, she covered a distance of 1,416 miles in a nonstop flight.

In her flight today she piloted a Farman-Salmson plane, powered by a 230 horsepower motor, with a 2,000 liter gasoline supply. She had great difficulty at the takeoff in raising the heavy load from the ground yesterday and gave observers fright when the plane dipped down four times to a near crash, but once she gained altitude she remained in perfect command of the plane throughout her remarkable performance.

Ocean Flyer in Africa.

PARIS, May 2.—(AP)—Jean Mermoz, French aviator who took off from Perpignan at 5:07 a. m. for St. Louis, Senegal, on the west African coast, alighted at Kenitra bay, north of Rabat. He will proceed to dis destination tomorrow, according t announcement received here. From St. Louis M. Mermoz plans to take off immediately for Natal, Brazil.

Lindbergh Back with Mail from South American Flight

Miami, Fla., May 2.—(AP)—Completing his round trip inaugurating seven day air mail service between the Americas, Col. Charles Lindbergh arrived here at 5:03 p. m., eastern standard time, after an 899 mile flight today from Puerto-Cabezas, Nicaragua. He carried 211 pounds of all mail bound from Buenos Aires to points in the United States on the new seven day schedule of the Latin American express service.

Col. Lindbergh was three minutes behind schedule when he landed at Pan-American airport here. He was held by an east cross-wind despite an early departure from Havana.

Average speed for today's flight, which started at Puerto-Cabezas at 5:55 a. m., eastern standard time, was 97 miles an hour. Col. Lindbergh and Basil Roe, co-pilot, averaged 92 miles an hour from Puerto-Cabezas to Havana, a water flight of 638 miles across the Caribbean sea, and had an average speed of 110 miles an hour from Havana to Miami, northern terminus of Pan-American Airways, Inc., which holds the mail contract.

Col. Lindbergh and Roe accomplished the first leg of the homeward flight from Cristobal, C. Z., to Puerto-Cabezas, a distance of 395 miles, yesterday at an average of a fraction less than 98 miles an hour.

During today's flight the colonel, completing his third inauguration of air mail service between the Americas, brought another novelty into his record of accomplishments as he at the plane's radio and tapped his own location message to the Pan American Airways' radio control station here. The message was sent from a point approximately 280 miles south of Havana and sixty miles west of Grand Cayman.

Weather conditions generally were reported to be excellent.

Col. Lindbergh blazed the new air trail from the United States to Central and South America last week-end as he flew into the south to split the famous Lindbergh circle that he established last September. His only stops on the southbound and northbound flights between Miami and Cristobal, C. Z., were at Puerto-Cabezas and Havannah, and these were made for refueling purposes only.

This Orator Seems to Have Grudge Against Parliament

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 2.—A soap box orator in Hyde park expressed himself concerning parliament today as follows: "Only two good men ever went to parliament. One was Guy Fawkes who went there to blow it up. The other was Oliver Cromwell, who went there to shut it up."

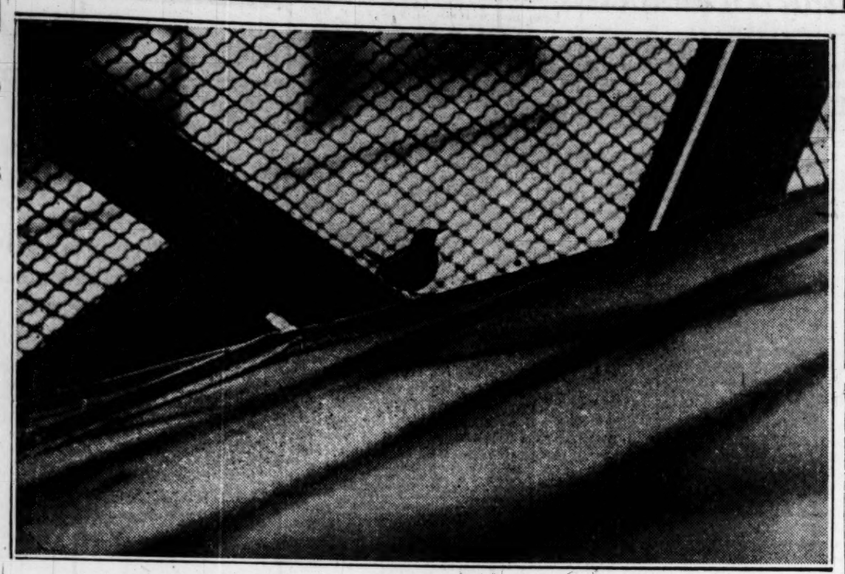
BIRD'S PLIGHT STIRS LA SALLE STREET



Thrush which flew into the courtway of the twenty-three story high State Bank of Chicago office building and was unable to find its way out, perched on the "suicide net" just over the skylight of the Chicago Stock Exchange. Several times the bird has tried to fly out, but although the way to the sky is clear it seems to be unable to fly high enough to emerge from the well of the courtway. Meantime, hundreds of interested persons are watching and feeding it. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

the matter of releasing Mr. Thrush from his odd imprisonment. But every expedient has been tried. And the thrush still flutters hopelessly up and down the amazing upright tunnel wondering what in the name of natural aviation he has got himself into.

Fire Officials Join Mission.

Four janitors, one investigator for the Humane Society of Illinois, and two fire department officials, no less important than Deputy Chief Fire Marshal Daniel Carmody and Deputy Fire Commissioner Edward A. Maloney, have climbed out a fifth floor window, parallel with the lower level of the skylight, walked along a "catwalk" skirting the glass, and made their perilous way on hands and knees over the wire grating which covers the skylight in an effort to catch the bird.

The skylight with its wire mesh covering rises to an apex, this being on a line with the seventh floor of the 23 story building. As Deputy Commissioner Maloney and Chief Marshal Carmody, clinging to the wire mesh, in the heat of yesterday afternoon's sun, saw that they were almost near enough to the wary bird to put salt on its tail, a feminine voice cried out from above:

Food's Not His Object.

Deputy Commissioner Maloney wiped perspiration from his brow, and watched the graceful bird flit away, up, up, near to the windows of the ninth floor where office girls and executives of the National City company were gathered. But the bird did not alight on the window sills, although they were covered with bread crumbs and even a chocolate bar or two meant to entice a woodland creature.

"It is awfully far away, looking at it from here," commented Deputy Chief Carmody, looking up at the blue rectangle of sky. "I think we'd better go inside and discuss it."

They did, in conference with S. W. Bray, superintendent of the building, and V. A. Houston and D. H. DeLess, assistant superintendents. The inclosure measured 90 by 50 feet, Mr. Bray told them.

"How about four or five smoke pots, the kind we use in fire shows? They emit a heavy, dense smoke and would drive the bird upward. It could go up, couldn't it?" Deputy Carmody asked.

Window Closing Is Out.

Mr. Houston said that the building management wanted to co-operate, but that the smoke would necessitate cutting off all ventilation and closing all windows. Closing the windows which opened off the courtyard alone would take three men an hour and one-half. Besides, he said, the bird could not fly upward without spiraling, and there was not space enough for it.

Deputy Commissioner Maloney then suggested that they send a reliable fireman over at night, armed with a flashlight and a butterfly net. At that Mr. DeLess smiled tolerantly.

"The humane society did that night before last," he said. "This is a strange bird. It wouldn't bite. It saw, despite the flashlight. It refused to stay still, as most birds would. It just flew away."

Meanwhile, as the conference was held, millionaire brokers left the excitement of the Chicago Stock exchange on the second floor to note the bird's progress. Many offered advice. One man, reaching the opinion that, although the bird had a feast of bread crumbs it needed green stuff, sent a stenographer out for a head of lettuce, which he tossed down expertly, just missing the head of a reporter.

Anent the Bird's Family.

Now, some say it is a mystery bird. Mr. Houston and others maintain that it is a thrush. Certainly it corresponds to the dictionary's description of a thrush: Its color is cinnamon brown; its tail is "long and slightly graduated," and "the feathers of the throat and breast are spotted."

What is more indicative, it sings like a thrush should sing, judging from poetry. Although Mr. Houston described the song, heard above the noise of typewriters and stock tickers, as "rather jerky," he said it was "very pretty."

Robert Browning wrote:

Lest you should think he never could recapture

Alfred Ciprani, investigator for the Humane society, however, held that it was not a thrush.

"It is a very beautiful bird," Mr. Ciprani said. "It is a little large for a thrush, though. And when I climbed the sides of that screening and turned a flashlight on it, it didn't bother that bird. I think it is one of the birds that can fly at night. I have never seen a bird like it. I think tomorrow I'll try to catch it in a trap, through using another bird as a decoy. Of course, it would not harm the bird."

He added that the bird was so well fed that it was very sprightly and not content to be caught.

A. G. Becker of A. G. Becker & Co., investment bankers, whose concern occupies the whole seventh floor of the building, called the building superintendent before he left for home last night and suggested keeping a window on the fifth floor open and the room lighted throughout the night, on a chance the bird would fly in. The suggestion was followed.

George B. Craig of Craig & Nelson, bond brokers, on the eleventh floor, suggested that bird lime be placed upon a small wooden plank or platform, with perhaps a piece of bread as lure. The bird then would find its feet caught in the lime, and then could be captured and set free.

It's Everybody's Affair.

Almost the whole force of 300 girls employed by the Equitable Life Insurance company, which occupies 50,000 feet of space in the building, 20,000 of which face on the court, spent part of the day yesterday in watching the bird, trying to feed it, and worrying over it. A young woman employé of A. G. Becker & Co. discovered it, however.

One of the janitors, after spending an evening on his hands and knees on the wire grating, trying to tempt the bird with bread, even clucking and calling and singing to it, finally erected a sort of nest of straw on a window ledge. But the thrush was not to be deceived.

VESSELS WITH BARS TO CRUISE AT SEA, SHUNNING ALL PORTS

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—The Cunard line, with permission of the state department, it was learned today, is planning to charter three ships of its associated Anchor line to the National Tours company, which will operate them on a series of three five day cruises out of New York and return without touching at any other port, all of the time to be passed at sea.

Aside from the unusual plan of sending a liner to sea without a set destination, American shipping men saw in the coming cruises something new in the way of relieving the thirsty, as the ships carry an unlimited supply of liquors, wines, ale, stout, and beer.

It is understood that the tourist company plans to limit the number of bookings to 700 passengers for each ship.

FORMER COLLEGE ATHLETE GUILTY; SENT TO PRISON

Chester Francis, 29 years old, a former college athlete and a university graduate, was found guilty in the Criminal court yesterday on charges of robbery with a gun and sentenced by Judge Philip I. Finnegan to from one year to life in the penitentiary. Francis had been accused of robbing seven women. The case in which he was convicted was based on the hold-up of Zelma Lynch, 1353 East 47th street, who lost $7 on March 23. It was this robbery which led to his capture, a resident of the neighborhood, who saw the holdup, trailing him until police were called.

HIGH HAT CROWD SEES FIST FIGHT AT ROMAN OPERA

Diplomat Smacks Marquis on Jaw; Duel Expected.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 2.—The marble halls of Rome's Royal Opera house, filled with bare-backed aristocratic women and immaculately groomed men, last night witnessed a fist fight between Oscar Astengo, councilor of the Argentine embassy here, and Marquis Louis Berlingieri, son of a rich Calabrian landowner.

Blood flowed freely over boiled shirt fronts. Some of the women ran back to their seats and others crowded nearer for first row positions while friends of the high hatted fighters separated them.

The fight occurred during intermission in the first night performance of Pizzetti's new opera, "Lo Straniero," which has a Biblical setting. Duke Giovanni Battista Borea d'Olmo, prefect of the palace for King Victor Emmanuel; Gen. Cristini, president of the special military tribunal, and Mr. and Mrs. John Oliver Crane of Chicago were among the notables attending the performance.

Señor Astengo was walking in the lobby when he spied the marquis. Señor Astengo raced across the lobby and planted a couple of right hooks on the marquis' jaw. They milled about until friends intervened.

Marquis Looks for Seconds.

Señor Astengo, following the fight, remained for another act of the opera. The marquis left the theater immediately to find seconds for a duel. He got the worst of the fisticuffs on the point of clean blows landed, according to witnesses.

According to voluble explanations uttered by both parties before, during, and after the fight, the motive of the fisticuffs appeared to be a disagreement over the marquis breaking off his engagement to a young Italian woman. Among the humbler classes of this country such action is always the occasion for a vendetta on the part of the lady's relatives under an unwritten tradition. Señor Astengo is the stepfather of the marquis' former fiancée.

LAWYER ATTACKS CAR FRANCHISE AS EVERLASTING

Wants City to Demand More Guarantees.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The first vigorous attack on the proposed indeterminate transportation franchise came yesterday from Attorney James G. Skinner, who stated that he favors "municipal ownership, but not municipal operation." He appeared before the local transportation committee and for two hours criticized the ordinance as the spokesman of the Ridge Civic association, representing a number of improvement organizations.

Sixteen other speakers spoke in favor of the ordinance, although a number of them were insistent upon extensions or other improvements. They claimed to represent a population of more than 200,000.

Demands More Guarantees.

Mr. Skinner, who said that he would support the ordinance if it has adequate guarantees and securities, charged that the indeterminate permit is a perpetual franchise. "The two methods of terminating it, either by city or its permittee, are both practical impossibilities," he said. "The city is giving the new company a subway. The three per cent of the gross receipts to be paid by the company in compensation is to be used for the benefit of the company by building more subways.

"There is a lot of wind and water in the surface lines valuation on which the car riders must pay fares."

"You have been studying transit for 12 or 15 years," said Ald. Oscar Nelson. "Have you any plan for cutting down the capitalization?" asked Ald. Nelson. The attorney gave a negative reply.

Mr. Skinner suggested that the aldermen should have a disinterested financial adviser. He suggested that the presidents of the Universities of Wisconsin, Ohio, and Virginia select a financial adviser to tell the aldermen what the indeterminate franchise is worth, to give his opinion of the soundness of the $260,000,000 capitalization, and to estimate the consolidated car company's borrowing power under the proposed franchise.

"The franchise is worth not millions, but hundreds of millions," said Mr. Skinner.

The Chairman's Retort.

"You want us to go to Virginia to ask a man to select an adviser on Chicago financial matters," said Chairman Joseph B. McDonough. "We have sought the best advice obtainable. We first obtained the citizens' committee headed by James Simpson and Col. A. A. Sprague. Then we had the citizens' deadlock committee, which sought the views of bankers, financiers, and business men. We have listened to the bankers' committee; and yet you insinuate that we are not advised."

As a guarantee Mr. Skinner suggested that the new company put up $100,000,000 in securities with a trustee to insure building of extensions and making improvements.

"Every authority has advised us that the $200,000,000 for extensions cannot be raised, if the ordinance contains a forfeiture clause," commented Attorney Sidney S. Gorham for the citizens' committee. "We welcome any guarantee which will not interfere with getting the $200,000,000."

"If the company gets the $200,000,000 cannot the regulatory commission compel the company to make the improvements?" asked Attorney Allan T. Gilbert, also of the citizens' committee. "Cannot the regulatory commission under the statute compel action on extensions and betterments?"

Arvey Cites Market Figures.

"You say that the proposed franchise is worth hundreds of millions," said Ald. Jacob Arvey. "What do you say the 1907 franchises were worth?"

"I'm not a political economist on utilities and will not venture an opinion," replied Skinner.

"The investors, by their bids on securities, say that those properties are worth about 65 per cent of what has been invested in them."

"That is different from a perpetual franchise," retorted Skinner.

"If the indeterminate franchise is worth hundreds of millions, as you claim," went on Arvey, "then some permitee will be anxious to buy the lines, and the franchise can be terminated at any time. Now, where is this $100,000,000 guarantee fund to come from?"

"It will be put up in securities by the new company."

"Then the car riders must pay fares that a return can be made on that extra $100,000,000," said Arvey. "The public will be paying interest on $100,000,000 more than is invested in the transportation facilities."

"You will just be placing more burden on the car riders," added Ald. Nelson.

Other Delegations Appear.

Among those who offered no objection to the franchise were Ernest E. Ewald of the Milwaukee Avenue Chamber of Commerce, A. B. Rooney of the Northwest Federation of Improvement Clubs, T. M. Becker of the Woodlawn Business Men's association, W. D. Burke of the East Hamilton Park Property Owners' association, and George W. Underwood, a south side resident.

A delegation of seven others asked an extension of the "L" in Halsted street from the Normal Park terminal to 85th street. They claimed they were being neglected, overlooked and ignored, but offered their support to the ordinance. Among those in this delegation were Martin J. McNally, property owner; Henry Eidmann of the South Town Economist, and Henry M. Englestein.

A delegation from Wicker Park, for which Richard Fennerstedt, Dr. Nathaniel Ginsberg, Mayer Goldstein and A. Kaplan were speakers, protested against a proposed elevated line cutting over Milwaukee avenue between Division and Damen streets. They commended everything else in the ordinance.

The public hearings will be resumed Monday.

WINS DIVORCE

MRS. ANNE GILBERT.

Mrs. Anne Gilbert of the Copeland hotel was granted a divorce yesterday by Superior Judge Sabath from George Gilbert, a clothing salesman. The Gilberts were married on April 15, 1929, and separated last Aug. 15.

The first night of the two night presentation of Northwestern's student circus last evening was marked by a demonstration of television. Through coöperation with the Western Television company, 6312 Broadway, an audience at Dearborn observatory on the Evanston campus saw and heard speeches by Mayor Charles H. Bartlett of Evanston, Walter Dill Scott, president of the university; David Forgan, and Bryant Washburn, stage and screen star, who were at the company's studio. The demonstration will be repeated tonight and a "Miss Television" will be named in connection with the circus. The main performances of the circus are given in Patten gymnasium.

GERMAN ANIMAL LOVERS TO INSURE HEALTH OF PETS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 2.—German animal lovers are inaugurating an insurance system for quadrupeds. Annual contributions will fluctuate according to the value of the animal. They range from $4 to $6 for a horse and $4 to $10 for dogs, depending on what price one sets on the pet's health. This entitles repayment of the costs of veterinary treatment, medicines, and maintenance in a hospital.

The animals may also be sent, under the proposed policies, to "convalescent homes or simply for a change of climate to improve their health." The owner of the patient may select his own doctor.

BLAMES FIREBUG FOR 320 DEATHS IN OHIO PRISON

Marshal Believes Blaze Was Deliberately Set.

Columbus, O., May 2.—(AP)—Negligence was blamed for the Ohio penitentiary fire which took 320 convict lives April 24 in a report submitted today to Gov. Myers Y. Cooper by his inquiry board, while at the same time a report submitted by the state fire marshal, Ray R. Gill, expressed belief the origin of the fire was incendiary.

Negligence consisted in the alleged failure of prison officials to designate some one to take command of the situation arising from the fire inside the prison walls, the inquiry board's report said. Negligence caused the delay in opening cell doors behind which the doomed convicts were locked, while there also was serious delay in sending the fire alarm, the report said.

Give 3 Possible Causes.

Giving three possible causes for the fire as defective wiring, incendiarism and spontaneous combustion, the report said strong circumstantial evidence indicated the fire was started by temporary wiring.

The temporary wiring, while dangerous, was found to be in working order, the fire marshal's report said, however. Stressing the incendiarism idea, the marshal pointed out that oil and gasoline were available to convicts within the prison walls.

The fire marshal's report said there were no stoves in the building and "we are convinced that this fire was of incendiary origin and deliberately set by some unknown person."

Governor's Comment.

Gov. Cooper, commenting on the special board of inquiry's report, said there is beyond question merit in the board's conclusions, but that "retrospectively, these are but natural conclusions. However, it must not be lost sight of that there was another ever-present threat and hazard beyond the possibility of fire, and with possibilities of most serious consequences, that confronted the administrative officials of the penitentiary—namely: that of riot and wholesale escape."

Commenting on the reports of the fire marshal the governor said that, because of unusual facilities, the specialized personnel and technical knowledge available to the marshal's office, weight must be given to his observations. "At this time, when there is such a diversity of opinion existing, I do not feel safe to accept conclusively the theory that electrical wiring was the underlying cause of the fire, nor is such acceptance urged by the board of inquiry," the governor continued.

HOOVER PASSES UP TRIP TO HIS SUMMER CAMP

Washington, D. C., May 2.—(AP)—President Hoover has decided that he will not go to his summer camp on the Rapidan river in Virginia this week-end, as he had contemplated.

With a vote imminent in the senate early next week on the nomination of Judge John J. Parker to the Supreme court and the tariff bill pending in the house, the President determined to call off the trip, which would have been his second of the year to the Virginia retreat.

The President was further deterred by the fact that Mrs. Hoover has not sufficiently recovered from a wrenched back suffered several weeks ago to make the journey.

SHE SUES PINOCHLE PLAYER.

Mrs. Anna B. Lauer, 1620 Catalpa avenue, yesterday filed a bill for divorce in the Superior court against Irving L. Lauer, 4117 North Oakley avenue. She avers that her husband neglected her to play pinochle.

Aldermen to Hear Plea for Fire Control at Bridewell

Ald. Thomas F. Byrne (15th), chairman of the council committee on municipal institutions, yesterday announced that his group will meet on Tuesday to consider its findings in the survey of the Bridewell made by the aldermen on Thursday. A detailed report on the fire hazards at the House of Correction is being prepared by Chief Egan of the fire prevention bureau and will be in the hands of the committee at the session.

Chief Egan's report will recommend the substitution of steel trusses for the present wooden ones in the north and south cell houses, the placing of electric wiring in iron conduits, extension of the fire alarm system in the prison, and the provision of cisterns and fire hydrants to supply sufficient water to fight fires.

Wants Cell Doors Changed.

Ald. Byrne suggested a remedy for one structural defect without waiting for formal action by his committee. He wrote to Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe asking him to rehang the steel doors at the exits from the cell houses so that they will swing outward instead of inward, as at present.

To insure safety from fire for persons arrested by the police, Commissioner Russell ordered an inspection of all cellrooms in the police stations and the submission of reports as soon as possible showing what alterations may be needed to provide safeguards.

"Inspect all cellrooms," read the order, "and determine if all doors and windows that lead to fire escapes can be readily opened and if keys to the same are handy. See that cellrooms are properly cleaned. Instruct lockup keepers to notify desk sergeant of any fire or emergency, and the desk sergeant, in turn, will assign others to aid in removing prisoners to safety."

Question 1,134 Commitments.

Several members of the committee were informed yesterday that the 1,134 county prisoners now serving out fines or jail sentences in the Bridewell may have been committed there illegally. The belief arose when it was found that the council, on Jan. 5, 1929, passed an ordinance directing the superintendent of the Bridewell not to receive any prisoners committed there by the courts for any crime or misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment in the county jail.

The order was passed by the council as a result of a dispute with county officials concerning a bill of nearly $3,000,000 which the county owes the city for the boarding and care of such prisoners. In addition no contract has been entered into between the city and the county for this arrangement for the last ten years.

J. D. Hurley, deputy county jailer, said that by putting two men in a cell in the county jail, which is fireproof, the county could easily accommodate its prisoners who are now in the Bridewell. Lawyer members of the council expressed an opinion, however, that there is no legal way to transfer these prisoners once they have been committed.

To avoid sending any more prisoners to the Bridewell Judge Francis B. Allegretti of the Boys' court announced that he will send defendants to the county jail whenever possible by sentencing them on state rather than on city charges.

After an inspection of the Ephpheta School for the Deaf, 3150 North Crawford avenue, Chief Egan said conditions there are satisfactory.

Jail Closed to Floaters.

"The old homestead," as the Des Plaines street station has been termed for many years by hundreds of floaters who have been sheltered in the building, will be closed henceforth to lodgers, it was announced last night by Capt. John B. Enright. Fear that some of the men might start a fire prompted the captain to issue the order.

WOMAN TRAPPED INTO CONFESSION OF BURGLAR PLOT

Mrs. Irene Brooks, 26 years old, was held to the grand jury yesterday in $5,000 bonds by Judge John Sbarbaro in the Felony court after the witesses told him she was trapped into admitting that she helped a burglar to enter the home of Mrs. Florence McGinley, 1015 North Clark street.

"Two private detectives I hired were hidden listening," testified Mrs. McGinley, who lost jewelry worth $3,050 in the burglary on March 30. "I engaged Mrs. Brooks in a friendly conversation and told her I was anxious to get back my jewelry. She said, 'Maybe I can help you.' Later she told me she knew where the jewelry was and admitted she gave my keys to the burglar, whom she did not name."

The two detectives corroborated the story and Mrs. Brooks was held for accessory to burglary.

Grocer, 75, Nabs Robber After His Wife Is Held Up

SCHIRESON SUED FOR $20,000 BY SADYE HOLLAND

Miss Sadye Holland yesterday filed a $20,00 suit in the Circuit court against Henry J. Schireson, plastic surgeon, whose license was revoked recently by the state department of education and registration after a long hearing. Miss Holland asks the amount as the balance due her under a $40,000 settlement the plastic surgeon made with her after she had lost both legs as the result of an operation to correct bowlegs.

Attorney C. F. Rathbun of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, representing Miss Holland, declared that Schireson has refused to pay the balance because Miss Holland testified against him at the recent hearing. Schireson has paid $16,000 in cash and turned over a $4,000 mortgage. At the same time a foreclosure action was begun on the mortgage, held by the plastic surgeon's son, Benjamin Schireson. The elder Schireson has a petition for an injunction to restrain Miss Holland from collecting on the agreement pending.

First Assistant Attorney General Harry Ash, who obtained the revocation of the license in proceedings before the state board, has been asked to aid in collecting the balance. He announced that he will take whatever steps he deems advisable.

KILLED BY ELECTRIC CRANE.

WILKINS PLANS SUBMARINE DASH THROUGH N. POLE

Prepares for Spitzbergen to Alaska Trip.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—(AP)—His plans for a submarine trip through the top of the world to seek the meteorological secrets of the polar sea were unfolded today by Sir Hubert Wilkins, famous arctic explorer, to the American Geophysical union.

Dr. H. U. Sverdrup, noted Norwegian oceanographer, poined other scientists at the meeting in agreeing that the projected undertaking was feasible.

Seeks Permanent Base.

Leaving Spitzbergen during July, 1931, in a specially equipped submarine, Sir Hubert plans to go through the north pole to Alaska, about 2,000 miles away. The trip is expected to last two months. Not only will meteorological and magnetic observations be attempted in places where they never have been recorded before, Sir Hubert said, but efforts will be made to find a permanent base for observations some 700 miles northeast of Point Barrow.

Use of the submarine, he explained, is the only means for obtaining the information, as attempts by surface vessels and airplanes have proved futile.

Both the season and special mechanical features of the submarine combine to make the trip safe, he said. During the summer months, it was explained, there are numerous patches of open water through which the submarine can come up about every 25 miles for surface observations.

Flexible Trolley on Top.

The 115 foot vessel, however, will have battery strength to run 125 miles without replenishing. In addition, it will carry, Sir Hubert pointed out, equipment for use in bringing it through the ice should the need arise.

The submarine will be topped with a flexible trolley attached to graze the ice above as it moves along, forcing the ship to the surface, Sir Hubert explained, upon its reaching thin ice.

Should the vessel get caught under ice, he said, electrically driven drills capable of indefinite extension, revolving saws, a pressure apparatus for forcing the core from the drilled ice, a sleeve with hot electrical points, and chemicals to melt ice would be used.

FATHER GIVES UP $22,000 IN GEMS TO SAVE BOY IN HOME

Chief of Police Peterson of Winnetka yesterday disclosed a $22,000 gem robbery which occurred Thursday night in the home of Felix Lowy, vice president of the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company, at 140 Sheridan road, in the north shore suburb. The robber escaped with the loot after silencing Mr. Lowy by threatening to kill Gilbert, his 14 year old son.

Mr. Lowy had overheard the boy and the robber talking upstairs while Mr. and Mrs. Lowy were playing bridge with Mr and Mrs. John Dickson, 1115 Michigan avenue, Evanston. The father met his son and the gunman at the door of his son's room. Mr. Lowy told Gilbert to show the robber where the jewels were while he returned to the bridge game in the sun parlor to reassure his guests.

The loot included two diamond bracelets, one worth $14,000; a diamond pendant, a diamond set gold cigaret case, and an antique gold watch, selected by the bandit out of the jewel case to which the boy led him.

SHOT BY ROBBER PAIR.

James Cannon, 12428 South State street, was shot yesterday morning by two robbers who mistook him for the attendant in charge of a filling station at 123rd street and South Michigan avenue, when he could not comply with their demand for keys to the building. He was not seriously wounded.

POLAND CONVICTS 4 GERMAN HEADS OF SCOUT GROUP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 2.—A wave of indignation swept over Germany on receipt of news today that sentences to fines and imprisonment had been passed by the Polish military court at Bromberg on four directors of German Boy Scout groups in Poland.

The court held that the defendants were guilty of treason inasmuch as they had secretly organized the German scout group in Poland, then taken the boys to Germany, where they had been given military training. It was also charged that they had given Germany Polish military secrets.

Refusal to permit the defense to introduce an English Boy Scout leader to testify as to the political and military harmlessness of the German Boy Scout organization caused a bad impression here, which was further intensified by the fact that the proceedings were carried out in camera. The verdict will be appealed.

"Happy," Both Say

Pauline Frederick, stage and screen star, and her new husband, Hugh C. Leighton, 51 year old president of the Interstate company, which owns a chain of hotels and restaurants, spent the day in Chicago yesterday on their way to Los Angeles. They were married in New York Easter Sunday.

While Mrs. Leighton told reporters who greeted them in the La Salle street station how happy she was with her fourth husband, and how enthusiastic she was over being the stepmother of five of his children, her husband talked of her.

"She is the most sincere and the kindest woman in the world, and we are very happy," he said. "She wants to continue with her work, and why shouldn't she? Any one who is used to being busy becomes awfully unhappy if he or she has to quit being busy."

Mrs. Leighton said she was going to sign a contract with Belasco and Curren on her arrival in Los Angeles, adding, "I hate talkies. I don't expect to ever go back to the movies."

COAL TEAMSTERS CALL NEW STRIKE AT ALWART BROS.

Price Fight Is Blamed by Official of Company.

Another strike of coal teamsters hauling for the Alwart Brothers' Coal company was called yesterday. Paul Alwart of the coal company said the only reason he knows for the strike is that he has been advertising coal at prices less than are charged by members of the Chicago Retail Coal Merchants' association.

Mr. Alwart gave testimony before the grand jury last October to the effect that the coal teamsters' union, under the domination of George (Red) Barker, coöperated with the Coal Merchants' association in harassing independent dealers. The grand jury's inquiry was into the activities of Barker, who was released from the penitentiary through a writ and who had a previous record as a robber, gangster, and racketeer.

Employs Cartage Concern.

"But I have nothing to do with the employment of the drivers," the coal merchant said. "When I resigned from the association and started fighting it I had plenty of strikes so I ceased doing my own hauling and engaged the cartage concern of E. T. Hartje & Co., which employs only union labor.

"This morning Charles Rickett, one of the business agents of the union, came to our yards and called the men out. We had no warning, no notice, and no explanation of what grievance, if any, the union had. Neither had Mr. Hartje received any advance word of a threatened strike.

"In the afternoon John Sheridan, president of the teamsters' joint council, telephoned us that the strike was called because of violation of a union rule that if notice isn't given a teamster at night that he will not be needed next day he must be paid an hour's time if he reports and there is no work for him. Mr. Hartje said he had always complied with that rule."

Union Men Go to Prosecutor.

Sheridan and Rickett appeared at the state's attorney's office in the afternoon and Sheridan conferred for a few minutes with Assistant State's Attorney Homer Dodge, who said he told the union leaders to return today. Dodge said he had not sent for either Rickett or Sheridan, but that since last January there has been a standing order to the police department to take Rickett to the prosecutor's office for questioning. Rickett went there voluntarily yesterday, the prosecutor said.

Mr. Alwart said he was told the state's attorney's office had abandoned the investigation of affairs of the coal merchants' association and the coal teamsters' union because an important witness, Maurice Leeney, had been slain by his wife. Prosecutor Dodge said that Leeney, a coal trucking contractor hauling for the Marine Coal company, another independent concern that complained of union and merchants' joint opposition, was an important witness. But without consulting State's Attorney Swanson, Dodge added, he could not say whether the investigation had been discontinued or whether anything would come of it.

"Coal prices at the mines are lower than any time since 1906 and I have been giving our customers the benefit," Mr. Alwart said. "I advertised coal at $1 to $5 a ton less than prices quoted by others.

"Two years ago, after strikes had cost me $70,000 in one year, I was advised by Sheridan of the union to rejoin the association and I made application. But when I wouldn't agree to cease advertising my application was rejected.

"I am asking the state's attorney to do his duty in this matter and I want to be let alone by the merchants' association members and the union."

SUES TO STOP BIBLE READING AND HYMNS IN NEW YORK SCHOOLS

New York, May 2.—(AP)—A suit to restrain the city board of education from permitting the reading of the Bible and the singing of hymns in the public schools was filed today in Supreme court by Joseph Lewis, as a taxpayer. Among his counsel are Arthur Garfield Hays and Clarence Darrow. Lewis is president of the Free Thinkers' society of New York.

The complaint alleges that a section of the city charter which permits the Bible to be read violates the state constitution.

Lewis said the Bible used in the schools is the King James version, which, he said, is distinctly Protestant, as are the hymn books used, and therefore repugnant to children of other denominations and to those without religious affiliations.

Chinatown 'Mayor' Tries to Aid Friend; Lands in Cell

Venturing into the State street police station yesterday to intercede for a henchman arrested for pistol toting, Frank Moy, head of the On Leong tong and so-called mayor of Chinatown, was betrayed by a bulge on his hip, disarmed, and locked up on the same charge. Moy's protégé, Harry Lee, 202 Wentworth avenue, was later freed by Judge McCarthy when the police admitted they had found the pistol, not on his person but in a drawer. Moy procured his own release on a $300 bond and will be arraigned this morning.

Chicagoan Held After He Leaps from Train

Milwaukee, Wis., May 2.—[Special.]—Michael Brady, 62, 2729 Wilcox street, Chicago, was being held a police prisoner at the county Emergency hospital tonight after he had jumped off a passenger train before it pulled into the Milwaukee road train sheds. Brady received a fractured right leg. Reasons for his detention were not given.

JURY REPORTS BALLOT FRAUDS IN 42D WARD

Asks Further Inquiry on Primary Votes.

The April grand jury in its final report submitted yesterday to Chief Justice D. J. Normoyle of the Criminal court cited election law violations at the recent primary, particularly in the Forty-second ward, and recommended that the May grand jury complete an investigation. The jurors reported that they opened the ballot boxes in some precincts and found discrepancies between the number of ballots actually cast and the way they were counted and certified by the precinct election boards.

The count made by the jurors of the ballots in the 26th precinct of the Forty-second ward was cited in the report as an example of what was found.

Jury Reports Its Findings.

The following table shows the grand jury's findings in that precinct on Republican candidates for the general assembly, giving the candidates, the number of votes found in the ballot box for each, the number of votes certified by the judges and clerks of election for each candidate, and the discrepancies:

Candidate.	Actual votes.	Votes Certified.	Discrepancy.
*Kirk	71	32	39
*Joyce	94	154	60
Durso	120	75	45
Turner	144	435	291
Woodward	151½	75	76½
Stone	40½	..	40½

*Kirk and Joyce were candidates for the state senate from the 29th district and the others named were candidates for the house of representatives.

On the basis of the police returns Joyce won over Kirk by about 230 votes and Durso and Woodward also won. The officials canvass of the vote is still progressing and a recount in the senatorial contest is in prospect.

Complaint is made by the grand jury that in one precinct only two judges and one clerk were appointed and that a 21 year old judge filled the vacancies by appointing two brothers. Now none of the officials can be found, the jury says.

Other Irregularities Charged.

In another instance it is charged that a sister of "one of the beneficiaries of the frauds hereinafter mentioned sat upon the ballots or held them in her lap to protect them from 'thieves,' who, according to a rumor circulated by her brother, were about to steal them." In this precinct, it is charged, eighteen of the ballots were tampered with in favor of the brother of the woman, who was a candidate for the legislature.

The Evanston Sunday movie question was also taken up by the grand jury. The report charges that the polls officials of Evanston demonstrated a "woeful unfamiliarity with the election law." The jury tabulated the votes cast in one precinct and says that 199 of the ballots cast in that precinct were "questionable."

CRIMINAL COURT.

BANDITS WORK HOURS ON SAFE AND GET NOTHING

Five bandits, three of them armed with sawed-off shotguns and two with revolvers, spent three hours early this morning cracking the safe of the Reliable Packing company, 1440 West 47th street, and obtained no loot, according to night employés of the place. The robbers gained entrance by a ruse. One of them showed a star to Walter Main, 5959 S. Mozart street, the engineer on duty, and said he had just made an arrest. He wanted to use the telephone. Main admitted him, and the other bandits followed him in.

The engineer and five other employés were locked in a closet while the robbers knocked the combination from the safe. The strong box, which was inside the safe and believed to contain a large sum, was found intact after the robbers left.

IT'S SPRING, SHE'S RED HAIRED, PETS; COP IS SLAPPED

Miss Louise Adams, 25 years old, 7810 Bennett avenue, has red hair. Also she likes Bernard Speck, 34 years old, 4213 Washington boulevard, and this is spring. Which may explain why Miss Adams slapped the face and kicked the shins of Policeman Michael McCourt when he found the couple sparking in an automobile at 41st street and Lake Park avenue, and ordered them to go home. After that they went to the lockup in the Hyde Park station for a time. The disorderly conduct charge against them will be heard in Wabash avenue court this morning.

TAX AMENDMENT SLATED AS FIRST ASSEMBLY TASK

Predict Chicago Relief Bills Will Wait.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Predictions were made yesterday that when the general assembly meets in special session on May 12 a clear right of way for at least the first week will be given to Gov. Emmerson's plan for the adoption of a resolution for the revision of the revenue article of the state constitution.

Two reasons were given for this forecast. One was a report that the administration desires to see the tax law revision amendment considered without entanglement with other subjects before the session. The other was that the score or more of bills being drafted by the citizens' committee for Chicago and Cook county financial relief will not be ready for introduction when the session convenes.

Some of the reports of the governor's attitude were that he hopes and expects to see the constitutional resolution passed by a two-thirds vote of each house in the first week of the session, before the Chicago bills are considered.

Strawn in Washington.

Accurate information as to the time required to put the citizens' committee bills into final form is not obtainable. Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the committee, is in Washington attending the meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce. He will not be back in Chicago for several days. In the meantime attorneys working on the bills are said to have encountered serious complexities in some of the legislation required and the drafts still are to be submitted to the several taxing bodies for whose relief they are designed.

Even if the measures are in proof form when Chairman Strawn returns next Wednesday or Thursday, it is understood that at least one meeting of his entire committee will be held to consider approving them, and thereafter must come consideration by the city, the county, the school board, and the sanitary district.

Doubt is expressed that these processes can be completed before May 12, especially since some of the taxing bodies may have ideas different from the Strawn proposals. City Controller Schmidt already has prepared a plan and the school board has discussed submitting proposals outside the scope of the citizens' committee program.

Revenue Commission to Report.

So far as can be learned the legislative revenue commission, which has held numerous meetings and hearings on the question of the projected constitutional amendment, probably will have its report ready for the opening day of the special session.

"We are in substantial agreement on the principle of the amendment required for adequate solution of the state's taxing problems," said the chairman of the commission, State Senator Arthur A. Huebsch, "but neither the text of the actual amendment nor the wording of the report has been adopted by the commission. The final drafting probably will be completed this week."

Senator Huebsch is the only Cook county legislator on the commission, but it includes Harrison B. Riley of the Chicago Title and Trust company. Those two and Herbert S. Hicks, former Rockford senator, now representing the State Association of Real Estate Boards, were appointed by Gov. Emmerson. One member, State Senator Richard J. Barr, was appointed by Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling. Two, Representatives Le Roy M. Green of Rockford and Alexander J. Wilson of Cairo, were appointed by Speaker Shanahan.

Chicago in Minority Position.

Chicago representation is a minority on the commission and the forecasts have been that its report will present the same sort of proposed amendment as was defeated in the last regular session of the assembly last year. In that battle the Cook county legislators stood as a unit against granting unrestricted power in tax imposition to the legislature as it is now constituted on the apportionment basis of 1901.

Because of the indications that the proposed amendment will be submitted and considered ahead of the citizens' committee bills, Chicago members of the legislature now predict an early deadlock in the special session.

Hotel Wars on Lipstick Stains to Save Towels

The razor blade has been supplanted by the lipstick as the most destructive enemy of hotel towels, according to hotel managers and laundry operators. It is necessary to put towels through three cleansing processes to remove the lipstick color, which soon wears out the towels. The Edgewater Beach hotel yesterday placed notices explaining this damage from cosmetics and notifying guests that laundry so stained would be charged to their bills.

FIRST 1928 TAX BILLS SENT OUT; SPEED UP WORK

Bank Pays $218,877 on Personal Property.

The first 1928 tax bills were mailed yesterday by County Treasurer Harding. A total of 702 south town personal property bills, representing $259,924 in taxes on an assessed valuation of $5,046,948, were sent to taxpayers. The bills are the first the county has sent out in two years.

One bill was sent by special messenger to the Central Trust company. A half hour later J. E. Lindquist, vice president of the company, paid the first 1928 tax bill of $218,877, which is the levy on a personalty tax valuation of $1,468,877. The bill listed two items, one of $64,378 against the Bank of America and the other for $154,501 against the Central Trust company. The two institutions have merged since the assessments were made.

First Bill is Mailed.

The first bill was mailed to P. Aliano, 2928 Princeton avenue. It was for $12.88 on an assessed valuation of $250. The first real estate tax bills will be sent out in the townships of Lemont, River Forest and Oak Park. These are to be turned over to the township collectors Monday.

Within two weeks the first distribution of tax money will be made to local governments. At the end of that period, Mr. Harding predicted that $5,000,000 in tax money will be in his coffers. As the money is turned over to the tax spenders the 1928 tax warrants are to be taken up, so that the governments will disburse the money as soon as it is given to them, he said.

The aggregate of taxes for 1928 will reach approximately $221,000,000, County Clerk Sweitzer said. In 1927 the total was $240,853,000. Of this only $200,836,000 was actually collected.

Two more country township rates were released by County Clerk Sweitzer. The base rate for Barrington is $2.26 per $100 of assessed valuation. The rate was the same in 1927. To this must be added the rate of the school district in which the taxpayer lives. There are eleven school districts in the township, with rates varying from 42 cents to $2.00. There are two base rates in the township of Hanover. One of $2.04 for the village of Bartlett, and one of $2.56 for Elgin. In 1927 the Bartlett rate was $2.07 and that for Elgin was $2.64.

More Money to Be Collected.

In Hanover there are eleven school districts, with rates varying from $1.74 to 21 cents. Both townships will realize more in taxes in 1928 than they did in 1927 because of increased valuations. Barrington reduced its levy so that it will have only slightly more than the 1927 revenue.

The board of review yesterday released figures on bank stock assessments. The board's final figure for 1928 is $103,478,600, or $70,409.15 less than that fixed by the board of assessors. In 1927 the assessors fixed a total of $261,934,750, which the reviewers cut by $152,990,050 to $108,944,700.

Among the banks which secured reductions are:

	B. of A.	B. of R.
Central Trust	$ 6,600,000	$ 3,000,000
Morris Plan	1,260,000	315,000
Chicago Trust	2,640,000	1,896,000
City State bank	380,000	100,000
First National bank	17,250,000	12,150,000
Foreman National	6,250,000	1,550,000
Foreman T. and Sav.	2,000,000	800,000
Harris T. and Sav.	6,200,000	4,080,000
Cont. Ill. Bank and Trust	35,000,000	24,500,000
Ill. Merchants Trust [combined]	23,250,000	13,500,000

Chairman William H. Weber explained that the cuts were made to bring capital stock assessments into line with the 37 per cent equalization factor on real estate. Formerly capital stock was assessed at 60 per cent.

FRENCH DENOUNCE MUSSOLINI'S GREAT NAVY BUILDING PLANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 2.—The tentative negotiations for a naval understanding with Italy have struck a snag. This is reported in official circles here.

Maurice de Beaumarchais, French ambassador to Rome, who is on a short leave in Paris, has given Foreign Minister Briand a report on the situation. It is understood the report was gloomy.

The government today slipped off the muzzle from the French press, which had been ordered to make no comment on the launching of the Italian warships last Sunday, and Le Temps today, in an officially inspired article, denounces Premier Mussolini's ambitious naval program.

The article hints that if the Italians continue to build, the French will do likewise, upsetting the equilibrium which is the basis of the recently conceived three power treaty. This is seen as a wily move by M. Briand to force the British to bring pressure on the Italians.

10 NEW TREATY CRUISERS TO BE FIGHTING FURIES

U. S. Makes Drastic Changes in Design.

will be launched May 12 at the naval arsenal of Yokosuka, principal base of the Japanese navy.

This will be the most elaborate naval fête of its kind in Japan since the Washington conference ended the launching of capital ships, and Yokosuka will be aglitter with the gold braid and decorations of the highest dignitaries of the navy and other branches of the imperial government.

Fifth of Her Class.

The Takao, laid down in April, 1927, is the fifth of her class. The sixth of this sisterhood, the Atago, is scheduled for launching at the Kure naval base, June 15. She also was started in April, 1927. Both should be completed within a year after launching.

Although the London conference succeeded in placing relatively low limits for the American, British and Japanese cruiser fleets, the London treaty means for Japan, as for the United States, an actual increase of her present cruiser tonnage. Hence, the construction program which the Japanese navy had in hand when the conference was called has gone forward without slackening. That program's provisions for cruisers carrying eight inch guns will be completed in full, giving Japan the 108,400 tons to which the treaty limits her in this category.

Keep Shipyards Going.

Even before this building is finished Japanese shipyards, saved from five years of idleness by concessions obtained by Japan for that express purpose, will begin work on 50,955 tons of light cruisers which the London agreement permits Japan to place on the ways before the end of 1936.

Japan's 108,400 tons of cruisers carrying eight inch guns will be made up of eight ships already commissioned [the Furutaka, Aoba, Kako, and Kinugasa, 7,000 tons each, and the Nachi, Myoko, Ashigara, and Haguro, 10,000 tons each; the Takao and Atago, and two more 10,000 tonners now in their second year of construction; the Chokai and Maya, which should be finished before the end of 1932].

The launching of the Takao and the Atago will emphasize the fact that Japan will retain a lead over the United States in big cruisers until 1934 at the earliest. America has completed only two ships of this category —the Salt Lake City and the Pensacola—has six others launched or ready for launching and has two more started.

New Cruiser Is Speedy.

The Takao class cruisers compare favorably with any other 10,000 ton cruisers now afloat. Their designed speed, 33 knots, exceeds that of the American or British cruisers, while their ten eight inch guns apiece make them the equal of any in hitting power.

The Takao and Atago, like all their sisters, are named for mountains rich in religious and historical associations, the former for a temple crowned eminence northwest of Tokio and the latter for one of Kyoto's famous ring of seven hills. Relics from the temples on the name mountains are enshrined aboard each of these ships in miniature sanctuaries at which the bluejackets and their officers worship the national deities.

DOCTOR SUES HIS WIFE'S PARENTS FOR LOST LOVE

Dr. Joseph Byrl, 1800 West Chicago avenue, yesterday filed a $125,000 alienation of affections suit against Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Olszewski, 3936 North Lockwood avenue, who are the parents of Byrl's wife, Jeanette. The Byrls were married on Oct. 22, 1927, and separated last March 22, when the wife filed a suit for separate maintenance, charging that her husband forced her to scrub his office floor.

The declaration of the suit, drawn by Attorney George L. Quilici, states that the married life of the Byrls was happy until the parents turned Mrs. Byrl against her husband by telling her that she should have married a wealthier man. They bestowed on her gifts of jewelry and luxuries in an effort to persuade her, the bill states.

"The defendants suggested that her marriage had robbed her of material advantages commensurate with her beauty and charm," the bill says. "They said that the bestowal of her hand on the doctor was as the classical casting of pearls before swine and that her loveliness should have procured for her a husband of great wealth."

Whalen Finds Red Plot, but Reds Call Document False

New York, May 2.—(AP)—Police Commissioner Grover Whalen made public today documents, variously described as authentic and as forgeries, purporting to give evidence that the Communist International of Moscow was financing riots and strikes in the United States, fomented by emissaries sent here for the purpose.

Photostatic copies of the documents, which were seized by New York police, were furnished to newspapers with translations with a statement in which Mr. Whalen evidently accepted them as authentic. Even when shown statements by two prominent Russians in this country who were mentioned in the papers, he replied only that the documents were very definite and complete and he was "afraid they must speak for themselves."

One of the documents was a letter on the stationery of the Amtorg Trading corporation, official purchasing agent for the soviet, which has done millions of dollars' worth of business in this country, and was signed with the name of G. Grafpen, an Amtorg official.

It listed 30 persons said to have been sent here as soviet agents who would be "hard to replace" if they were recalled, naming among them Peter A. Bogdanov, recently elected chairman of Amtorg, and Boris E. Skvirsky, director of the soviet information bureau at Washington.

Another document purported to be a mandate sent to Grafpen from Moscow, appointing him to take general charge here of the soviet "secret criminal police" in this country in cooperation with Bogdanov.

Bogdanov in New York and Skvirsky in Washington both issued statements in which they asserted that the documents were forgeries.

Bogdanov insisted that Amtorg was purely commercial and added that an investigation had been instigated in an endeavor to run down the forgers so that they might be prosecuted. Skvirsky said he had information that the documents had been offered for sale for publication before they came into the hands of police, and expressed the opinion that they were the work of czarist emigres.

SIX ARMY FLYERS JUMP BY 'CHUTE; 2 STICK TO SHIP

Fresno, Cal., May 2.—(AP)—Six army aviators were forced to make parachute leaps and two others made a forced landing in tri-motored army plane in a vineyard near Oleander, eight miles southwest of here late today when one of the propellers broke. None of the flyers was injured.

LAWYER ATTACKS FOUNDLING'S SUIT FOR BIRTHRIGHT

Although his parentage was not denied, the suit of Walter George Thomae, an elevator operator, against Eli and Emma Rothschild to establish his name and birthright was denounced yesterday by Attorney Jacob Rothschild, brother of the defendant. In their Evergreen Park bungalow Mr. and Mrs. Eli Rothschild refused to discuss the reappearance of the young man who says he is their son, born 23 years ago, before they were married.

Thomae first learned that he was not the son of Julius and Margaret Thomae, 3456 Janssen avenue, when he sought a birth certificate to establish his eligibility for promotion in the National Guard. He found that he had been adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Thomae in 1911 after his parents had sent him to the Illinois Home and Aid society.

"From a standpoint of moral obligation," said Attorney Rothschild, "I was inclined to champion the boy's claim until it became apparent to me that the suit is an attempt to get money."

Barratt O'Hara, attorney for Thomae, said, however, that the young man was asking nothing except to be recognized by his parents and declared their heir.

Eli Rothschild is superintendent of the Evergreen cemetery. Thomae has been an elevator operator at 109 North La Salle street, where Attorney Rotschild has his office.

SPEED RELIEF TO STORM AREAS AFTER 23 DIE

$5,000,000 Damage in 9 Midwest States.

Red Cross and National Guard units moved last night from metropolitan centers to relieve the distress caused by the cyclonic disturbance of Thursday night, which, covering nine central states and attended by tornadoes, killed twenty-three persons, injured scores, and caused an estimated $5,000,000 damage.

The death toll, as compiled last night from Associated Press reports and other sources, was as follows: Norborne, Mo., 5 dead; Tekamah, Neb., 4; Lake City, Minn., 3; Duluth, 2; Antioch, Ill., 1; Kickapoo, Kas., 2; Cicero, 1; Rockford, 1; Galesburg, 1; Lawton, N. D., 1; Westby, Wis., 1; and Russell, Ia., 1. Nine of the dead were women and one an infant.

The gyrating black funnels, characteristic of tornadoes, struck the four widely separated villages of Westborne, Norborne, Russell, and Tekamah. Reports at the Chicago weather bureau indicated that, outside of these four places, the wind was a strong, steady gale, not a tornado.

Nebraska Town Suffers Most.

Red Cross workers from the central states headquarters at St. Louis were at Tekamah last night and their early reports indicated the havoc there was worse than elsewhere. The Texamah American Legion post requested the Nebraska National Guard to stand ready to aid, and Col. R. G. Douglas, executive of the Nebraska veterans' aid, left Omaha last night to arrange for tent shelter for the homeless.

The dead at Tekamah were John Houser, Albert Brimley, Mrs. William Tuttle, and the 2 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hans C. Anderson, who died in his mother's arms as their home was rent by the twister. Several hundred of the villagers were homeless, and the total damage to property in the hamlet was estimated at $150,000.

Five Killed in Town.

At Norborne, Mo., the tornado cut a swath 300 yards wide across the center of the village, leveling 25 dwellings and seriously injuring 14 persons in addition to the five killed. The dead were Mrs. Gertrude Wright and her 17 year old son; Charles Storm, and Lillian Wells and her 5 year old sister, Mary.

The two killed at Kickapoo, Kas., Lawrence Kern, a farmer, and his wife, were carried a mile by the wind and flung headlong in soft earth, where relief workers found them. Kern, his head buried in the ground, was suffocated. His wife died in a hospital at Leavenworth, Kas.

Twelve cottages were leveled at Antioch, Channel lake, and Loon lake, in northwestern Lake county. Richard Shannon, whose cottage collapsed upon him, fracturing his ribs, which punctured his lungs, died of his injuries.

Three Drowned in Auto.

A cloudburst, sending a wall of water down a ravine, inundated a stalled automobile and drowned two women and a child at Lake City, Minn. A farmer was struck by lightning at Lawton, N. D., and at Duluth an automobile skidded into a lamp post during the storm, killing the two women occupants.

With telephone and telegraph service disrupted in Wisconsin, the state was without detailed reports of the storm damage. A tornado gyrating out of the west, struck and killed Archer Funk, 9 years old, farmer's son, at Westby. Two telephone operators, Mrs. Palmer Jefson and Miss Sarah Byers, were hurled through a window of the Westby telephone exchange and seriously injured.

Twenty-eight cows and three horses were killed on the farm of Ernest Peacock, near Kenosha, where a barn collapsed. At Silver Lake a garage and the automobile in it were lifted off a concrete foundation and set down in a swamp 100 feet away.

The wind swept high waves over cottages on the shore of Lake Winnebago at Neenah, Wis. Neenah was without lights for a half hour, lightning having struck the city power plant.

Four cows were killed on the farm of Frank Agathen near Waukesha, Wis. At the Waukesha county asylum, a barn which workers were preparing to wreck was flattened by the wind.

The wind which struck Chicago and western suburbs, attended by hail and a downpour of rain about 1 a. m. yesterday, was not a tornado. Forecaster Donnel sent observers to Beverly Hills and Cicero to view the wrecked roofs and broken trees. They reported the wind was a strong gale.

Worker Killed in Cicero.

The Cicero victim of the storm was Michael Keaty, 35 years old, 5618 South Troy street, an electrical worker. While repairing a storm damaged insulator at the plant of the National Malleable Steel Castings company, 1400 South 52d avenue, Cicero, he came in contact with a high tension wire, fell 40 feet and suffered internal injuries, resulting in his death an hour later at Frances Willard hospital.

Fears were held last night for an aviator and a score of sailors. An army flyer, Lieut. Richard E. Cobb, who took off from Bellville, Ill., at 4 p. m. Thursday for Selfridge field, Mich., had not been heard from. Officials at Selfridge field expressed fear that his plane had been wrecked and that he had been killed or injured in the storm.

The freighter Munising of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company was aground on a shoal a quarter mile north of Parisienne Island light, with Lake Superior still rough from the storm. Two other ore carriers and a lighter went to the Munising but were unable to get close enough to attach lines and were forced to run behind Parisienne island to ride out the storm. The Munising's crew was believed to be aboard.

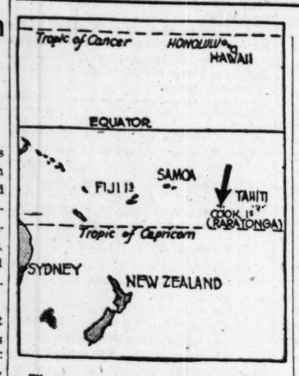
FROM THE COOK ISLANDS



The sender of this letter, William A. Calwell of Raratonga, Cook islands, is the police inspector of the archipelago. Raratonga is the largest of the nine islands which comprise the group and is 21 miles in circumference. It is distinguished by the majestic Raratonga volcano, rising 2,920 feet, the highest point in the islands.

The Cook islands, sometimes known as the Hervey archipelago, are a British possession, governed directly from New Zealand through a resident commissioner. Raratonga, Atiu, Hervey, and Mangaia are the most important members of the group. Raratonga lies just within the tropic of Capricorn and is on the mail route from San Francisco to Sydney. The population is made up of about 3,000 native Polynesians and 100 Europeans. Their only communication with the outside world is the mail steamer, which touches the island every four weeks.

The islands take their name from their discoverer, Capt. James Cook, British explorer, who came upon them in his third cruise through southern waters in April, 1777. They became a British protectorate in 1888 and were formally annexed in October, 1900. A native legislature has existed since 1890, but its enactments are subject to the approval of the resident commissioner.

The natives, a peaceable, happy people, formerly were cannibals, but were converted in 1823 by the famous John Williams of the London Missionary society, who made Raratonga the headquarters of his labors in the south seas. The majority of them now wear European dress and dwell in stone houses. The climate of the islands would be admirable for settlement, but the lack of good harbors and the fact that they are lined by coral reefs make them dangerous.

STATE RELIES ON INFERENCES TO CONVICT KOHLER

Sheboygan, Wis., May 2.—[Special.]—Gov. Walter J. Kohler's trial, which has been characterized by his friends as a "progressive pink tea party," became a grim battle of legal and political wit today.

George Gilkey, leader of the conservative Republicans in Wisconsin and manager of the campaign which put the manufacturer in office, was on the witness stand in Judge Gustav Gehrz's court nearly all day under fire of the prosecutors hired by the La Follette opposition.

While they succeeded in tangling Mr. Gilkey rather deeply at times in his own previous testimony, given in the John Doe investigation of this case in Milwaukee, the stalwart chief took and maintained the stand that he ran his own campaign and that Mr. Kohler, as a candidate, did not direct any of the expenditures made by the committee.

The state was no nearer to showing a direct "agency" at the end of the day than when Mr. Gilkey took the stand. The prosecution, however, is satisfied with the inferences that may be drawn by the jury concerning the connection between the committee labors in Milwaukee and the political activities in Kohler.

DEPUTY SHOOTS A MOONSHINER; WARRANT IS OLD

Marion, Va., May 2.—(AP)—George Gullion, 35, Smyth county deputy sheriff, today shot and killed Charles Gullion, 50, said by officers to be a moonshiner, after the latter had wounded the deputy. The two men, though bearing the same name, are not related.

Deputy Gullion and Sheriff Sam Dillard went to Nebo, 20 miles northeast of Marion, to serve a warrant on Charles Gullion, charging him with operating a still. The warrant was more than a year old.

At a coroner's inquest, it was decided that Deputy Gullion was justified in shooting.

EDITOR DECRIES SURPRISE ATTACK ON FREE PRESS

Col. McCormick Tells Iowans of Fight.

Des Moines, Ia., May 2.—(AP)—The right to a free press was so thoroughly won by American founders that a century has gone by without serious attacks on it, Col. Robert R. McCormick, president of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE company, told the Iowa Press association meeting in a message from him read here tonight.

Col. McCormick was unable to attend the convention because of illness, but his prepared speech was read by John W. Carey of the Sioux City Journal.

"It has remained for the present period to witness a recrudescence of agitation to shackle the press," Col. McCormick said. He was speaking against the Minnesota "gag law," which would permit any judge, on motion of a district attorney, to suppress any newspaper which he believes has offended.

Progress of Human Rights Traced.

"The battle for a free press was fought side by side with, or a little ahead of, the battle for human freedom," he said. "In the history of the institutions under which we live, the nadir of freedom was reached with the Norman conquest. When the Normans had secured the sway in England, the common man had no rights whatsoever. His very existence was at the whim of the conqueror. He could own no land. He could own no property. He could not own his own labor. He had no right to think. Such were human rights between 1066 and 1100 A. D."

Thence Col. McCormick traced the idea of a free press down to today. The American republic, he said, saw few attacks on the press after the time of Jefferson. Recent efforts to muzzle newspapers, including THE TRIBUNE, were next briefly reviewed.

Court's Power Indicated.

"In the case of Minnesota," the colonel continued, "the fact remains that, under the Minnesota law, it would be within the power of a court to suppress the newspaper, even though all the testimony in favor of the newspaper were correct and all the testimony against the newspaper were perjured. If you are called before a judge without a jury, you cannot test the judge for prejudice; you cannot ask whether he belongs to a hostile faction; you cannot investigate whether great age has impaired his faculties.

"Unless so insane as to be adjudged incompetent, or unless impeached and convicted of an act of turpitude, he may dispose of your property, he may coerce your newspaper, he may destroy all that has been gained for a free press and a free people for the last four hundred years, if the Minnesota statute is allowed to stand."

LADY MARY HEATH'S RENO DIVORCE SUIT UP FOR HEARING TODAY

Reno, Nev., May 2.—[Special.]—Lady Mary Heath, noted aviatrix, today arrived in Reno from the east and tomorrow the court will hear her suit against Sir James Heath of London for divorce. She established residence here some time ago and has been in the east since, Heath having refused to be served until recently.

GETTING SPANKED ISN'T WIFE'S JOB, SAYS ALTA SHORR

Morry's Hand Too Heavy, Dancer Tells Judge.

A spanking administered to Alta W. Shorr, ballet dancer, by her husband a few months after their marriage was an indignity she could not bear, Mrs. Shorr testified yesterday in Judge Michael Feinberg's court.

She is suing for a divorce from Maurice Shorr, 25 years old, secretary of the Cosmopolitan Investment company. Mrs. Shorr charges her husband with cruelty.

Her Story of the Spanking.

"Morry was in the bathroom shaving and I asked him to close the door," she said. "He got mad and came out and spanked me."

"Was it a regular old fashioned spanking?" asked Judge Feinberg.

"Yes," the witness replied. "And a hard one. It hurt for several days."

She declared that on several occasions her husband pinched her arm during altercations and then refused to speak to her for several days.

They Discuss Success.

"During our honeymoon in San Francisco," she said, "we were talking about moving picture stars and I remarked that if I had kept at my profession I might have made a success of it. Morry told me I'd never amount to anything and then he slapped me."

Shorr is contesting the divorce. He has instituted a suit for $50,000 against his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Warsawsky, 2000 Lincoln Park West, charging alienation of affections.

NORRIS ASSAILS JUDGE PARKER IN LONG SPEECH

Labor Decision Is Cited by Senator.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.] — Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.] held the senate floor for more than two hours today with a bitter attack on the appointment of Federal Judge John J. Parker to the United States Supreme court, marked principally by a vehement denial that the fight on Parker is in reality a "socialistic" attempt to curb the high tribunal.

The Nebraska radical, chairman of the judiciary committee, insisted that no one has greater respect for the Supreme court that he has, but that Parker's decision in the "yellow dog" contract case showed the North Carolina jurist to be a "conservative" who, if confirmed, would strengthen the present conservative majority of the court.

Opposed to His Ideas.

"I am moved in my opposition to Parker because I want to preserve that great judical tribunal," asserted Norris at the outset, "and keep it on a higher plane than in my judgment it would be if we permitted it to be filled with men who have one idea of wealth, big business, combinations, and the virtue of large aggregations of wealth. I am opposed to Judge Parker because I do not believe in his ideas."

"This may not be a logical way," he declared, "it may not be a good way, but as I see it, it is the only way—to pass upon these judges before we give them an opportunity to pass on the people of the country. It may not be the desirable procedure. Perhaps it would be better if we could overrule a decision of the Supreme court by legislative enactment.

"But everybody knows we cannot do that. Everybody knows that that is not a practical proposition—now, at least. We have not the constitutional authority to do it, and it would be perfectly futile to try to get the constitutional authority."

Fess Talks on Injunctions.

Senator Simeon Fess [Rep., O.], most active champion of Parker in the senate, followed Norris to remind the opposition that after all the judiciary is bound to abide by the laws passed by congress.

"Senator Norris," he said, "inveighs continuously against the power of injunction and I raised the question whether the remedy for what he is trying to reach is not in legislation rather than judicial decision. If an injunction should not be issued, here is the place to make the change. It is the law, written into the statutes by congress and signed by the President. If we want to eliminate, there is one way to do it. The law making body that made it, is the one to repeal it. It is not logical to ask the court, an interpreting body, to do what the lawmaking body refuses to do."

More Oratory in Sight.

One more day and possibly two of oratory, to be resumed Monday, remain before the final roll call on Parker's confirmation can be had. Latest unofficial polls show that the senate is almost evenly divided with opposition leaders claiming that the nomination will be rejected by a margin of from two to four votes.

Boys' and Girls' Drinking Increases N. Y. Mental Ills

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—Drinking by boys and girls is a material although delayed factor in increasing alcoholic and mental cases, Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, said today. Reports from institutions for the first quarter of 1930 showed that 24 per cent more persons were treated for these causes than a like period last year.

Baltimore Gains 56,095.

Baltimore, Md., May 2.—(AP)—Baltimore has a 1930 population of 789,921, according to the enumeration which was completed today. The figures give the city a gain of 56,095 in the last ten year period, the 1920 census placing the population at 733,826. The gain was 7.1 per cent.

BANDIT WORKS ALL DAY, BUT HE GETS HIS LOOT

An amiable stranger sidled up to Sam Jacobson, a cheese jobber of 1019 North Francisco avenue, as he was loading his truck from a commission house platform at Randolph and Des Plaines streets yesterday noon.

Jacobson was interested in the stranger's proposition on a sale of cheese, but explained he was extremely busy, so the man rode with him all afternoon, assisting him with deliveries and elaborating on the attractions of his proposal. At 5:30 p. m., his day's work done, Jacobson rode with the stranger to a warehouse at 123 West Kinzie street to inspect the bargain stock.

"How much can you take at my price?" the stranger asked when they had stepped to the door of the warehouse. As Jacobson took out his $500 bank roll the stranger drew a pistol, relieved him of the cash, and fled.

Florida Streams Swollen; Pastor's Wife Is Drowned

Okeechobee, Fla., May 2.—(AP)—Several streams flowing into Lake Okeechobee, swollen by unprecedented spring rains, have gone out of their banks, flood waters covering fields in some places to a depth of more than three feet.

Mrs. Will Austin, wife of the pastor of the Church of God here, drowned today when her automobile ran through a railing on the Kissimmee river bridge and dropped into water 18 feet deep. Mr. Austin, who was driving, crawled to safety.

$10,000 BUILDING 'GIFT' STORY TOLD TO GRAND JURY

Jules K. Masse, architect, was granted immunity from prosecution yesterday by Chief Justice D. J. Normoyle of the Criminal court, and he went before the grand jury to repeat the testimony he had given in a civil suit Monday in Judge Marcus Kavanagh's court. In this suit Masse testified he was told that a $10,000 present would have to be made to Christian P. Paschen's campaign fund in order to get a certain building permit.

The testimony given by Masse, however, was reported to be of no particular benefit to the prosecutors because the grand jury passed out of existence immediately after he had testified. Assistant State's Attorneys Homer Dodge and Grenville Beardsley will have to go through the same routine next week, providing Masse appears, to get the testimony before a jury which would be empowered to act.

Refuses to Testify.

Masse made his first appearance before the grand jury Thursday afternoon and refused to answer certain questions asked of him. He was ordered by Judge Normoyle to answer the questions, but failed to do so and was ordered back yesterday.

When taken before the jury yesterday morning Masse repeated his former performance by refusing to answer on the "grounds of self-incrimination."

Assistant State's Attorney Albert Woll then drew up a petition under the special bribery immunity statute and it was presented to Judge Normoyle. The judge signed the petition granting Masse immunity from any possible prosecution growing out of any testimony he would give and ordered him again before the jury. Even then, according to reports from the grand jury room, Masse was not a willing witness and it took the prosecutors several hours to get him to repeat the civil suit testimony.

Masse said that the talk about a total of $50,000 having been paid for permits by his employers, the Roy F. France company, architects, was something not within his personal knowledge. He said his information on this subject was "purely hearsay." Masse at the conclusion of his testimony was given a new subpoena calling for his appearance again Tuesday before the new grand jury.

Petition Tells of Inquiry.

The petition filed by the state's attorney's office asking for the immunity for Masse said that the grand jury was conducting an investigation "of the acts and doings of Building Commissioner Paschen and of other officials of the said city." In another part of the petition filed it said that the jury "is now investigating charges of bribery against Paschen and other persons and officials."

Clara Naatz, bookkeeper of the Roy F. France company, appeared yesterday and told the grand jurors that she could not produce the books of the company by which she is employed or of the Lake Shore Towers, Inc., or the Coronado hotel. The prosecutors sought to have her adjudged in contempt of court for failure to obey the subpoena duces tecum served on her, but Judge Normoyle ruled with Attorney Michael Ahern that the prosecutors should have served such a subpoena on some responsible officer of the various corporations instead of on the bookkeeper.

ROCKFORD ATTEMPTS TO GET U. S. COURT; FREEPORT PROTESTS

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Delegations from two Illinois towns, Freeport and Rockford, engaged in a heated dispute before a house judiciary subcommittee today over a bill proposed by Representative John T. Buckbee [Rep., Ill.] to transfer from Freeport to Rockford the headquarters of the western Illinois district of the federal court.

Headed by Representative Buckbee, the Rockford spokesman contended that their city is the logical location for the court because it is the largest city in the district and furnishes the greater part of the cases. They promised that suitable accommodations for holding the court would be furnished at Rockford free of expense to the government until provisions for permanent headquarters were made. The Rockford delegation included Attorneys David D. Madden, Thomas E. Ill, Roy O. Hall, and Clarence E. Patrick, secretary of the Rockford chamber of commerce.

Representing Freeport were Representative William R. Johnson [Rep., Ill.] and Attorney C. W. Middlekauff, former assistant attorney general of Illinois. Both spoke vigorously against the Buckbee bill.

CENSUS OFFICER FINDS ONE MAN; CAN'T COUNT HIM

Redding Cal., May 2.—(AP)—When Asa McKenzie got the job of census enumerator for an area of 294 square miles in northern Lassen county he immediately began to figure his profits at 4 cents for each person counted.

Asa scanned 293 of those square miles without meeting a single human being. Just as the situation was beginning to look hopeless he came upon a lone man and hailed him with exceeding zest as he explained his mission.

The lonely one eyed him coldly.

"Aw, I don't live here," he said.

Asa's report: Population, 0. Increase, 0.

HOOVER ASKS 10½ MILLIONS START ON BOULDER DAM

Arizona at Once Says It Will Fight in Court.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—President Hoover today transmitted to congress a budget recommendation for an appropriation of $10,660,000 to commence construction of the 165 million dollar Boulder dam project. Request for an initial appropriation followed the signing of contracts by southern California municipalities and power companies for power under terms which are intended to amortize a part of the cost of dam over a period of fifty years.

Under the law no appropriation was to be made until these contracts were signed, supposedly assuring the return of the government's money except the portion charged to flood control.

The amount requested today will be used for building a railroad, a construction camp, rights of way, repayment of preliminary investigation costs advanced from the reclamation fund, and for commencing construction of the dam and power plant in Black Canyon on the Colorado river.

To Go in Deficiency Bill.

It is planned to include the appropriation in the final deficiency bill to be passed by congress in the closing days of the present session. Some opposition may be advanced by opponents of Boulder dam when the bill reaches the floor of the house.

The Sibert engineering board recently approved the plans of the engineers of the bureau of reclamation of the interior department for the construction of the dam. It is expected that actual work will be commenced within the next few months unless the long threatened litigation by the state of Arizona halts proceedings.

Arizona Warns Suit Is Ready.

Phoenix, Ariz., May 2.—(AP)—Arizona served formal notice today that a suit challenging the construction of Boulder dam would be filed with the Supreme court of the United States if congress granted President Hoover's request for a $10,660,000 appropriation to start work on the great reclamation and power project.

The state's intentions were contained in a statement issued by Charles B. Ward, chairman of the Arizona-Colorado river commission, and State Attorney General K. Berry Peterson. Hope was expressed that congress would not approve the requested appropriation.

A suit has been under preparation by the attorney general's office for several months in anticipation that the government might attempt to go ahead with the building of the dam, despite Arizona alleges her water and power rights have not been settled fairly.

The general contention is that the Swing-Johnson bill is unconstitutional.

ROOSEVELT PARDONS 6 CONVICTS FOR AIDING STATE IN PRISON RIOT

Albany, N. Y., May 2.—[Special.]—By act of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt six Auburn prison convicts are going to be freed as a reward for aid given to the authorities during the recent prison riots and disturbances. Their sentences were all commuted so that they will be eligible for parole. The men are:

Earl Howard, Julius Kessler, Adam Krokowski, Thomas E. Marlowe, James J. O'Connor, and Louis F. Spaide. Their terms ranged from two to twenty years.

ARMY RESERVE DOCTORS ATTEND CANCER CLINIC

Officials of Edward Hines Jr. Veterans' hospital were hosts yesterday at a cancer clinic to officers of the medical reserve corps. Under the direction of Col. Hugh D. Scott, commandant, and Dr. Charles W. Hughes, clinical director, typical cases were presented. Dr. Henry Schmidt of the faculty of Loyola university performed the operation.

Dr. Scott announced that the veterans' bureau was to make Hines hospital the chief cancer research institution of the bureau, and that the expenditure of $200,000 for radium and equipment had been authorized.

KULP EXPLAINS POSTAL LEASES; DEFENDS SYSTEM

Denies Exorbitant Profit from Uncle Sam.

Reports of huge profits on leases of subpostoffices to the government were answered yesterday by Jacob Kulp, head of the investment house of Jacob Kulp & Co. Mr. Kulp gave his views on several features of the Washington investigation into charges that excessive rentals are being collected on many of the 6,000 postoffices, a dozen of which were financed by the Kulp concern in Chicago and elsewhere.

"Is it true that annual rentals are from 20 per cent to 33 per cent of the value of the buildings as appraised for taxation?" Mr. Kulp was asked.

"The rental figure usually is sufficient to pay interest, principal, maintenance, and all other expense in 20 years, is it not?" Kulp was asked.

"Yes, but there are a few instances in which the building owner is losing," Mr. Kulp said. "In New York the loss on one building is $28,000 a year and they would give $100,000 to the government to cancel the lease. Not it is true others pay a profit."

"Has any one a monopoly on this business of furnishing subpostoffices to the government?" was the next question.

"No," was the answer. "Kulp & Co. has issued only $5,000,000 of bonds on postoffice buildings out of $150,000,000 on buildings all over the country."

Mr. Kulp was asked about the charge that a syndicate or a few individuals held the title to most of the properties which are leased as postoffices.

"Raymond Brown of Indianapolis owns about 50 postoffice buildings, 20 of them in Chicago," was the reply," but realty dealers generally over the country own such properties."

How Leases Are Made.

"How does a person go about leasing a building to the postoffice department?" the investment expert was asked.

"Business men of a neighborhood decide they need an additional postal station in their section," Mr. Kulp explained. "They go to their congressman and he interests the postoffice department and eventually it is decided to give that community a station. Specifications are then given for a building located in a certain area, and the government advertises for bids.

"A real estate man then gets an option on a suitable piece of property and submits his bid on what rent he would ask. There are often from 50 to 75 such bids."

System Is Defended.

"Isn't it true that the building owner gets practically all his money back in twenty years, plus interest, on his investment, and then has the property free of incumbrance?" was the next query.

"Yes," said Mr. Kulp, "but the building isn't fitted for anything but a postoffice. Probably the land would appreciate in value during the twenty years because business would improve around a postoffice site, but the building would depreciate."

"Why doesn't the government build its own postoffices instead of paying rent for them in twenty years and then having some one else own them?" he was asked.

"The government found it cheaper to rent than to build," was Mr. Kulp's explanation. "Government built buildings are usually architectural beauties, full of ornaments and waste space."

"But the rent?" he was asked.

"Not so high when twenty-four hour service of light, heat, water, toilet facilities, lockers, furniture, and equipment, such as carrier systems, are taken into consideration," replied the financier.

"Does your company hold title to any of the postoffices for which you issued the bonds?" the newspaperman inquired.

"Yes," Mr. Kulp said. "In several instances where changes were required or additions or alterations needed or where in other ways additional expenditures were made and the rental increased we acquired an interest in some of the buildings."

WARREN WRIGHT CALLS FOR SPEED ON OUTER LINK

Warren Wright, president of the Lincoln park board, urged the south park commissioners yesterday to speed up their plans for the construction of the outer drive bridge to be built across the mouth of the Chicago river. In a letter to President E. J. Kelly of the south park board, Mr. Wright said it was important to have the drive in full operation for the World's Fair in 1933.

The link bridge improvement is being built jointly by the two park boards out of a $10,000,000 bond issue. Mr. Wright pointed out that the Lincoln park board has awarded contracts for the depression of Grand avenue, the extension and elevation of Lake Shore drive south to the Michigan slip, and for the small bridge to be built across the slip.

Butcher Gun Toters Are Freed; Get Back Weapons

James and Joseph Veloni, meat dealers at West Harrison street and South Western avenue, arrested for carrying firearms, were freed yesterday by Judge Frank M. Padden and their weapons were returned to them. The court held they were justified in having the guns. Joseph Veloni killed a bandit in his shop a year ago, and since that time the butchers have received numerous telephone threats. Their shop has been robbed twice, their home once, and their automobile taken three times in a year.

2 Women Employes Robbed in I. C. Station by Gunman

Mrs. Anna Mulville, agent, and Mrs. Belle Onsel, ticket clerk, at the 57th street station of the Illinois Central railroad, were held up yesterday afternoon by a youthful gunman who followed a man into the station, drove him away, and took $100 from the cash drawer. The women said the robber and a companion had sat in a parked automobile outside the station for fifteen minutes before the robbery.

BUILD SEAWALLS ON NO. SIDE TO PROTECT FLATS

High Lake Level Causes Much Expense.

Fearing that new damage to the already battered shore line may be caused by the usual summer rise of Lake Michigan's level, property owners in Rogers Park are rushing the construction of breakwaters, retaining walls and bulkheads. Thousands of dollars are being spent to repair the damage resulting from the storms and high water of last fall and winter and to prevent future destruction.

Between Sherwin avenue and Calvary cemetery, at the northern limit of Chicago, the lake's frequent rampages caused particular damage. The Ingram Arms apartment building at 7651-69 Eastlake terrace was undermined for a distance of six feet. The foundation had been laid bare to a depth of eight feet at one corner of the building. Thirty feet of sidewalk was washed away.

$18,000 Cost to Owners.

"The high water, whipped up by east winds, has cost the owners of this building about $18,000," said G. O. Evans, renting agent. "We spent $5,000 repairing the foundation and walks following the bad storm last fall, and then later storms caused more damage. The repairs being made now will cost $12,500."

A breakwater of oak pilings and interlocking steel plates, two feet thick and rising ten feet above the present lake level, is being built at the rear of the building. The foundation must be strengthened.

"It is ridiculous to hear people complaining that Chicago is lowering the lake level by diverting water through the drainage canal," Mr. Evans continued. "This is proof against that belief. I have been told that statistics show that during the last year the level of Lake Michigan has reached its highest point in the last forty years."

Other Seawalls Built.

Similar repairs are being made by the owners of the Eastlake Beach apartments at 7641 Eastlake terrace. Workmen are constructing a steel and stone breakwater, 130 feet long and 3 feet thick, at a cost of several thousand dollars. During the storms a 15 foot walk was torn up and the foundation hammered by the waves.

At the rear of a private residence nearby some thirty feet of lawn is missing—carried away by the high water.

It was noted that while property owners are repairing their buildings the city has not as yet repaired the street ends. Concrete sidewalks, crumpled by the waves, still remain as they were several months ago. Trees are uprooted and street light standards, undermined by the water, are toppling over.

At the Edgewater Athletic club building at the foot of Sherwin avenue a wide stone promenade is being rebuilt. A beach house, miniature lighthouse, and numerous beach chairs were carried away and must be replaced.

GIRL SAYS SHE WILL PRESS RAPE CHARGES AGAINST FIVE BOYS

South Bend, Ind., May 2.—[Special.]—With Prosecutor Harry S. Taylor unwilling, on the evidence before him, to cause the arrest of any one, Miss Esther [Sally] Henry, 19 years old, said tonight that she would go before the grand jury next week and tell of a criminal assault upon her by five boys at a liquor party in a private home Saturday night. A majority of those in attendance were Central High school students.

Although school officials have been told by boys who attended the party that several of them were unconscious from drinking, Principal J. S. McCowan stated that, since the party was not held under the jurisdiction of the school, no investigation would be made by him.

Bryan Fodor, 16 year old junior of Central High, son of Dr. J. S. Fodor, prominent dentist here, who accompanied Miss Henry to the party and whom she is seeking to have arrested, was characterized by Principal McCowan as a "splendid young man of good habits."

Young Fodor admits that he was so drunk that he does not know what happened. He denied being in the bedroom in which Miss Henry said she was attacked.

Miss Henry told Mr. Taylor that while sitting on a stair step with Fodor another boy knocked her unconscious with his fists and carried her upstairs, where she was raped. She cannot recall the name of her alleged assailants and only knew three of the boys in the party by name. Between 15 and 20 couples attended the party which ended about daybreak.

SEIZE McERLANE AND GIRL FRIEND FOR HOTEL SPREE

Gangster Essays Role of Window Smasher.

Frank McErlane, known to the police as one of Chicago's most violent gangsters, raised another rumpus on the south side yesterday, but this time no shots were fired. The damage was confined to broken furniture and shattered windows in a room at the Crest Apartment hotel, 6730 Stony Island avenue, where Frank and a blonde companion were arrested.

Charges of "drunk and disorderly," plus statutory charges, were on the police books against the pair last night. The girl, Marion Miller, who was questioned after McErlane was shot last Jan. 28, was released from the woman's quarters of the Hyde Park police station on $1,400 bail. McErlane, after an uproarious two hours at the bureau of identification and the Woodlawn station was released when friends furnished bail.

Both are to appear in Grand Crossing court this morning.

Shot twice within the last three months, once dangerously, McErlane's window smashing in the hotel room at first gave rise to the report that rival gunmen again had tried to kill him, but the police found no signs of bullets or guns.

Informed that some one was making a disturbance at the hotel, Capt. Thomas Kilroy of Woodlawn station went there with a squad and found the pair holding revelry, clad only in their pajamas.

Staggering, both from intoxication and his wounded leg, McErlane was taken to the bureau of identification and thence to Woodlawn station.

Capt. Kilroy found the hotel room in a state of disorder. He learned that the pair had registered there several days ago under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sebastian, and had been quiet until about noon yesterday.

20 FRESHMEN SUED FOR $51,150 BY CAFE WHERE THEY DINED

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—While Columbia college freshmen were making last minute efforts to scrape together enough money to get to the Blackwell cup regatta at Derby, Conn., process servers sought twenty of them to serve papers calling for their appearance in court to answer four lawsuits involving damages totaling $51,150.

The suits are the outcome of the freshman dinner at the Villa restaurant, Hartings-on-Hudson, three weeks ago, which was raided by fifty sophomores who broke through a skylight.

The restaurant owner charges that the students destroyed furniture and edibles worth $10,000. The corporation is suing to recover three times that amount, as provided by a New York statute. The restaurant also demands an additional $15,000 for losses it allegedly sustained through the notoriety arising from newspaper accounts of the melee.

on MILK is like

Sterling on Silver

Since the establishment of its business in 1857, Sidney Wanzer and Sons has done everything in its power to give Chicago homes milk and cream of outstanding purity and quality.

Its founder was the first to receive fresh country milk shipped into the city by train.

Again, it was among the first, if not actually the first, to give Chicago the benefits of pasteurization, long before this was required by law.

In every way, during its 73 years, the company has done everything possible to better its service to Chicago—to live up to its slogan, "Wanzer on Milk is like Sterling on Silver."

Wanzer dairy products are available to every Chicago home, and in many suburbs.* Phone BOUlevard 7900 (all branches) for immediate service.

New Walpole Appears with 'Rogue Herries'

It's Long Novel Flashing with High Drama.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Rogue Herries," by Hugh Walpole (Doubleday Doran), is the flowering of Hugh Walpole's genius for making of his characters beings rooted in the soil from which they spring—even if that soil is not earth at all, but the atmosphere of a London drawing room, like "The Duchess of Wrexe," or the saintly whiff of a cathedral town, like "The Cathedral."

It is also the flowering of his genius (not so well developed, nor so convincing), for the mysterious, the macabre, like "The Old Ladies" and "Portrait of a Man with Red Hair." It is a grafting of that later and not so authentic genius upon his own firmly rooted one.

"Rogue Herries" is an historical novel, in the sense that it is about a time that is past, and in the sense that it gives the spirit, the tempo of that period. But it is something as contemporaneous as all life, all love, all building of families is contemporaneous. It is about a wild Herries who came to be known as "Rogue," a man who was spectacular even in the spectacular days of the eighteenth century—a strange tyrant who sold his mistress, spared a cowardly duelist who scarred him forever after—then fell in love with a child with a passion so deep that it went with him into whatever eternity there is. It is the story of a warrior whose self was his enemy, whose instincts were his foes, and whose passions were his undoing.

Passions of tenderness undid him as well as passions of hate. He was a powerful, a tempestuous, a terrifying creature who loved with almost human eagerness the wild lake country of England in a day when it was thought to be inhabited by savages. He, a gentleman, was a savage with a soul, the terror and the hatred of the countryside. His son, David, was everything that his father was not, a calm, untroubled, even tempered, literal giant of a man, beloved for his physique and as well for his lack of imagination.

Those two contrasting characters against a background of barren nature, and a period in which witchcraft was a part of everyday life make a moving, at times macabre, picture. An old woman, who had been a member of the Herries household for years, was denuded by a mob, thrown into a brackish tarn, and Rogue Herries, wading into the black waters, carrying the naked corpse like a baby in his arms—the hatred of the countryside like poison in the air—such weird moments are the woof of the tapestry.

"Rogue Herries" is a strange alternation of tremendously moving, brilliantly conceived drama—drama which with even the slightest tinge of lack of skill would have been the most soppy of melodrama—and long chapters which are frankly dull, no matter how fine their description of the scene or the characters. The reader is very likely to misjudge the book, to sink in the slough of words and give up. He should not. The dull spot in the middle gives place to heights at the end not even hinted at in the beginning, supreme heights of characterization and description.

"Rogue Herries" is a tremendously long novel. Its height and breadth are in proportion. It is a great canvas.

White House, Indian Trails Provide Stories

Among Books for Girls and for Boys.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.
[Director of Children's Work in the Branches of the Chicago Public Library.]

"Apple Pie Hill," by Helen Forbes [Macmillan].

"The Game Book," by Jean Fretwell [Rand-McNally].

Kate Dickinson Sweetser in her "Famous Girls of the White House" gives us an account of the part played in its social and home life by the young women who, as daughters or brides, occupied prominent positions in the life of the executive mansion from Washington's time to that of Woodrow Wilson.

Although, as the author states, no attempt is made to inject political backgrounds, the book offers a decidedly valuable and interesting presentation of White House life.

Another new book for girls is Helen Forbes' "Apple Pie Hill." It deals with an old New England house, an impoverished old family, and a modern young heroine who sets out to solve the mystery of its lost silver and restore its fortunes.

For the boys there is an unusually good Indian story in Pitt Fitzgerald's "The Trail of the Ragged Fox." It is based on an old journal which one Gregory Neil, early adventurer in the Indian country, left to his descendants, and is the story of his wanderings with Indian companions through difficulties and dangers in the early days. It is a good picture of frontier days, showing the loyalty as well as the savagery of the Indians, is well told, and is superior to the average story of this type.

A new book of games which is just off the press and which is deserving of attention from parents as well as children is Jean Fretwell's "The Game Book." Outdoor and indoor games, both for city and country, group games and games for the little convalescent who must play by himself, all are included. There are familiar games as well as new ones and directions are explicit and simple enough for the child of even or eight.

Particularly good are the sections on train and car games which provide amusement for restless little travelers, and on backyard games which suggest activities which make the most of limited play space. "Magic" and "treasure hunt" sections offer simple tricks and hunts which children can manage. It is a good book to tuck away in suitcase or trunk when the vacation trek begins, for it will prove a real blessing when the novelty of camp or lakeside begins to wear off and "something to do" is the cry of the hour.

British Author, with 100 Books on List, Still Jovial at 70

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—As if in ironic commentary on the early deaths of D. H. Lawrence and C. K. Scott-Moncrieff, we are now celebrating the eightieth birthday of the Rev. Silas K. Hocking, a favorite novelist of yesteryear, while news arrives that another veteran, G. B. Burgin, has just completed his one hundredth book.

G. B. BURGIN.

Mr. Burgin is in the seventies now, and is a figure at all sorts of literary dinners and meetings, where he speaks from an apparently inexhaustible fund of anecdote. Most of the hundred books are novels, but not all of them, since Mr. Burgin has given the world three volumes of reminiscences, and these books are included in the grand total. His best known novel is "Shutters of Silence." A dinner in celebration of Mr. Burgin's feat is proposed.

A. A. Milne is said to be writing a new novel. Its nature is at present undisclosed, but it has a title. That title, at present, is "Convolvulus." Meanwhile Mr. Milne's new play, "Michael and Mary," is a great success in London.

Mr. William Rose Benét has been in London, where he has been welcomed gladly by his many English literary friends. He has been here in the interests of the New York publishing house, Brewer & Warren, and among the English books of which he has acquired the American rights is "Archibald," by Frederick Markham, which I have mentioned here before. I am told that the author of "Archibald" has now revealed his identity.

He is Mr. F. W. Wheldon of Norwich, whose previous literary works have been an English historical play called "The Red King," and a life of St. Francis for children.

Arnold Bennett is now exactly halfway through his new long novel, which will be longer even than "The Old Wives' Tale."

Briton Writes of U. S., Seen from "Flop" and Freight

"Back Door Guest" by Lennox Kerr [Bobbs Merrill] is a Britisher's book about America, written from a new angle. We are used to the haughty words of the visitors who are, one must admit, as much wined and dined as ever they were in the old days, but who find the wining not the least of America's humorous characteristics. Lennox Kerr was an elevator boy in New York and spent his days and nights as the guest of flop houses and rescue missions. He traveled in de luxe freight trains. He saw our so-called United States from the back door, not the front. "Back Door Guest" is a record of hoboing—a human document from the depths.

Two New Books Deal with Interior Decoration

Two books on modern decoration bring the latest news from that controversial front. They are "Form and Reform," by Paul Frankl [Harpers], that deals with the American development and applications of modern influences on the decorative arts. "Modern French Decoration" [Putnams], by Katharine Morrison Kahle of the University of California, gives the source facts of most of the best of the Art Moderne.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—"Gallows Orchard" is not only Claire Spencer's first published novel—it's the first she has written. But such high place as Brentano's best seller list is not achieved without apprenticeship in the little game of putting thoughts into words.

CLAIRE SPENCER.
[From drawing by Leo Katz.]

A sizable sheaf of poems bear witness to her long devotion to this game. Then, too, her talent for painting taught her accurate observation, developed her feeling for form and color. With canvas and verse, pursuing her own fancy, she spent many of those years which less lucky young misses devote to schoolbook routine.

A slender, unusually graceful woman is Miss Spencer, with wide blue eyes and rich, low voice. It's great fun to hear her talk of her girlhood in Scotland.

Now and again there would be an enforced year in some continental girls' school, but zeros in arithmetic finally freed her, "for in Scotland, if you can't do your sums you've no mind at all!" Claire Spencer, by the way, is not a nom de plume but her own maiden name. In private life, if there is such a thing any more, she is Mrs. Harrison Smith, wife of the publisher.

On Friday Joseph Brewer pulled one of his very splash "at homes" in honor of Emily Hahn, author of that clever titbit, "Seductio ad Absurdum." And speaking of titbits, have you discovered "The Stuffed Owl"? On Thursday at the Lafayette hotel the Book League of America gave a luncheon, with Dr. Hamilton Holt as raison d'être.

Thomas Beer deserted his home in Yonkers last week for a vacation on the continent. And Hendrik Willem Van Loon sailed on Friday, returning after a few weeks here to Holland. His life of Rembrandt is completed and will be published in the late fall. None the less he still is busily engaged with Rembrandt affairs, having set himself to having a three centuries old bankruptcy charge against the painter reopened in the Dutch courts and wiped off the books by due process of law. And while we're pondering what the passing centuries bring forth, did Wordsworth and Alfred Lord Tennyson ever dream they'd be handing us laughs? They are both important contributors to "The Stuffed Owl," which is nothing more nor less than an anthology of bad verse made for the delectation of those who lack a proper bump of reverence. It is in no way an attack on established reputations; on the contrary, the more distinguished the poet, the more amusing his unexpected skid, as it were, on the banana peel.

Meetings and Lectures

A series of eight lectures on "The Psychology and Craft of Writing" will be given by Jean Toomer each Wednesday evening during May and June at 645 North Michigan avenue. Mr. Toomer will discuss "The Writer and the Literary Life" next Wednesday. The lectures are "addressed mainly to those who aim to become professional writers and to those who wish to increase their understanding of the writings of professional writers," the circular says. If all of those who "aim to become professional writers" attend, the lectures will have to be held in the Stadium, I should say, judging from the number of letters that ask our advice about how it is done. Miss Helen Dupee, 1447 North Dearborn street, has charge of the series.

The Loop Bookfellows will meet this evening at six o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. building, 19 South La Salle street. "Byron," by Andre Maurois, will be reviewed.

On Tuesday at Fullerton hall, Art institute, at 6:45 p. m., Prof. James Weber Linn will give his last lecture in the series on "Five Old Poems." As his final subject he has chosen "The Garden of Proserpine: Fading Glamor."

The annual May party of the Chicago Library club will be held on Thursday with a dinner at 6:15 at the Chicago Woman's club.

AMONG WEEK'S NEW BOOKS

BY THE LITERARY EDITOR.

FICTION.

"Anthony in the Nude," by Myron Brinig (Farrar & Rhinehart), is the ironic and amusing story of a young man who came out of the west equipped with a profile and a reading knowledge of the smart set and an ambition to make good in a big way (without too much exertion).

"Off the Arm," by Don Marquis (Doubleday Doran), is, as one would suppose, brilliant satire masquerading as fiction. It is the artistic life that Don Marquis bastinados this time.

"The Painted Minx," by Robert W. Chambers (Appleton), is a gay historical romance laid in old New York and the colonies during the American revolution. In those days paint was a label, not a decoration.

"Three a Day," by Dorothy Heyward (Century), is the story of a vaudeville team, two men and a girl, and the inevitable results told delightfully by the co-author of "Porgy," the play.

"Three Maidens," by Eden Phillpotts (Smith), is another tale of the west country in England by the man who long ago fell heir to the mantle of Thomas Hardy.

"The Knight of the Virgin," by Vicente Blasco Ibanez (Dutton), is the novelized biography of one of the most dashing and picturesque conquerors of Central America.

"Loyal Lover," by Margaret Widdemer (Farrar & Rhinehart), tells of a courageous man, torn between love and what he considers loyalty and a beautiful gal who is loved by two men.

"Medal Without Bar," by Richard Blaker (Doubleday Doran), is another novel of the war, this time of the gunners who gave themselves with no heroics and little encomiums. It already has won high praise in England.

NONFICTION.

"Toward Civilization," edited by Charles A. Beard [Longmans, Green], is an epochal symposium on the most modern of subjects—are we tending toward higher civilization or toward savagery. Contributors are leaders of national thought.

"The New Generation" [Macaulay] is another vastly important symposium. It is called "a handbook for parents and a Magna Charta for children." It is edited by V. F. Calverton and Samuel D. Schmalhausen, and has an introduction by Bertrand Russell. The contributors are international authorities.

"What's Right with America," by Sisley Huddleston [Lippincott], is a study of what's right rather than what's wrong with us, from the point of view of a visiting English journalist.

"The Dangers of Obedience," by Harold J. Laski [Harper's], tells on the other hand what is wrong with us from the point of view of another Englishman, the eminent professor of political science at the University of London, formerly of Harvard, Yale, and Amherst.

"Poetry and Poets," by Amy Lowell [Houghton, Mifflin], is a collection of posthumous essays by one who knew as much as there was to be known about both.

"The Courtezan Olympia," by C. J. Bulliet [Covici Friede], is a scholarly consideration of the influence of sensuality on the work of great artists. It is illustrated with reproductions of famous paintings.

BIOGRAPHY.

"Hizzoner Big Bill Thompson," by John Bright [Cape-Smith] tells all.

"Rutherford B. Hayes," by H. J. Eckenrode [Dodd, Mead] is an important, sympathetic, but none the less critical life of one of our more biographically neglected Presidents.

"Emerson, the Enraptured Yankee," by Regis Michaud [Harper's], is an important and exciting biography of a Yankee man of letters by a French man of letters.

"Emily Dickinson," by Mac Gregor Jenkins [Little, Brown], is a reminiscential volume by a man who, as a child, knew the Dickinson family intimately and has a full, rich memory of "Miss Emily."

MYSTERIES.

"The Case of the Marsden Rubies," by Leonard R. Gribble, is the Crime club selection for May. There are signs—a hawk pecking at an eyeless skull, a corpse with the face burnt away with acid—which show that the tale is not the reminiscencing of a lapidary.

"What Happened to Forester," by E. Phillips Oppenheim [Little, Brown], is a decalogue of mysterious adventure by one of the most popular of all the mystifiers.

"The Mysterious Mr. Quin," by Agatha Christie [Dodd, Mead], is another collection of short mysteries by a famous baffler.

"The Fourth King," by Harry Stephen Keeler [Dutton], is a swell thriller about the shady side of our own La Salle street.

NEW COALITION REVERSES HOUSE STAND ON TARIFF

Lumber Put on Free List; Low Sugar Duty Voted.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Unexpectedly reversing previous actions, the house today declared for retention of lumber and shingles on the free list and for the senate's lower duty on sugar.

The actions, which showed a coalition of Democrats and low tariff Republicans to be in control for the first time in the house, created uncertainty as to what may happen tomorrow when the important votes are reached on the senate provisions for an export debenture farm relief scheme and for repeal of the present flexible tariff.

If the house should approve the export debenture plan and the senate continue to support it, the tariff bill as it would go to the White House quite likely would be vetoed.

Administration Men Still Hopeful.

Administration leaders, however, continue to be confident that the house will reject the export debenture provision and that the senate then will be forced to drop it.

Today's action on sugar was even more surprising than that on lumber and shingles. The house by a vote of 229 to 160 adopted a motion by Representative Charles R. Crisp [Dem., Ga.] for approval of the senate duties of 2 cents per pound on Cuban sugar and 2.5 cents on full duty sugar. Representative W. C. Hawley [Rep., Ore.], chairman of the ways and means committee, had proposed a compromise which would have fixed the Cuban rate at 2.2 cents, or midway between the senate rate and the original house rate of 2.4 cents. Under the present law the duty on Cuban sugar is 1.76 cents, while sugar from other countries is taxed at 2.2 cents.

Shifts Made During Roll Call.

With agricultural members from beet sugar states and the Democrats from the cane sugar states of Louisiana and Florida in favor of the greatest possible increase in duty the expectation had been that the Hawley compromise would carry the day.

There were shifts while the sugar roll call was in progress. In a standing vote the Crisp motion for approval of the senate rates had been defeated, 196 to 204, but when a roll call was ordered many members apparently regarded it as bad politics to go on record for the higher of the two sets of duties.

Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.], in advocating the senate rates, asserted that "congress is too big to take a stick of candy from American children." This formed a slogan which was echoed by other speakers and torn to pieces by advocates of the higher rates, who insisted that only a matter of 12 cents per capita per year was involved in the difference between the two sets of duties.

In the roll call vote on sugar, 90 Republicans and one Farmer-Labor member voted for the lower rate, while 91 Democrats opposed it.

Four Illinois Votes for Low Rate.

Only four Illinois Republicans, Representatives Morton D. Hull, M. A. Michaelson, J. C. Allen, and Ed Irwin, voted for the lower rate. All Wisconsin Republicans favored the lower rate except Representatives John C. Schafer, H. A. Cooper, and G. J. Schneider. The Michigan Republicans, except Representatives R. H. Clancy and C. E. McLeod, who voted for the lower rate, and W. Frank James, who was absent, all voted for the higher duties. Only two Indiana Republicans, Representatives N. J. Johnson and R. N. Elliott, favored the lower rate. In the Iowa delegation, five were for the lower rates and four against them.

The house by a vote of 279 to 110 voted for the retention of shingles on the free list. This was a reversal of the action in the original house tariff bill which provided a duty of 25 per cent on shingles. The senate put shingles back on the free list.

By a vote of 250 to 143 the house favored retention of lumber of fir, spruce, pine, hemlock and larch on the free list. The house bill has left lumber on the free list while the senate provided a duty of $1.50 per thousand feet. Representative Hawley proposed a compromise of 75 cents which was rejected.

Logs were put on the free list by a vote of 290 to 105. This was a reversal of the original action in the house bill, which retained the rate of $1 per 1,000 feet in the present law with a modification.

POWER BUILDING OUTLAY BOOSTED TO 900 MILLIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Construction programs of the electric light and power companies for the present year will total 900 million dollars, President Hoover was advised today by M. S. Sloan, president of the National Electric Light association. This represents an increase over the 865 million dollar total which Mr. Sloan reported to the President earlier in the year.

"The new construction program of the electric light and power companies is progressing according to schedule and no curtailment or slowing down is reported in this program," said Mr. Sloan in a letter to the President. "On the contrary, in several cases projects have been added which will result in a revision upward, amounting to an increase of 30 or 40 million dollars.

Investments Mount.

"The program for the electric light and power companies as announced to you was 865 million dollars, and the information at hand indicates that this will probably reach 900 million dollars."

Mr. Sloan also commented on the output of electricity as indicating general business conditions.

"During the entire period since the first of the year, output of electricity by the electric light and power utility companies has maintained levels above those of corresponding weeks in 1929," said Mr. Sloan.

"The output for January, February, March, and April to the 26th of the month, has been 5.5 per cent, 2.6 per cent, 3.0 per cent, and 1.8 per cent, respectively above 1929.

"The output for these same months is, however, 19.8 per cent, 11.6 per cent, 14.7 per cent, and 18.3 per cent, respectively, above the levels for 1928.

"The rate of increase in output of electric energy during the greater part of 1929 was abnormally high, due in large part to accelerated industrial activity. For this reason we consider the levels of electric energy output which have been maintained this year as indicative of strong demand for electric service.

"Although there is falling off in industrial power in localized areas, this has been more than offset, taking the country as a whole, by the remarkable increases which are going on in the use of electricity in homes. The use of electricity in households in the United States is running about 15 per cent above the levels for 1929."

QUEENSLAND HIT HARD BY GLUT IN WORLD MARKETS

Packing Plants Forced to Close Doors.

The following story concerning Queensland, Australia, has just been received by mail from Mr. Dailey, who was assigned to make a survey of the Australian continent and points in the far east. Mr. Dailey is now in India.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRISBANE, Australia, March 12 [By Mail.]—It is a gloomy outlook that is ahead of Queensland, the third state in Australia in point of population and the second in area. It is one of the greatest agricultural states, being third in both imports and exports, and exceeded in these respects only by the metropolitan provinces of New South Wales and Victoria. Of a total population in Australia of 6,414,385, according to latest returns, Queensland has just a little short of a million, of whom more than 380,000 live in the Brisbane area.

What makes the outlook so gloomy for Queensland is that the world is glutted with her chief products—wool, mutton and wheat. Yet, with the whole world seemingly going through the same trouble and an industrial depression in all the more populated countries, Australia in general faces the same outlook.

Wool Prices Drop.

Wool buyers are in Brisbane in large numbers, but the prices they offer are far below those of last year. It is a bad season also for lamb and mutton products and also beef, and the packing plant of Swift & Co., and four Australian packing houses that lie on the Brisbane river between the city and the sea are all idle, having vast quantities of meat in cold storage.

Queensland has an area of 670,500 square miles, most of it suitable for agricultural and pastoral products, although water is still lacking in many areas. Water is, indeed, the chief necessity of the vast interior of Australia, although at the present time of world-wide depression, when her exports of foodstuffs and wool, skins and hides must fall off, Queensland's case must not be considered as an exception.

An Excellent Seaport.

In normal times Brisbane has a vast seaborne commerce. It is regarded as Australia's best gateway to the steadily increasing trade relations with India, the East Indies, China and Japan, and is on even terms with other leading ports concerning commerce with other parts of the world. She lies some twenty miles up the Brisbane river and ships of large tonnage go alongside her wharves. The seaborne commerce always has been in her favor, and the latest authentic figures show she has held her own.

The best year (1925-'26) showed exports valued at $88,516,000 and imports of $58,564,000. The figures do not indicate the total commerce of Queensland, for Townsville, more than 800 miles farther north, is another of her important ports, as is also Cairns.

On Edge of Tropics.

Brisbane is on the edge of the tropics and aside from her state buildings and business blocks the houses are mostly of the bungalow type, all set well above the ground to permit free circulation of air beneath. The city is rolling, the streets are wide and the residential areas are a delight to look upon. From Mount Coot-tha and other mountains wonderful views are to be had of the farflung city and the higher mountains beyond.

As for Brisbane river, it is the greatest commercial river in all the commonwealth, navigable for 210 miles. There is a depth of 24 to 26 feet at Brisbane at low tide.

Galesburg, Ill., May 2.—[Special.]—Stepping from his truck which was stalled on the pavement between here and Knoxville last night by telephone poles across the road, Charles W. Barnett, 34, of Des Moines, slipped in the mud and was electrocuted when he fell on a high voltage wire. The poles were blown down by a severe windstorm.

POLISH-RUSSIAN TROUBLE AFOOT, FRANCE WARNED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 2.—France is alarmed at a serious situation which has arisen between Russia and Poland, it was learned tonight.

Ambassador Jean Herbetta, in the course of a recent conversation with Foreign Minister Briand, is reported to have said that grave trouble is brewing in the east, and to have advised M. Briand that if he wanted to avert a crisis he should instruct the Polish government to make a conciliatory reply to the soviet note of protest in regard to the bomb recently found in the Russian embassy in Warsaw. It is expected that the Polish reply, which will appear in a few days, will be moderate, but it is doubted in some quarters that this is M. Briand's work.

Briand Fed Up with Russia.

M. Briand, despite his pacifistic inclinations, is said to be fed up on soviet intrigues. France's relations with Russia are not overly friendly at the present moment. Ambassador Herbetta is not likely to return to his post in Moscow, and it is now learned that two other diplomats have turned down the job. It seems that M. Briand wanted Ambassador Herbetta to return for a while at least, but the ambassador refused. He is said to have declared that while he was willing to swallow the personal insult recently offered to him by Maxim Litvinoff, Russian foreign minister, he saw no advantage, either political or economic, for France to have an ambassador at Moscow.

Report War Preparations.

Several days before M. Herbetta's interview with M. Briand, the communist and left papers became worked up about an "imperialist war against the soviet." According to L'Humanite "a march on Kiev" will be launched next month simultaneously by Poland and Roumania. L'Humanite alleged that Poland was importing tremendous quantities of ammunition and was equipping its army with a new type of machine gun with mobile gun carriers. This paper also alleged that Poland had arranged a secret military treaty with Rumania.

While the time is considered ideal from a military standpoint for an attack on Russia, it is feared that any such row might start a general European conflict. For this reason it is believed that the French will exert the utmost pressure in the interests of peace.

MORROW WILL NOT TAKE SEAT IN SENATE DURING THIS SESSION

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Dwight W. Morrow will not enter the present session of the senate and will continue as ambassador to Mexico during his primary campaign for the Republican nomination for the United States senate from New Jersey, according to information available here tonight.

The reversal of the original plans that he should enter the senate immediately upon his return from the London naval conference resulted from conferences held here by New Jersey politicians and administration advisers.

The objection raised by the New Jersey leaders was that Mr. Morrow would be seriously handicapped if he became a member of this senate and was called upon to vote for the tariff. Objection was also made that he would be subjected possibly to attack by the minority if as a new member he took a prominent part in the debate on the naval treaty.

HUDSON'S Great 8

Is easy to buy and inexpensive to operate

No car we have ever offered has so quickly won the enthusiasm of all who drive it.

An entirely new type, it is likewise entirely new in smooth free performance and easy handling. Its get-away is so brilliant and fast that drivers of other cars gasp at the way it darts ahead of them.

Its action is so alert and quiet that a speed of sixty miles an hour seems no greater than thirty to its driver and passengers. It has tremendous power. It will roll smoothly along as slowly as a man walks. Then a mere touch on the throttle will as silently and smoothly jump you to express train speed. It is as nimble as a fine polo pony. Its economy is impressive.

Hudson's Great 8 will please you. Its first cost is way below that of any car of similar quality or performance.

Such smartness and driving enjoyment at so low a cost and at so small an operating expense are exclusively its own.

Any dealer will gladly let you drive a Hudson Great 8. You will be so enthusiastic that you can't help telling your friends it is the most delightful car you have ever driven.

GREAT BRITAIN ALL SET FOR INDIA.

Ramsay MacDonald and the Labor government of Great Britain have an Indian revolt of uncertain portents at hand but not in hand. It may be an ugly customer as it develops, ugly even if it is subdued, but statesmanship has prepared the way as wisely as possible for what may happen.

Great Britain has negotiated a complete naval agreement with the United States and Japan and a partial one with France and Italy. These are not alliances, but they are supposed to represent good will and pacific intent. The agreement as it affects the United States is to contain a high moral element. It is to bind the American republic to the British empire in terms of international virtue, the United States recognizing the will of the British government to maintain the best conditions possible the world over.

The United States by the conditions of the naval treaty is to accept a position on the sea which is not disturbing to Great Britain. The American navy will take second place and the government will give assurance that it will not build to draw up alongside or go ahead of the British. That lays to rest the fear of a contest for sea control, and the empire may turn to internal difficulties with its most alarming specter tucked away in sleep.

Mr. MacDonald may not be wholly in the Eton-Oxford tradition, with his Labor associates in government, but there are times when Jack Hayes and Stanley Baldwin think very much alike and when Salisbury will find Ben Smith in his wake. This is one of them, and Mr. MacDonald has been clearing away trouble up and down the block in front in order that there will be nothing to distract or alarm when he goes into the back yard with the imperial wash.

What Great Britain will need particularly in India, if it is to be a job of high explosives, machines guns and gas, will be moral support. The empire must be semi-ecclesiastical in its appearance in the court of civilized opinion. It must not be dressed in the cotton goods of its manufacturing towns which now insist that Indian contracts cannot be broken, but in the white armor, not Sheffield, of the crusader. The moral ground for this has been prepared in the United States, where the humanitarian will for good has been taught the broader view to which Great Britain will need appeal for support in a covenanted world. Thus the Hindu with his caste system, his untouchables, his marriage customs and his oppressed minorities and religious ferocities has been dressed to repel the sympathies and justify the British subaltern when he stands with an uncertain detail of native soldiery against the advancing mob.

It has all been done with a careful eye for the whole scene, with Mr. Kipling in the perspective and Mr. MacDonald in the foreground. Americans can have no ill will for Great Britain in the matter. The United States may be on the outskirts of a dilemma of like character if mischance and ill luck fan the sparks of its troubles in the Philippines. What the citizens of the United States may regret is that they are so easily delivered to the purposes of other people. There they have a cause for objection. It makes their future so dubious. They cannot even fairly well chart its course because they cannot know what the exigencies of some other persuasive and thoughtful people will be or how easy without remuneration or consideration it will be to involve this country in a moral cause of no concern to it but of tangible profits to another nation.

Great Britain has had a compelling reason to clear up all the possible regions of its fears, or perplexities, and of the latter the naval issue was the predominant. It has been successful, granting that the United States senate accepts the naval treaty as it has been negotiated and indorsed by President Hoover. The United States has given its assurances without asking that the British make any concessions, naval, territorial or other, which could have been demanded justly of them. One item would have been the British West Indies, but again the United States has emerged from a conference of vital importance to the British empire without an adjustment of any kind in its favor.

Japan, a possible factor in Indian troubles, got what it wanted at London. It had to be satisfied, and it was.

THE REVIEWER AS JUDGE.

The governor has called a special session of the legislature to relieve Chicago's financial difficulties. Bills are being drawn for a reform of the tax collecting system. Among other things, these bills are intended to prevent, so far as possible, the practice of exchanging tax favors for political support or cash.

While it is easy to exaggerate the value of changes in the mechanics of government, we believe that a distinct improvement might be expected to follow a requirement that members of the board of review divorce themselves from any private business or professional association while in office. As long as members of the board have articles or services for sale, the temptation upon the taxpayers, no less than upon the office holders, to exchange favors is certain to be strong.

The board of review is a judicial, or at least a quasi-judicial, body. Its members should observe the same rules of professional conduct which are demanded of judges of our courts. When the reviewers take office they should be obliged, as judges are, to give up any other gainful occupation.

THE GOODING BILL RESURRECTED.

A year ago Senator Key Pittman of Nevada introduced a bill which would still further punish the central states for having contributed heavily to the cost of building the Panama canal. The bill would forbid railroads to make rates in competition with the coast to coast charges of ships using the canal. Suddenly this bill has been brought to life and with notice deemed inadequate by shippers of this region has been referred to a subcommittee for hearings.

The personnel of the subcommittee deserves attention. It is headed by Senator Kean of New Jersey, a tidewater state whose interest it is to hold the west coast markets wrung from the central states with the help of cheap freight rates through the canal. Senator Pittman, who introduced the measure, is the second member of the committee. The third member is a midcontinent man who might be expected to represent the interest of his region, but the statesman in question is Mr. Smith Wildman Brookhart of Iowa. He voted for the Gooding bill, which had the same end in view as that intended by the Pittman bill now under consideration. He must be regarded as a total loss.

In short, the central states have no representation on the subcommittee, though the issue raised is of greatest concern to this region. The bill is introduced in the interest of wholesalers and jobbers in the so-called intermountain territory, the region of mountain and desert between the Rockies and the coastal ranges. The whole population of the intermountain territory is much less than that of Chicago, and because of limited rainfall and the rough character of the terrain the region is destined to be distinguished for climate and sheep herding rather than for industry and commerce.

Senator Pittman's bill would be of doubtful benefit to his own region, as was clearly demonstrated in the debate on the Gooding bill. If the Pittman bill accomplishes anything it must result in a loss of freight to the railroads. The railroads in question are the transcontinental lines upon which the intermountain territory is wholly dependent. Losses suffered by these lines cannot fail to be reflected in poorer service to the intermountan territory. Naturally, the region in which railroad operation is most costly and communities most widely scattered would suffer most in any policy of retrenchment.

The interest of the central states in defeating the bill is obvious, and if our influence in congress were proportionate to our population and wealth there ought to be little doubt of the outcome. Unfortunately, the precedents are not encouraging. It was with the utmost difficulty that the business men of this region were able to defeat the Gooding bill and, though every pressure was brought to bear, a good many of our senators voted for the measure. Among them were Capper, La Follette, Nye, Couzens, and Norris, as well as the inimitable Brookhart.

That was in March, 1926. Not the least curious aspect of the whole matter is that the intermountain states then enjoyed whatever benefits might be expected to flow from their bill, and enjoy those benefits today. The interstate commerce commission has authorized no competitive rates to the coast and no such rates are in effect. The whole object of the bill is to forbid the commission to do something it has not done.

TIME AND SOME TRAINS FLY.

You can go from Chicago to Montreal by rail, now, in eighteen hours and fifteen minutes. The new trains of the Canadian National—the ones equipped for telephone conversations en route—are said to be the fastest in the world for the long distance they traverse. If the same speed were attained between New York and Chicago the run would be made in seventeen hours and fifteen minutes, two hours and forty-five minutes faster than the best trains today.

The railroads connecting Chicago and the northern Pacific, beginning June 1, will shave another hour off the westbound running time. Within a year nine hours have been saved on this run. The southwestern roads have made similar improvements. They have reduced their time between Chicago and Los Angeles by twelve hours in the last four years.

It is curious that these improvements have not been paralleled in the time tables of the railroads connecting the nation's two most important cities. Twenty hours is still the best time between Chicago and New York despite improvements in roadbed, locomotives, cars, and safety appliances. There are more twenty hour trains than formerly, a plain indication that the public will pay for speed and luxury, but no faster trains. Other railroads can cut their schedules despite steeper grades, longer runs and a smaller traveling public to cater to. The New York-Chicago roads apparently do not intend to speed up until aviation has taken the cream of the business from them.

SOMETHING MORE THAN A BREACH OF TASTE.

[N. Y. Evening Post.]

We cannot uphold the theory that a justice of the United States Supreme court should live in an ivory tower shut off from the voices and thoughts of men.

Nor do we believe that elevation to the bench means complete severance of the ties of intimate friendships.

Nevertheless there clearly are things that a friend may with propriety say to a judge and things that cannot be said.

In his letter of April 9, 1929, to Associate Justice Stone of the Supreme court, it seems to us very clear that Mr. Thomas W. Phillips Jr. should not have driven home his plea against prohibition by this question: "Do you have any idea that the Supreme court as now constituted would have the moral courage to go into this question thoroughly?" It may be that it would have been the better part of friendship not to have written at all.

Of course, wets may resent the charge that the Phillips letters constitute "lobbying directly with the Supreme court" as the partisan Senator Robinson excitedly exclaimed. But if they wish to see the matter in its proper proportions we suggest that they imagine their probable reaction had the letters been written by Bishop Cannon instead of by a member of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

There is no doubt in our mind that Mr. Phillips is fairly criticizable in the matter. His action was something less than a breach of morals, but something more than a breach of taste.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Thank Heaven! Jeffersonian Simplicity Still Lives!

The Democrats are getting ready to point with pride at the campaign expenses of Col. Jim Ham Lewis. The Republican candidates have filed their expense accounts and now we're waiting for the Democrats. Col. Jim Ham Lewis' primary expenditures will probably total $5.35 for whisker curling, 75 cents for three white carnations for his buttonhole, and 30 cents for 3 cigars for the janitor at each hall where the 3 speeches were delivered.

The campaign investigating committee may insist that Col. Lewis should include trouser creasing, rainbow v 's, and shoe shines, but the Democratic rtandard bearer can point (with pride) to the undeniable fact that he would have had those things anyhow and they do not come properly under the head of campaign expenses.

Of course, it must be admitted the Democrats don't go to much expense in Illinois campaigns. What's the use? When the state central committee picks a man out and tells him he's got to make the race for a certain office the man upon whom the honor is conferred comes back with, "Hey, what's the idea of making me the goat again? I ran four years ago. It's Bill Blops' turn this time; he hasn't had to run for anything since hellengone."

Then the committee takes it up with Bill and he kicks like a Missouri mule, and sezze: "Lissen, you guys! I'm a dyed in the wool Jeffersonian Democrat, all right, all right, but you can't slip this 'cross shows where body was found' stuff over on me again. Lemme alone and pick out another sucker."

But the committee keeps on talking and begging and they tell the boys that you never can tell; maybe this is the year when the farmers will get tired of the administration's making suckers of 'em and break their lifelong habit of voting the Republican ticket on election day. They say it's happened before and it can happen again. Cheer up and take a chance. So finally they get their candidates and the campaign is on. But the candidates don't spend much money. In the first place, it's an awful gamble; and, in the second place, us Democrats haven't got much money.

RESERVATION.

I am not all your own, for there are hours
When even your love is not alive in me,
When I drink solitude as from a sea
Love, like a coward child, takes fright and cowers
Back from the blazing waves encircling me,
Stopping his ears to their wild harmony,
Hiding his face among his withered flowers.
And there is none of you in all the world,
And there is none of you in all the sea;
I shall not find you till the waves lie furled,
Dark with the aftermath of ecstasy;
Till in the twilight house the woodfire curled
Over its logs shall bring you back to me.

DOROTHY R. KISSLING.

AND NOW CANADA trails France and puts up a high tariff wall in retaliation for our high tariffs against them. No fair! It's all right for the U. S. A. to have a tariff wall because we've got to protect our infant industries. But it's simply outrageous for other countries to do it. It is, too. Ask any of our manufacturers if you don't believe it.

FIFTY PEOPLE were injured in Madrid in a riot over the return of an author to his home. He has probably just published another book on the world's war.

C'EST TOUT.

Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my virtues keep.
If I should die before I wake,
Apologies please—it's my mistake!
God bless Arthur, God bless Tom,
God bless Alec, God bless John,
God bless Harvard '92,
God bless Yale, hell-Princeton too,
C'est tout, mon Dieu, c'est tout.

JOHN HARSEN RHOADES.

WE'LL HAVE to let Pedro Zyxx of San Francisco into our Academy of Immortals. Mr. Zyxx has the very bottom of the hole in the new San Francisco directory, but we can't give him first place in the Academy because that is nobly held by Otto Gurgle. But styxx around, Mr. Zyxx, and we'll give you the zyxxth place.

THE PROFESSOR in the Yale Divinity school who was denied citizenship papers because he refused to bear arms in time of war unless he believed the war was morally justified has appealed the case to the higher courts. Oh, shucks! A professor in the Yale Divinity school couldn't kill enough in a day to pay for his rations. Give him the job of standing on the pier when the troops come home from the war and cheering for 'em. There's always plenty of people cheering when the boys go away but darned few when they come back. That's a good job for the pacifists.

AND THE GREATEST OF THESE—

There is no grief—no endless pain—
Save that which lost love knows,
Even as there is no sorrow in the rain
Unless the east wind blows.

Of all the things that men call grief—
Wounds in the flesh, the loss of gold—
Is winter's immemorial cold.

Darkness is not the loss of sight,
Nor lameness but a withered limb:—
'Tis loss of love that sends the night
And binds the wings of seraphim.

If all the ancient gods upon the hill
Should go and altar fires die out,
The soul of man would rise from every ill

ABORIGINE.

WE WANT to establish a new low in last lines, since new lows seem to be all the rage. Hank, print this as close to the very bottom of the page as you can. We must reach a new low. The stock market is doing it every day, and, by gravy, we'll try it!

FOOD FOR THE BABIES.

WHEN babies are artificially fed it is now the custom to give them acid rather than alkali in their milk mixtures. Dr. K. G. Woodward adds one ounce of orange juice to each pint of milk, though he varies the proportion slightly according as the orange juice is more or less sour. The baby starts with two ounces of this mixture for each pound of his weight. To this he adds sugar in the proportion of one-tenth of an ounce for each pound of weight. This is the day's allowance. If more bulk is required water enough to supply it is added. As the baby grows older the amount of milk and orange juice is increased. This combination of milk and orange juice is fed to newly born babies. It is even fed to premature babies.

Orange juice is added to baby foods made from evaporated milk and milk powder. Some physicians use condensed milk diluted with water and acidulated with orange juice. Other acids which are used in baby milk are those found in lemon juice, vinegar, and sour milks. Of these, lactic acid—the acid found in sour milk—is most generally used. When lemon juice is used they add one teaspoonful of the juice to each pint of undiluted milk.

If the acid-milk method of baby feeding becomes universal mothers will eventually use many other fruit and vegetable juices. Such juices as may come into use are those from tomatoes, cabbage, fresh green peas, and other succulent fresh vegetables; and those from apples, peaches, plums, pears, grapefruit, strawberries, blackberries, raspberries, and other juicy fruits.

The reasons for giving acid in a baby's milk instead of lime water are several. It is easier digested. The difficulty in digesting untreated liquid milk is that the acid gastric juice must do too much neutralizing before it can get at the solids in the curd. Acid milk protects the intestines against infections and the contents against putrefactions. Fruit and vegetable acids build up good tooth structure and protect the gums. They prevent scurvy.

FIGURES ON HOSPITALS.

E. R. M. writes: In a survey published by the Hospital Field it is admitted that ten million persons are admitted as residents of American hospitals annually and eight million more are treated when they call. This surely indicates something wrong. What do the American people do that puts so many of them in hospitals?

REPLY.

I do not know the publication or whether you quoted it correctly, but your statements are inexcusably inaccurate. The Journal of the American Medical Association published the facts March 29, 1930. This was their regular annual statement on the subject. If you want corroboration you can get it from the United States census reports, reports of the United States public health service, reports of committee on cost of medical care, and still other reports.

In 1929, in the United States, there were 6,805 hospitals with 907,133 beds. These beds were occupied by 726,766 patients. You ask why. This report supplies some figures which suggest a part of the answer: 572 of these hospitals with 414,386 beds are for the nervous and mental cases; 502, with 414,386 beds, are for consumptives; 146, with 5,434 beds, are for maternity cases; 4,268, with 357,034 beds, are for assorted purposes; 152 hospitals, with 7,004 beds, are for industrial cases; 149, with 6,474 beds, are for convalescents; 86, with 7,422 beds, are for contagious diseases. The remainder is divided into children's hospitals, eye, ear, nose and throat hospitals, orthopedic hospitals, skin and cancer hospitals, departments of colleges and other institutions, and miscellaneous. This suggests a part of the answer why. To discuss why men go insane, or have cancer, consumption or diphtheria, and why women have babies, and why industries maintain hospitals, would require considerable space.

SOME CAUSES OF HIVES.

Mrs. C. S. writes: What is the cause of hives, and what can be done to prevent them? My oldest son has a bad case and the prescription from our doctor has failed to help him.

REPLY.

Among the causes of hives are: Eating certain foods to which the subject has been sensitized, or exposure to certain influences with which he has had the same experiences. Among the foods sometimes under suspicion are: Strawberries, pieplant, buckwheat, and ordinary flour. There are many other foods capable of causing hives. Among influences are: Exposure to cold, to heat, to birds and animals. If you can find the cause and have the child avoid it he will not have hives.

SOME MUST TAKE LUMINOL.

F. S. O. writes: A little more than two years ago our physician prescribed a daily dose of 1½ grains of luminol for my wife to prevent convulsions. She has had no convulsions since using the remedy, but it seems to be injurious. Will you kindly give me your opinion?

REPLY.

Some people must take luminol. They should take as little as possible. While doing so they should report periodically to the doctor.

DARK STREETS.

Chicago, April 29.—[Friend of the People.]—The street lights on Nevada street between Cicero and Lamon have been off for two months. Will you please tell me why? R. C.

In this connection I beg to advise that this matter has been referred to my bureau of operation with instruction to clear the trouble as quickly as possible.

I am very sorry to receive complaints of this nature but the same condition prevails all over the city for the reason that our forces of lamp cleaners, lamp changers, electric light repairmen, linemen, etc., have been decreased 50 per cent in the 1930 appropriation ordinance with the result that circuit trouble is piling up throughout the entire system and with the insufficient man power appropriated this year, it is obviously impossible for the department to clear the trouble as quickly as heretofore.

May I add that the department is doing the best it can under very trying circumstances and trust you will be good enough to appreciate the handicap we are working under should the trouble occur at some future time. Nevertheless, it is my sincere wish and intention to keep the entire municipal electric lighting system in first class operating condition at all times as it is physically possible and I trust you will have no further cause for complaint.

MICHAEL J. KENNEDY,
Commissioner of Gas and Electricity.

LOST STOCK CERTIFICATE.

Chicago, April 27. — [Legal Friend of the People.]—Please advise how to go about recovering on a lost stock certificate. It was in a safe but evidently fell out, and as it was in a plain envelope it must have been thrown in a waste basket. R. E. P.

Take the matter up with the officials of the company. If they are unwilling to make any reasonable suggestion, you should employ a lawyer.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DR. KEGEL ABATES NUISANCE.

Chicago, April 29. — [Friend of the People.]—The property next door to ours on South Western avenue has such poor plumbing that it floods our basement and caused our tenant to move, having cost us $30 besides. To what course can we resort to remedy this nuisance?

You are advised that, due to a former complaint, the following notice was served on the owner:

"Rod house drain. Abate nuisance of water flooding adjoining premises."

This matter will be followed up until compliance with the foregoing order has been obtained. ARNOLD H. KEGEL,
Commissioner of Health.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 3, 1865.

CHICAGO.—The large edition of yesterday's TRIBUNE—considerably over 40,000—was exhausted long before the demand ceased. Thousands of people wanted extra copies to send to their friends abroad, containing, as it did, a voluminous and graphic description of the great funeral pageant of our martyred President.

CHICAGO.—After lying in state all day at the courthouse, where it was viewed by throngs until the courthouse was closed last night, the body of President Lincoln was taken to the depot of the St. Louis and Chicago railroad. At exactly 9:30 p. m. it started for Springfield on the last stage of the journey to the tomb. Ere these lines meet the eyes of a majority of our readers the sepultural cortège will have deposited the remains in the statehouse—carried the lifeless form back to the place where a little more than four years ago he took leave of his friends on departing to assume the honors and duties of the presidential office.

CHICAGO.—Maj. Gen. Hunter, who accompanied the remains of the late President to Chicago, received a dispatch from the war department summoning him to return to Washington instantly to preside over the court-martial for the trial of prisoners implicated in the assassination of the President and in the plot to murder Stanton, Seward, Grant, Colfax, Johnson, Chase, and other prominent officials. He left for Washington at once. We understand that eighty prisoners will be placed on trial. More than 300 have been arrested—many of them as witnesses. Harrold, it is reported, has made a clean breast of the whole thing, so far as he knows of it.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—The Bulletin says that on the 23d negotiations were progressing between Col. Sprague, chief of staff to Maj. Gen. Pope, and the authorities of the trans-Mississippi department for the surrender of Kirby Smith's rebel forces. Gen. Dick Taylor also has offered to surrender on the same terms as those granted Lee.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 3, 1900.

CHICAGO.—The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church voted unanimously to grant the laity representation equal to that of the clergy and seated 165 provisional delegates who had come to Chicago. Reports last night were that five bishops will be retired by the conference. They are Bishop C. D. Foss, for ill health; Bishops S. M. Merrill, E. G. Andrews and J. M. Walden, for old age, and Bishop J. F. Hurst, that he may give all his time to the National university at Washington.

CHICAGO.—An indictment was voted against George P. Gubbins, president of the Bricklayers and Stonemasons' union, on evidence that he was concerned in an assault on nonunion workmen on April 24.

LONDON.—The Boers seem to be successfully retarding Lord Roberts' forward movement. Gen. Ian Hamilton again engaged the Boers who were in full force along a range of hills near Houtney, north of Thaba N'Chu. The British claim to have taken the position with heavy loss to the enemy.

WASHINGTON.—The house passed the bill providing for the construction of a Nicaraguan canal, by a vote of 225 to 35. Party lines were entirely eliminated. Representatives Cannon and Hitt of Illinois both voted against the bill.

CHICAGO.—Republican primaries will be held in every ward of Chicago and town of Cook county today, in one of the hottest contests ever known in local history. The Republicans will decide the gubernatorial contest between Judge Elbridge Hanecy and the former machine on one hand and Judge Orrin N. Carter on the other. It is not merely a question of whether Hanecy or Carter shall be nominated but whether Lorimerism is to live or die in Illinois.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 3, 1920.

WASHINGTON—President Wilson has decreed that the Knox peace resolution pending in the senate must go with the Versailles treaty into the vortex of party politics this year as a campaign issue. Democrats declared they would filibuster to prevent the passage of the resolution to prevent its passage—that being the only way to keep it from adoption and submission to the President for approval or veto. Chairman Homer S. Cummings of the Democratic national committee declared it is certain the President will veto the resolution if adopted.

PHILADELPHIA—John Wanamaker announced a straight cut of 20 per cent in the prices of all merchandise in the Wanamaker stores in Philadelphia and New York to aid the public in battling the high cost of living.

PARKING ALL NIGHT.

Chicago, April 30.—The recent action of the Garage Owners association in seeking an ordinance empowering the police department to seize automobiles left parked on the street overnight is, without a doubt, the last word in an attempt to hold up the car owner, who is now paying sufficient taxes to allow him this privilege.

The complaint of the Garage Owners association that the parking of automobiles in front of the home has "ruined the garage business" is so ridiculous it is actually pitiful. Boo, hoo! Isn't it just too terrible!

Did this organization ever stop to consider that if their rates were lowered, now that prices in all other lines have dropped, they would be pleasantly surprised with the increase in business?

I live in a community where there are few private garages but where the rental at a public garage is at least $15 a month and these garages are located at least a mile from our home. If this rental were reduced about half—which would be a fair rate—they would have all the business they could handle. However, this thought is not to be considered when the police can be called on for support, and thus another racket has the proper backing.

If this association is successful in putting through this ordinance it is time other industries come forward and insist on police support in forcing the public to patronize certain stores.

$150,000 FOR PRINTING.

Chicago, April 29.—A news item in today's TRIBUNE is headed "Schmidt Asks $150,000 to Pay for Statistics" in connection with the state law requiring cities to publish a list of their receipts and expenditures twice yearly.

The law is a wonderful step forward and should be complied with to the last minute, but outside of a fair printing cost it should not cost the city one extra penny in the compliation of the matter to be printed and no hardship would be necessary on the department heads to comply. A reading of the budget shows each department head is reinforced with several assistants, and each assistant by several chief clerks, and each chief clerk by several head clerks, and so on down until we find the actual working force, who we all know are not busy more than a few hours out of the eight they are supposed to be on duty.

In any other business organization the names and addresses of all employés, together with the salary or wages paid, is a matter of record kept by the pay roll department, and the duty of the city controller, before passing for payment vouchers drawn against the treasury cash, is to know that the expenditures are lawful and legal. How does he at present arrive at this conclusion unless he has the names and addresses and amounts paid each employé?

Let's put more business in the business of running the city.

MICHIGAN HEROES.

Louisville, Ky., April 30.—Let Bob Clancy's classmate, Mr. L. S. Harmer, Michigan '07, set down a record of his contributions to the welfare of the university and compare them with those of Bob Clancy.

Let him also be proud to be numbered among that illustrious group of politically dry graduates who have brought fame to Michigan. Let him toss off the shame Bob Clancy caused him as he finds himself among the cohorts of the late Wayne B. Wheeler, Harry M. Daugherty, et al. Think of the honor they have brought to Michigan as they labored for Mr. Harmer's cause.

I am glad that while at the university I escaped the influences which apparently have contributed so much to Mr. Harmer's liberal education. J. G. M.

PERFIDIOUS ALBION.

Chicago, April 29.—Perfidious Albion is perfectly capable of machinations so insidious as to make a casus belli and declare war on Uncle Sam. Having gained the advantage by the treaty with Uncle Sam, she has America at a disadvantage and can treat her without mercy. The conclusion is obvious, remembering the two war loans to Europe, and compelling us to scrap our navy, as she did with Germany's, England will be able to fight and so try in advance to cripple our naval forces that she will be in a victorious position and dictate her will to Uncle Sam.

It isn't England alone; other continental powers are also looking ahead to the day when they can lick Uncle Sam's navy. Judging from the attitude she assumed by the last treaty, it looks as if Great Britain is only waiting for a chance to establish America once more as a colony. Then she would regain her naval supremacy and become again the mistress of the sea. "Britannia rules the waves!" they can say again. "We've got the men, we've got the ships and got the money, too . . . and also the statesmen!"

France will be taken care of in good measure, as she would insist on a great share of the spoils to satisfy the vanity of the Gallic cock!

But the treaty must come up before the United States senate for ratification and the United States senate is something to reckon with. Let's hope and pray that there are present more red blooded Americans of the California type—Senator Hiram Johnson!

ARTHUR L. BROD.

JAILS AND PROSPERITY.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 1.—I see by the papers that Mr. Hoover wants bigger and better jails, with stricter and hotter laws, so they can be filled the quicker. This latter, I think, is hardly necessary, as in the natural course of the present fanatical laws feet will soon be sticking out of the windows of any new jails built. Meanwhile I have a hundred shares of Hoover prosperity, bought a year back, that I would like to sell at half what was promised. Any takers? F. C. SORRELS.

A REPLY.

Chicago, April 30.—Your editorial today, "The Hoover Jails," is discreditable to you and entirely unfair to Mr. Hoover. You aim to put upon him the responsibility for the conditions which demand more federal prisons. There is no logic or truth in this imputation. As chief executive of the nation how can he do less than he is doing?

The hostility of THE TRIBUNE to President Hoover has been very evident since his election. THE TRIBUNE'S disappointment at Al Smith's crushing defeat was not very much concealed. That is my view and I have been a reader of THE TRIBUNE for thirty-five years.

THE TRIBUNE is so prejudiced against prohibition that it can't think straight. Why not give us something constructive on the subject? L. M. GROSSBECK.

IZAAK WALTONS.

Racine, Wis., April 29.—I desire to express my appreciation of your editorial headed "Izaak Waltons," which appeared in this morning's TRIBUNE.

Those of us who have been keenly interested in the Izaak Walton league and have worked hard to accomplish the results already achieved welcome sincerely such an encouraging editorial as greeted us today. There are years of strenuous battles ahead of the league, and the support of the most influential paper in the west means a lot in carrying on.

There are many thousand members of the Izaak Walton league in Wisconsin, and I know that every one of us feels the same way about this fine article.

Auto Deaths in County Show Increase of 23% This Year

Cook county's 1930 motor toll is 23 per cent higher than in the corresponding period for 1929. At the same time child fatalities have dropped 22 per cent. These facts were disclosed yesterday by Coroner Herman N. Bundesen.

The 1930 motor toll is 296. In the same period in 1929 the toll was 240. In 1930 the number of deaths of children under 16 has been 36 as against 46 for 1929. Monthly comparisons as compiled by the coroner's office are as follows:

Month.	—1930— Adult.	Child.	—1929— Adult.	Child.
January	52	3	54	6
February	78	9	47	4
March	66	9	34	14
April	66	15	57	20
May	3	1	2	2
Total	259	37	194	46

"The drop in deaths of children illustrates the value of education," Coroner Bundesen said. "School teachers have been drilling their children to observe safety on the streets. This teaching and the work of the schoolboys' safety patrol are the principal factors in the decrease."

L. C. Parker, 1047 Forest avenue, Evanston president of the Visometer company, manufacturers of oil meters, was fatally injured yesterday when he lost control of his automobile and crashed into a cement abutment on highway 50 near Lake Geneva, Wis. The machine overturned and rolled into a ditch. Mr. Parker died in the Walworth county hospital. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Adelaide Parker, and a daughter, Miss Elinor L. Parker.

Samuel La Rocco, 12 years old, 1135 West Grand avenue, died at the Franklin Boulevard hospital last night of injuries suffered April 30 when he was struck by a truck as he crossed the street in front of 1222 West Grand avenue. The driver was John Davis, 29 years old, 5040 North Claremont avenue.

A speeding motorist ran down a group of girls awaiting a street car at State and 76th streets last night, injuring three, one seriously. Gresham police arrested Herman Ellguth, 219 East 80th street, on charges of reckless driving and passing a street car taking on passengers. They took Sylvia Potacte, 21 years old, 136 East 109th street, with a possible skull fracture and internal injuries, to the Auburn Park hospital. Genevieve Antzart, 20 years old, 8350 Baker avenue, and Angelina Schwarke, 22 years old, 205 West 101st street, who were cut and bruised, were able to leave the hospital after their injuries were dressed.

Girl Autoist, Accused of Drinking, Wins Delay

Miss Ruth Perry, 28 years old, of St. Louis, Mo., who was granted a continuance when she was arraigned April 18 before Municipal Judge Borrelli for driving while intoxicated, yesterday won a second delay before his successor in the Speeder's court Judge Fairbank. The case was continued to determine whether or not she was under the influence of liquor. Miss Perry denied that she had been drinking. At the time of her arrest she was with her sister, Mrs. Mabel Snow, and her fiancé, Roy Schrieber, both of 6565 Yale avenue.

NATIONALISTS OF GERMANY REBEL AGAINST LEADER

Warn Hugenberg to Stop Bullying Tactics.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 2.—Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, the chief of the German Nationalists and the former kaiser's henchman, who is trying to enforce a despotic rule among his followers, faced an open rebellion by 29 of the 65 members of his party when the reichstag reconvened this noon. The former kaiser was declared to have approved of Dr. Hugenberg's tactics, but even among the Nationalists the word of the former sovereign appears to have lost power.

DR. ALFRED HUGENBERG. [P. and A. Photo.]

Count Westarp and 28 members of the Nationalist party sent a formal protest to Dr. Hugenberg warning him not to continue to bully them but to "respect the liberty of action of the members of the Nationalist party."

See Nationalists Waning.

This does not mean that the Nationalist party is breaking up, Count Westarp declared when interviewed this afternoon, but Republicans believe Count Westarp's letter of protest shows that Dr. Hugenberg's power is dwindling in his own ranks and that the Nationalists, too, are becoming imbued with the democratic principles for which the German republic stands.

The reichstag was opened this afternoon by Dr. Paul Moldenhauer, minister of finance, who explained that Germany must first pay debts of close to $250,000,000 contracted last year. He promised that if the reichstag accepts the government's suggestions on the budget promptly it will be possible to reduce the tax burdens on German citizens by $150,000,000 in 1931.

The reichstag is sceptical of these promises. Its interest was centered today on the "pocket cruiser B" for which the government seeks appropriations. It wants to start the new cruiser this year, though the sister ship, the famous cruiser A, is not completed and not tried out.

Oppose Bill for Cruiser.

The Socialists unanimously decided to vote against the new appropriations. The Centrists and Democrats, who belong to the government, are also againts it. They warned Chancellor Heinrich Bruening that his cabinet should not try to pass the cruiser bill if it wanted to avoid a crisis.

HIS MESSAGE IS FOR MILLIONS

ALL-BRAN Is Health News to Them

Millions know that headaches, mental depression and other ailments are caused by constipation. They know that cathartics, pills and salt medicines will not effect permanent relief. They will be keenly interested in the natural, effective remedy for constipation that experience has revealed to other people.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is eaten everywhere today for the relief and prevention of constipation. This delicious cereal adds roughage to the diet that is absolute assurance against this dreaded disease. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve both temporary and chronic constipation.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the original ALL-BRAN. It not only prevents constipation, but contains the blood iron that enriches the blood and brings the radiant glow of health to the complexion. With milk or fruit juices, it also brings the important vitamins.

Serving Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly is a most healthful habit. It is absolutely essential in reducing diets. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Courageous Mother Changes Situation from Bad to Good

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

A booklet by Mrs. Bevans on "Books to Be Read to Children or by Them" will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The following unusual letter came to me a few days ago:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: While my children were growing up, we lived in apartments and, of course, in moving from place to place, we came in contact with every kind of environment. I think the biggest help to me in mastering environment has been my belief that all children are basically good, though all have their individual virtues, as well as faults—my children being no exception. This belief was frequently put to the severest test but, now that my children are grown up, I have no regret because of having adhered to it.

"I remember once when my boys were attracted to the toughest boy in the neighborhood because he had an interesting dog. The neighbors warned me that this boy had recently been released from reform school and they would not let their children associate with him. Even the school teacher sent for me to warn me against allowing my boys to pal with this boy. However, I encouraged my boys to invite him into our home, and I treated him as I would the finest boy in the neighborhood. He began going to Sunday school with my boys and acted up to my good opinion of him—and I never had cause to regret his influence on my boys.

"On another occasion when we moved we came into a neighborhood where there were two older boys with a bad reputation—i. e., they bullied and abused other children in the neighborhood and used vulgar language, etc. I invited these boys into my home, treated them to homemade candy and told them confidentially, "You know we've just moved here, and I'd appreciate it if you would take care of my boys, see that they do not get into fights, swear, and use nasty words—or get into mischief. And that was the end of that worry—because in order to keep my boys out of trouble they had to correct their own habits—which they did.

"I have often been secretly amused at parents who thought their children superior to others in the neighborhood, but called on me to ask me to send my children over to play with theirs. I always thanked them for the compliment but told them I never chose my children's companions—I invited them all in, and made things pleasant for them—that was the best any parent could do to help their children."

In spite of the fact that this letter seems to contradict the substance of an article I wrote some weeks ago, I feel that it is too valuable and may be too helpful to be merely filed away. It takes courage, force of character, and a way with human beings to do as this mother did. We may not all be equal to it and it would not always be feasible because there are conditions under which it would not work—conditions and individual instances that we can't go into now. A number of these exceptions have come under my personal observation. But the letter surely holds a wealth of suggestion and carries with it a big feeling of humanity.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

Headgear, called "hotcaps," is the secret of one of the newest tricks in vegetable growing in the middle west, according to L. H. Strubinger, a horticulturist at the University of Illinois. The hotcaps long have been used in the southwest to protect newly planted warm weather crops from cold winds and low temperatures.

Now that the middle west is adopting this idea, specialists are explaining uses and certain necessary precautions. Some of those hotcaps are opaque and are used only at night, removing in the morning, since plants cannot grow without light.

Others are made of waxed or paraffined paper, translucent, turning water to some extent so that they do not readily soften and lose their shape. Some even have a piece of glass on one side and may be left over the plants during the day. All of them need anchorage so that they will not blow away during windy weather.

In hot weather some ventilation is necessary. This can be accomplished in the paper types by cutting a three cornered hole in the leeward side, preventing too high a temperature within the protector. As soon as the leaves of the plant begin to touch the surface of the protector the protector must be removed to prevent damage.

Fast Stepping 40s Furnish Reason for Lots o' Trouble

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The husbands who "go stepping" are having the limelight turned on them as one of the ripe causes for divorce rebellion among wives. And the husbands who do the larger share of "stepping" aren't the young blades, either, from reports.

It's the boys getting along in the forties who, having made their little pile, think it appropriate, swank, and vastly becoming to bask in the presence of a worshipful young damsel. These old boys all run to form in their stepping out moments. They sleek down the remaining strands of hair, interview a tailor with a reputation for snappy raiment, have daily conferences with a gym director, and in their new found youth and glory naturally must seek out appropriate young companionship.

That a number of them come to grief in tabloid pictures seems no retarding influence on the species, once the germ attacks them. Getting girls to give them the sympathy, understanding and praise that is due them is no trick whatever, if there is plenty of money to spend. It is just amazing how you can buy all the understanding you need from young women if the purse isn't lean.

Older women, wives even, could probably give it were the purse strings just as loose for them. But these middle aged "steppers out" never think they can get just as good a brand of understanding at home, for some reason.

The little woman at home, who by the same accumulation of years may not be a little woman at all, but quite a big girl trying to keep herself from getting bigger by herculean food resistance, suspects the mate. She has more than a suspicion that her husband is stepping out.

Then she hunts up a de luxe couturier, maybe dyes her hair, has her daily facials, and attempts to follow in father's footsteps. Maybe she looks for understanding, too, in youth. But what she draws as consolation prize is not satisfactory. Her heart is not in the game, particularly.

The consequence is she makes a pretty pathetic picture of herself. Her taste when she feels the years slipping would normally be to let them slip. But father doesn't accede so gracefully to the passing of time. And thus we have the picture of couples who ought to be treading hand in hand toward the sunset slope grasping furtively at something that cannot be recovered.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Roy told his mother he did not want to invite a certain little boy to his party because the boy was a "sissy."

"What do you mean by a 'sissy'?" asked his mother.

"O, you know, mother," he replied, "the kind that combs his hair without being told." MRS. A. F.

Six year old Bob wanted a puppy for Christmas, but his mother decided that this would just be another care for her, so on Christmas morning the dog was among the missing.

W. A. Payne, Recorder, Retires After 34 Yrs. at the U. of Chicago

Walter A. Payne, recorder and examiner of the University of Chicago, has retired after thirty-four years of active service. He entered the university in 1893, one year after it had been organized, and received his degree in 1896.

In the following year he was appointed secretary of the lecture study department of the extension division, which he held until 1911. He also was dean of the university college between 1908 and 1913. In 1911 he became examiner, and in 1913 took over the responsibilities of the recorder's work.

Mr. Payne probably had the widest acquaintance with the machinery of university administration of any one on the Midway.

While Posing as Single.

I had been hired to fill a position which called for a single girl. Being married I decided to pose as single in hopes of obtaining the position, as I was badly in need of work. Having completed my first day's work and while preparing to go home, the boss began stressing the wisdom of married women staying home and giving work to those who had no one to depend upon for support. Taking out my carfare I dropped my purse and my wedding ring rolled out and landed right at his feet. Embarrassment? Needless to say I didn't report for work there the next day. M. McK.

Offers Loom and Warp.

"I have a good, large size loom for weaving rugs, pillow tops, etc., and a large quantity of warp in various colors which I shall be glad to give to any one who can make use of it. I should prefer giving it to an invalid or shut-in who might be able to earn a living with it. I shall also be glad to give instructions with it. "R. M."

This excellent loom may be the means of a good livelihood for some one not able to leave his home. It is easily operated, an efficient machine, and with it one is able to turn out most attractive pieces. If you'd like to become a weaver, write me about it. Please do not telephone.

Offers Victrola.

Bouses Remain the Smart Suit Factor

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The separate blouse is the most notable feature of Paris daytime fashions this spring. The tailored suits, sports costumes, and dressy silk dressmaker suits that everybody is wearing all call for blouses and so the couturiers are creating an infinite variety of plain and fancy blouses to fill the demands of chic. All sorts of materials are used to make this important accessory: Cotton, linen, piqué, tussor, satin, plaids in taffeta and mousseline, chiffon, flat crêpe, and even lace. Handwork lends a dainty touch to both tailored and dressy blouses. The lost arts of hemstitching, fagoting, crocheting, and embroidery have taken a new lease on life.

The smartest materials for the tailored blouse are indubitably white piqué, linen, and plaid mousseline. All the greatest Paris couturiers are using them, and all the smartest women in Paris are wearing them.

Piqué is Chanel's favorite and she uses it to make the smart waistcoat blouse, which accompanies so many of her tweed and jersey costumes. One of these sleeveless gilet blouses is shown at the top of our sketch. It shows the short cut-away effect so typical of Chanel. White bone buttons button it slightly to the left side. A white piqué belt marks the natural waistline.

The blouse which appears in the center of our sketch is from Suzanne Talbot. She makes it of the white linen, the material she prefers for the linings, belts, flowers, collars, and cuffs of her daytime costumes. It has a square bib made of three sections of the linen hemstitched together, edged with a dentellated box plaiting of the white linen. These dentellated pleatings also finish the turn back linen cuffs.

Gray and blue plaid chiffon is used by Jane Régny to make the third blouse, at once feminine and tailored, that is shown at the bottom of our drawing. The sleeves mount in a shoulder yoke to join the collarless neckline. The front is softened by rows of shirring on either side, giving fullness to a frill that forms a double jabot. Shirring also forms the cuffs.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Wallace of 1151 Lunt avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Alice, to Jerome F. Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dana H. Howard of 6939 South Seeley avenue. Miss Wallace is a graduate of the University of Colorado and a member of the Delta Delta Delta. The wedding will take place in the late summer.

GIRL'S DRESS.

The lingerie collar and cuffs of this dark blue silk crêpe dress are interesting details. The molded silhouette of straight lines is most youthful and smart for general year. A basque bodice is affected through its fitted line and higher belted waistline. A plaited inset of grouped plaits stitched part way provide ample fullness.

The pattern, 3417, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards of 39 inch material, with ¾ yard of 35 inch contrasting and 2½ yards of binding.

Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

The Antiquated Plank.

Once upon a time a way of boiling fish before an open wood fire was to fasten it to a piece of wood and set it up within the heat's rays. Fishermen wishing to cook a fish too large for their frying pan, or when they did not have any utensil at all, would split the fish, nail it to a shingle which they likely made on the spot, then set it up before a fire, which fire was perhaps started with the very shavings made in making the shingle. Fish, fresh and sweet from the water, when so cooked was undoubtedly great eating.

But to use a plank—doubly subject to suspicion as a sanitary utensil—merely for serving fish, even though a border of mashed potatoes is put around it, with crowded garnishes, seems to me something of an affectation and a failure at that. The preparation involves extra work, which in no wise pays for itself, especially when the cooking is poor. In fact, the better the cooking the less we need elaborate setting up of dishes. Too much furniture on the table is as hateful as too much in the room. And too many things in a dish is as bad or worse.

The individual restaurant plank is to me about as objectionable as the dusty feathered mounted pheasant of European hotel pantries, now and then brought out to set a dish of game in for the serving. Terrible, both! As to the plank, why use a pound piece of soggy wood—a fisherman threw away his plank after one using—for serving a three ounce excessively greased piece of fish in a potato border. The home plank in a silver holder, when well and reasonably set up, may present something attractive, and perhaps the meat or fish so presented may be more appetizing than on a platter. But not to me.

In fact, I have seen some preparations of this sort that looked to me as though the meat or fish served was showing its lingerie, and much too much of it. I object to lingerie effects in foods. The worst I have ever seen, or smelled, were the gray pudding rags in England; the worst I have ever seen and tasted have been poor, tasteless, watery mashed potato made into fluffy ruffles on a plank which had waited for broiled fish or meat. Mashed potatoes ought not to wait, piped or not piped in ruffles and bonbons. And on cold wood!

Not infrequently people have written to me like this: "What are the advantages of cooking meat or fish on a plank? What wood should be used? What is the method for steak," etc. Above is my opinion.

SYNOPSIS.

Catherine West of Boston, on her way to Paris, meets Geoffrey Macadam in the Havre to Paris train. Macadam is an Englishman who lives in Paris. She is a little apprehensive about the coming visit because she had received just before sailing a letter from Hermione Cushing, who tells her that Mme. Bender is far from well. Macadam is a lawyer and he tells Catherine that his firm handles Mme. Bender's affairs, but he doesn't know the widow very well. He had heard that she was ill. Arrived in Paris Catherine is a little disappointed when her cousin's chauffeur is not at the station to meet her. Geoffrey sees her into a taxi, giving her his address and telephone number. He tells her that he will be anxious to know how things are at the Bender apartment and she promises to call him. Arrived at Mme. Bender's apartment, she is treated coldly by the servants and Jeanne, Mme. Bender's maid, suggests that she go to a hotel. Catherine insists on staying in the apartment as she is suspicious of the servants. Jeanne tells her that Mme. Bender attempted to commit suicide the night before. The next morning Catherine goes in to see Germaine Bender, who is pathetically glad to see her. She tells Catherine how she had taken poison by mistake.

Geoffrey invites Catherine to dine with him and it is a relief for her to get out of the apartment and to tell him of her vague fears. He is disturbed, too. Geoffrey escorts her back to the apartment. The door is locked, but Geoffrey arouses Eduardo, who says he thought Miss West had come in long before.

The next morning Catherine calls on Miss Cushing, who takes her to her milliner, where she sees a man she has noticed hanging around the Bender apartment. Back at the house Catherine finds the door of the picture gallery open for the first time. She goes in and discovers a number of paintings missing and some valuable tapestries. She asks Jeanne about them and she says they were sold shortly before Mr. Bender's death. Catherine feels she is lying and believes she and Eduardo are thieves. She finds Jeanne is exerting a baneful influence on Mme. Bender.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

AN ACCUSATION.

If Jeanne was intimidated she showed no sign of it.

"I cannot think what you mean to insinuate," she said to Catherine.

"Simply this, Jeanne. Quite obviously that room in there has not been properly cleaned for weeks, months even. I want you to come now and look under the bed. There has been something sticky there, and the mice have gnawed the carpet bare in patches."

The sallow face swelled till the eyes were reduced to pin points. On the cheek bones areas of mottled red appeared.

"Come, please, and let me show you what I mean," said Catherine, holding open the door.

She was in doubt as to whether the woman would follow her, but after a moment saw her comply, still wearing her hat, beneath which her features were set in a mutinous mask. Without a glance at the invalid she bent down and made a brief survey of the carpet, then rose to her feet, rigid with suppressed rage.

"I see nothing beyond a few drops of spilled medicine. Madame herself knows whose fault it is that no one but me is allowed to do her room. I have from morning to night; when I go to bed I am often too tired to sleep. I am a human being, not a machine! No other person would do for madame what I do, but if my efforts are not appreciated, if I am to be criticized and called to account over trifles, it is time to give up. It is plain that mademoiselle came here for the purpose of setting her cousin against me!"

"Nothing of the sort, Jeanne. I only want you to remove whatever it is that is attracting mice. That is all."

If Catherine spoke mildly it was to spare Germaine, whose white face was quivering with agitated distress. Nothing could be gained by contradicting the maid, though what the valance concealed was not spilled medicine, but particles of food. She had even detected the odor of cheese.

An hour later Catherine sat in the study, trying to think calmly. Difficult as it was to conceive of a well trained servant leaving scraps of food upon the floor, it was equally incredible that the thing could have been done purposely. What was one to believe? One thing alone was certain. She had completely lost faith in Jeanne, whom she now regarded as a bad, if not dangerous, influence for Germaine. Devoted she might be, but for all that she was undermining the invalid's confidence in herself, fostering, whether by ignorance or design, the poor creature's fear of encroaching insanity.

"Somehow or other she must be got rid of!" she told herself, still shaken by indignation. "Perhaps this business will open the way. A thief, and incompetent into the bargain!"

She could not help feeling a little exultant over the recent scene. After this Jeanne must either mend her ways or go. She hoped it would be the latter.

However, she had much to learn, as the evening was to prove.

Amid the staid magnificence of the dining room she ate her solitary meal. Speculatively she looked around at the three fine pictures on the walls, at the tall, gold candelabra which once had adorned a palace. More objects easily convertible into money. Were the servants she now thought of as rogues merely waiting for her visit to be over before laying hands on these treasures? Well, they would wait in vain. It was her fixed intention to foil them at that or any other game they might be playing.

All at once her thoughts veered to the little notaire, A. Blom. What if he were in league with this pair, aiding them in disposing of their plunder? His visit here that night three weeks ago might have been to cast his appraising eye over things and possibly to take something off with him. Jeanne's secret conference with the man took on a new meaning. She wondered if there were any way of finding out the truth.

It was usual on the evenings she spent at home for Jeanne to call her when Mme. Bender was ready for bed so that she could go in to say good-night. However, the hour passed and there was no summons. This did not astonish her, for the feeling between Jeanne and herself was naturally strained, but when 10 o'clock struck and nothing had happened she put down her book and went toward her cousin's bedroom. The door was shut, but from the other side came sounds of tempestuous weeping.

She halted, full of consternation, thinking the strangled sobs came from Germaine, but a moment's listening informed her that it was Jeanne herself who was indulging in the violent outburst. Somehow she had not expected this. A second later words reached her, stormy with protest.

"No, madame, it is useless! All is finished, all, all! I swear to you I am going away, at once. I shall pack tonight and leave quite early in the morning. Nothing can stop me. Eduardo, too, will go. Madame will be left absolutely alone, to face the doctors, the nurses, the strange enemies who will swoop down upon her. I have done my utmost, but if madame distrusts me, then my time with her is over. I have my future to think of. I cannot support plotting and scheming behind my back by those who have their own ends to serve!"

Catherine held her breath, appalled by the hurricane of tears and recriminations. Through the outcries she caught a despairing whimper which cut her to the heart.

"Jeanne, dear Jeanne, you must not say such things! Have I ever doubted you? It is cruel to torture me like this!"

"Cruel? It is madame who is cruel! She accuses me of neglect, me who have given fifteen years of my life to her service! It is too much! How could I know this one thing was true, when every day madame sees and hears what is not there? Even now I cannot altogether believe. No, I see plainly. I am no longer wanted, and am to be cast aside like an old shoe. Enough! I go tomorrow, to give place to some person for whom madame will be only a mental case. But if when I am no longer here it is thought wise to shut madame up in an asylum—"

"Jeanne, you cannot, you must not leave me! Listen to me, I implore you to listen!"

"I will not hear, madame! I will go to my brother in the Vosges to take the long rest I have been needing this twelve-month. Then madame will realize what I have done for her, how I have protected her. She will know, she will know!"

Unable to bear more, Catherine burst into the room.

"Jeanne—what is the meaning of this?" she demanded in a stern whisper.

Quick as lightning the woman turned upon her, one finger outstretched in venomous accusation.

"There!" she cried hoarsely, "behold one who calls herself your friend! Why is she here if not to profit by madame's weakness? Does madame suppose herself for one moment that this young American has come across the ocean for love of a bedridden woman? Ask her what she hopes to get for her pains! Ask her if she is not waiting for madame to die and leave her a fortune!"

The shameless attack deprived the girl of speech. She could only stare while the stream of abuse flowed on.

"Madame's friends! Who are they? I know of none but Mlle. Cushing and Mlle. West—paupers both!"

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

This is a striking, exciting, sensuously colored piece that takes you to New Posen, a erman possession in Africa.

Here you meet August Bolte, a wealthy planter—richest and most despised man thereabouts. He is bestial. He is cruel. Not only is he treated with contempt by the officers of the German garrison, but officers of a British post, a few miles distant, cordially dislike him. His cringing slaves fear and loathe him.

For the sake of her father, who is in the power of Bolte, Helen Von Linden, a young German noblewoman, marries the brute and goes with him to Africa, though she shrinks from his advances. He does not use force, fearing she will commit suicide and thus thwart his purpose, which is to compel recognition for himself through his marriage to this beautiful aristocrat.

On the way over to Africa Helen meets Von Reiden, a young German officer. The two are immediately attracted to each other.

War breaks in on their misery, proves the finish of Bolte, as how you shall see for yourselves, and furnishes opportunity for a savage demonstration in the jungle that makes you glad you live in these United States of America. Happy, but somewhat innocuous ending.

Jean Hersholt makes Bolte a convincingly revolting person. Eleanor Boardman is a beautiful Helen. She goes about in a sort of daze—as naturally would the character she portrays, under existing conditions. Other rôles are satisfactorily handled.

Mrs. Carlyle ..... Edythe Chapman
Deuce Wilson ..... Tom Jackson
Mrs. Tilton ..... Charlotte Walker
Caleb ..... William V. Mong
Caretaker ..... Thomas Jefferson

Here's an interesting gangland picture with one Big Surprise. The movie would have been more effective had Tom Jackson and Ned Sparks contented themselves with being less stagy both as to action and speech. They remind you of little boys playing bandit in the back yard.

A Jimmy Valentinish flavor pervades the piece, which sings of a young ex-convict who, influenced by the sweetness of truly rural surroundings, a pretty girl, and the ministrations of her nice old grandma decides to go straight—finding his good resolutions greatly hampered by some of the folks he used to know 'way back when.

The film gets pretty exciting as it nears the finish. The ending will probably meet with your approval.

Lila Lee and Robert Ames make a nice pair. Montague Love is convincing as the man behind. Charlotte Walker as a Lady-About-To-Be-Robbed is the last word in affection. Edythe Chapman as Grandma is the movie's best bet.

Japanese in Chicago Greet Girl Envoys, Who Thank America

Japan's "envoys of gratitude," four young women who are touring the United States in appreciation of America's aid to Japan at the time of the Japanese earthquake of 1923, were entertained throughout the day yesterday, their second day in Chicago.

Miss Koshiko Sato, one of the four Japanese girls, was the principal speaker last night at a banquet given in honor of the girls by the Japanese Association of Chicago in the Palmer house. The other guests of honor were: Miss Kikimo Ashino, Miss Keiko Nakamura, and Miss Sumiko Tokuda.

Other speakers were: Arthur Tsuzuki, president of the association; Masasuki Kawamoto, president of the Japanese Y. M. C. A.; Mrs. Misaki Shimadzu, president of the Japanese Woman's association of Chicago; Sanjiro Shimizu, vice president of the Japanese association of Chicago, and Kinsuke Kawachi, president of the Japanese Students' association of the University of Chicago.

At luncheon the four Japanese good will envoys were guests of Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes at the Blackstone hotel. Mr. Dawes, president of the Chicago World's Fair association, was the official host, but could not attend.

In the morning the floors of Hull house resounded to the tap-tap of sandals as the four girls paid a visit to Miss Jane Addams.

Consul and Mrs. Atsushi Kimura entertained the young women at a reception at the Union League club in the afternoon.

Mrs. C. W. Gilkey Urges Social Work for Y.W. C. A.

Mrs. Charles W. Gilkey was elected national president of the Young Women's Christian association at its eleventh annual convention in Detroit, which ended Thursday. On her return to Chicago yesterday she said the two largest problems of the association were vocational counciling as an aid to unemployed girls, and "how the Y. W. C. A. can have the best religious function in this age of changing social conditions."

Mrs. Gilkey is chairman of the women's inter-racial committee of the Church federation and a member of the Woman's City club, the Chicago Woman's club, and the Fortnightly. She will remain a member of the board of directors of the local association. She is the wife of Dean Gilkey of the University of Chicago chapel.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

Do you resent it when a man does not give you his seat in a public conveyance?

The Answers.

Miss C. R. Schultz, 4518 Sheridan road, mortgage broker.—I do not. If he is tired out, and he may be for all any one in the car knows, let him keep the seat. He has paid for it. Women are as able as men to stand in cars and maintain their balance as the cars lurch, aren't they?

Miss Bertha Dvorak, 1541 Elston avenue, clerk.—I never do. I consider that a man has just as much right to the seat as a woman has. Possession is decided by the one who gets there first. Standing in a car for half an hour or so takes the place of setting up exercises.

Miss Alecia Strong, 644 West 44th street, student. — I would not say I resent it. I think it shows disrespect on his part, and I believe most gentlemen will give seats to ladies. Elderly people require a seat in any conveyance. Young women and the young men should see to that.

Miss Helen Brittain, 8026 Marshfield avenue, clerk.—I never get a seat; the car always is crowded. I come to work and go home in the busy hours. It's get to your destination somehow, and it matters little how. I would like to get a seat, just once.

Miss Mary Tyrrell, 2947 Arch street, clerk.—I don't believe I resent it, I am so used to standing. But I am not tall enough to belong to the strap-hangers' union. I say, seats for tall people so we shorter ones can see something.

Caterpillar Big as Dinosaur to Teach Public

Mechanical Monster Will Be Shown at Fair.

New York, May 2.—(AP)—A caterpillar as big as a dinosaur, sixty feet long and eleven feet high, is planned as a scientific exhibit at the Chicago World's Fair in 1933.

Visitors will walk into his mouth and behold from end to end ingenious natural wonders such as the Arabian story tellers overlooked, but which are so efficient as internal mechanisms that today they serve three-fourths of the animal kingdom. The layman will get a first hand look-in upon some of the reasons why staid scientists occasionally ask seriously whether man will survive in his "war with the insects."

The plans for making this artificial bug, higher and mightier in appearance than a mogul locomotive, were announced today by the local branch of the National Research council science advisory committee organized by Dr. Frank B. Jewett of the Bell Telephone laboratories.

Visitors will walk up five steps to enter. At the left, as the barkers have it, the ladies will see nature's own process for making silk as it is formed from a silkworm's salivary glands.

The air mined will be shown eighteen portholes on each side of the sixty foot body, the intakes of a breathing system that any flyer would envy, for it enables insects to exist in rarefied atmosphere the equivalent of the air fourteen miles up, or about double the present altitude record.

The "windows" connect with minutely branching breathing tubes, dividing and subdividing, doing away with the necessity for lungs and for circulation of oxygen and carbon dioxide through the blood.

Those romantically disposed may speculate upon an insect's heart. The caterpillars will be rather expansive, tubular in form, suspended from his back by wing shaped muscles and pumping something which resembles ice water. This substance may be shown welling up from one end of the heart over the caterpillar's head and flowing back through his body along glass runways.

The caterpillar was selected to portray entomology because it is a typical insect.

PANAMA ENVOY TELLS STUDENTS OF PEACE BETWEEN AMERICAS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jacksonville, Ill., May 2.—Señor Dr. Don Ricardo Alfaro, minister of the republic of Panama to the United States, told students of the Illinois Woman's college here tonight about "the progress of conciliation and arbitration on the American continents." The address was given as a feature of the Institute of Pan-American Relations, sponsored by Chester D. Pugsley of Peekskill, N. Y., and was heard by seven hundred delegates and guests.

"The Pan-American treaties," the diplomat said, "are unquestionably the most advanced multi-lateral treaties in existence today. They were signed in Washington Jan. 5, 1929, and provide for the obligatory arbitration of all disputes among the larger commonwealths on the American continents.

"The basis of arbitration is found in international law. Civilized nations live within that law or violation must lead to arbitration or war. We have condemned war and want to organize arbitration.

"The Pan-American treaties form a composite structure responding to one single purpose of peace founded upon justice. Their spirit was conceived in honesty and the provisions drafted with accuracy. We can have faith and cherish the hope that there will be no attempts to avoid arbitration."

President Charles P. McClellan of the Illinois Woman's college was toastmaster of the banquet at which the envoy spoke.

Other addresses during the day were by Prof. J. Fred Rippy of Drake university, on "Problems Involved in Our Relations with Mexico," by Herbert C. Herring on "The Elements of a Constructive Policy Toward Mexico," by Prof. Isaac Cox of Northwestern university on "The Future of the Latin-American Policy," and by Prof. William S. Robertson of the University of Illinois on "Problems Involved in Our Relations with South America." Dedication of new buildings will feature the program tomorrow, with Bishop Edwin H. Hughes and Francis G. Blair among the speakers.

Women Voters Outlaw Wars Before Dancing

Keen Debate Precedes Brilliant Spectacle.

BY KATHERINE McLAUGHLIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 2.—[Special.]—The Brown hotel is ablaze tonight with all the panoply attendant on the fête of the National League of Women Voters, in honor of its tenth birthday. A brave show it is, with some of the country's most brilliant women, beautifully groomed and gowned gathered in the flower banked ballroom to commemorate the closing of this first decade.

Yet the really significant proof of progress in those ten years came this afternoon in a spirited debate on the floor of the convention, which culminated in a vote pledging the league to active support of "international reductions of expenditures for war and national measures preparatory to such international reduction."

It was considered one of the pithiest arguments in the history of the organization, and the amount of information indicated in speeches from the floor might have given United States senators pause, it was pointed out.

Because of the subject's bearing on the naval armament treaty just concluded at London and now before the senate, which it is predicted will receive unanimous indorsement tomorrow in the convention, and because of the widespread interest in this department of the league's program, the topic proved of great interest.

Opposition to adoption of the measure was led by Mrs. Quincy Wright of Chicago, who made it plain that her sentiment, notwithstanding, was one hundred per cent in sympathy with the policy of the league for reduction of world navies. She objected, she explained, to commitment of the membership to support of a subject on which she said accurate information is difficult to obtain and disseminate, and none too easy to comprehend.

"The league has a record," she stated, "for accurate information on items of its legislative program. The multiplicity and confusion of naval statistics makes it difficult to understand thoroughly, or present clearly, in a brief time, information necessary to oppose intelligently every current measure submitted to congress on naval building programs. Yet I am heartily in accord with the reduction of navies."

She was supported in this view by two prominent league members, Miss Katherine Ludington of Lynn, Mass., and Mrs. A. J. McGuire of St. Paul. Miss Ruth Morgan of New York, chairman of the department that presented the measure, was credited with achieving a vote sufficient to carry it by her interpretation of its portent.

"You understand, of course," she said later, "that the treaty the senate is now considering contains a clause providing that the United States build enough more cruisers to bring it up to naval parity with England.

"This clause, however, is permissive—not mandatory. We may build them, but we do not have to do so. Thus the league finds it pleasing, since it is in line with its naval reduction policy, and makes the treaty acceptable to this organization. I am certain no opposition will be offered to the resolution endorsing it."

"The national angle, however, is what made many of our members hesitate to accept this recommendation. It is the first time that a naval measure has been presented for support on an international program, and it happens that there is specific and important application to such an angle now before us in the London treaty.

"Thus if the senate ratifies the treaty, and decides to start a cruiser building program to bring us up to parity with England, the action we have taken here today leaves our naval board in a flexible position with regard to such a program. We would not be committed to support the naval building legislation, while thoroughly endorsing the treaty itself."

"A good many of the membership feel that we may have put ourselves in the position of acclaiming such a building program—but that is not the case."

Early in the day, as Miss Morgan presented the items her department desired to have the league go on record as supporting, a stout of applause greeted her reminder that the proposal for United States adherence to the permanent court of international justice has not been removed from the schedule. Miss Belle Sherwin of Cleveland, national president, finally was compelled to rap for order.

Weather Helps Flower Plan for Hospitals

BY PAUL POTTER.

Early response to THE TRIBUNE'S announcement of the opening of its annual "lilacs for the flowerless" campaign Monday, May 19, indicates interest on the part of home owners, gardeners and civic organizations in Chicago and neighboring cities.

"The schedule of delivery of flowers by garden clubs from Chicago suburbs is complete, and with additional booths in railway terminals this year, we can accommodate more flowers than ever before," stated Mrs. Walter S. Underwood, official in the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild. That organization will cooperate in the lilac campaign.

Other groups and individuals have volunteered to supply lilacs and means of distributing them to the hospitals, sickrooms and homes of those without flowers in the city.

"There will be no lack of flowers this season," declared an enthusiastic garden club official yesterday. "While the lilacs will be ready earlier in some localities such as Wheaton or Glen Ellyn, than in other localities such as the north shore, that insures us a steady supply of fragrant blossoms throughout the blooming season."

Balmy spring weather following severe rains and winds were said by those interested in gardening to have helped yesterday in hastening the progress of the lilacs. Some reported the buds in condition for earlier blooming than usual, although the season was described as about normal by most of those queried.

An abundance of buds on both white and lavender lilac bushes was said to forecast heavy foliage in about two weeks, which can be stimulated and continued for some time by constant cutting of the flowers to make room for the later opening buds. Thus the bushes are aided in THE TRIBUNE'S campaign, while thousands who seldom see growing plant life under their less fortunate circumstances have benefited likewise.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—Vice President Curtis was guest of honor at a dinner given tonight by the Turkish ambassador, Ahmed Muhtar, in the Turkish embassy. The wife of the counselor of the embassy acted as hostess for the ambassador. The guests included the Italian ambassador and Signora de Martino; Mme. Alfaro, wife of the Panaman minister; Senator and Mrs. Ashurst; the Swiss minister and Mme. Peter; the Hungarian minister and Countess Szechenyi and their daughters, Countess Cornelia and Alice; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, and others.

The Polish ambassador, Tytus Filipowicz, gave a dinner tonight in honor of the American ambassador to Poland and Mrs. John N. Willys. Other guests were the Cuban ambassador and Señora de Ferrara, Senator Frederick Walcott, Dr. and Mrs. James Brown Scott, Dr. and Mrs. Vernon Kellogg, the military attaché of the French embassy, Gen. Raymond Casanave; Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Simonds, Countess Felicia Gizycka, and others. Polish Constitution day will be celebrated tomorrow by mass in St. Paul's church at 10 a. m. and a tea in the garden of the embassy.

The secretary of war and Mrs. P. J. Hurley were dinner hosts tonight in their home.

Mrs. Robert P. Lamont, wife of the secretary of commerce, was the ranking guest at dinner tonight of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Gravener.

The commercial attaché of the British embassy and Mrs. McCormick Goodhart are in Europe for a short stay.

Dr. Alfred Pearce Dennis, vice chairman of the tariff commission, and Mrs. Dennis gave a dinner tonight in honor of the Brazilian ambassador.

The former commissioner of the District of Columbia and Mrs. Tallaferro were dinner hosts in honor of the Mexican ambassador and Señora de Tellez tonight.

Vincent Astor's Yacht Docks with Its Cargo of Galapagos Creatures

New York, May 2.—The Nourmahal, Commodore Vincent Astor's yacht, made fast at pier 1, North river, today bearing a strange cargo from the Galapagos islands—tortoises, iguanas, penguins, rare and flightless cormorants, boobies, forked tail gulls, and a number of young sea lions.

More than 7,000 miles were covered by the yacht among the twelve islands of the Galapagos group. Several live specimens of the "testudo porteri," which scientists believed extinct, were among the collection.

The banquet is sponsored by the supreme council and Alpha chapter of the Chicago College of Dental Surgery and Beta chapter of Northwestern university.

Annual Frat Dance.

Face Powdering Deserves the Care Given to Rouge

by Gabrielle Donnelly

Some women look as if they put their powder on with the most studied care. Some look as if they slapped it on and some look as if their powder were shot out of guns at long distance range from the face. Some, too, it might be added, look as if they didn't own a puff or powder box.

Now, powdering ought to be a finer art all round than it is. Heaven knows we have had years of practice with it. And the manufacturers have done all in their power to make it an added attraction to the face. They have given us a fine range of colors to choose from; they have supplied us with different "weights" of powder to suit the different kind of skins, and they have given us handsome boxes with which to decorate the dressing tables, so we ought to coöperate a little more heartily with them in return.

We ought to give to this powdering business a bit more of the concern we give to laying on a coat of paint. We are more particular, most of us, about getting the paint on so it won't look too painted. We are becoming more and more expert with the lipstick. With mascaro and eye shadow we're not too amateurish, as a rule, either. But this powdering business, because it has something in the nature of a duty about it, is done with the ginger-liness or sloppindss or lack of heart in it that some of our other duties provoke.

Begin this laying on of powder low on the neck, so that there will not be the chin-break in tones of skin above and below the jaw. Powder should be smoothed on with a fairly good sized soft puff when you have the home privileges of wielding a good sized puff. It should be studied under a clear light so that it does go on evenly and smoothly. It should have a fine mat finish. No flouriness. No flaking and there should be no spottiness from raw skin that was overlooked in the "slapping" on of powder.

Then, there are powders for oily skins and powders for dry skins. Heavier ones are most suitable for the oily skin and fine and superfine powders for the fine and extra fine skin. There are cold cream powders for harsh, dry skins. And extra fine powders are recommended for the face with lines. A heavy powder on a lined face accentuates wrinkles.

Society Busy Planning Next Autumn Events

BY THALIA

It was only a few weeks ago that we were lamenting the inactivity of the social cosmos, and now, all of a sudden, there is a great deal going on.

There are meetings to plan next autumn's and winter's charitable affairs, teas for various reasons, several benefits, weddings and before-wedding parties, and a little of everything that makes the fashionable wheels go round.

The flurry will end shortly and the summer calm will set in. Then schools will be out, and townfolk will have betaken themselves to suburbs and summer resorts for the leisurely country life, but it's pleasantly exciting just now.

Mrs. Walter B. Wolf gave a buffet luncheon yesterday for members of the women's board of St. Luke's hospital, and the following appointments were made for chairmen of committees for the fashion show to be held Oct. 21 at the Stevens hotel: Mrs. John W. Gary, general chairman; Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, chairman of fashion revue and exhibitors; Mrs. William S. Covington, program committee; Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, tea and dinner; Mrs. E. I. Oakahy, table reservations; Mrs. John C. Pitcher, tickets; Mrs. Frank Hibbard, boxes; Mrs. A. Watson Armour, models; Mrs. William H. Mitchell, publicity; and Mrs. Arthur Bendelari, flowers.

Many of the groups of young people who attended the annual benefit dance for the Lower North Community council at the Bal Tabarin last night were "Dutch treat" parties. The Press Hodgkinses, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr., the Randolph Paysons, Miss Frieda Foltz, Miss Betty Scriven and John Barnes presided at several of these.

Joseph Belden's party included Bertha Palmer, Dorothy Ranney, Herbert McLaughlin, and the Madlener twins. The Ernest Byfields had a dinner party, and after show time Clifton Webb and Libby Holman of "The Little Show" company joined them. There was cabaret entertainment during the evening, and, besides, a boxing match.

The first formal meeting of the Ravinia Opera club is to be held next Wednesday noon at the Moraine hotel in Highland Park. About 250 members of the organization are to be guests of Louis Eckstein at luncheon.

The officers of the group this year are Mrs. Ralph Poole, honorary president; Mrs. Donald McPherson of Winnetka, president; Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. William B. Hale, Miss Caroline Kirkland, Mrs. George S. Parker, Mrs. James A. Patten, Mrs. Walter Dill Scott, Mrs. William Sutherland, and Mrs. Leverett Thompson, vice presidents; Mrs. Arthur Byfield, recording secretary; Mrs. Russell Lord, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Harvey Pardee, treasurer. Miss Isabel Cline is chairman of the Children's day committee, and there are also chairmen for each of the north shore suburbs.

Mrs. John Paul Welling of 33 Bellevue place leaves today to sail from New York on Sunday for a month's trip in Europe. When she returns the Welling family is to move out to Lake Forest for the summer. They have taken the Paul Moyer house, which they occupied last year after the Moyers were married in late June.

Several Art Shows Opened; One at Cordon

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Several charming little exhibitions have just been placed on view or are about to be shown. Yesterday afternoon the Cordon club opened its general exhibition of works by artist members. The exhibit includes oils, pastels, water colors, miniatures, etchings, crayons, silhouettes, photographs, sculpture, silver, and pottery. Among the artists whose achievements work for the high average of the exhibition are Jean Crawford Adams, Frances Badger, Marie Blanke, Ethel Coe, Lucie Hartrath, Beatrice Levy, Anna Lynch, Flora Schofield, and Vernon Thomas.

The Chester H. Johnson galleries in the Fine Arts building opened an extremely interesting exhibit (their annual spring exhibition) of paintings and pastels by French artists, chiefly of the modernist persuasion. Among the names of importance are Redon, Van Gogh, Derain, Utrillo, Modigliani, Pissarro, Toulouse-Lautrec, Mary Cassatt, Segonzac, and Marie Laurencin.

At the Hoosier Salon, 211 West Wacker drive, is a "two man show" of paintings by two women artists, one of them a Mrs. Young, the wife of a doctor. The paintings are delightful.

The Chicago College club opens its annual members' exhibit of paintings and handicrafts this afternoon with a tea in its pleasant rooms at 196 East Delaware place.

The Free Lance Guild of Artists has just opened an attractive exhibit of work in the Kroch galleries.

The prize awards in the second international exhibition by the Chicago Camera club current in the east wing galleries of the Art Institute have been announced. The first purchase prize of $50 went to "Composition," by C. B. Seiffert of Toledo, O.; second purchase prize of $25 to "Miserable Attalige," by Leonard Misonne of Belgium; gold medal to "Head of Young Man," by Valentino Sarra; silver medal to "Portrait of Russian Boy," by Alexander Leventon, and bronze medals to F. E. Geisler, J. Capstan, A. Kono, and John Skara.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—The French ambassador and Mme. Claudel gave a dinner party last evening at the Ritz tower. Among their guests were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Coudert, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. W. Guthrie Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Reid, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver H. I. La Farge gave a dinner party this evening for Mrs. La Farge's daughter, Miss May Willis Swords, and Mr. Frederic Gallatin Hoppin, who will be married tomorrow in the Church of the Incarnation.

Mrs. J. Nelson Steele Jr. sailed tonight on the Augustus for Italy, to be absent five months, passing most of the time in France and Italy.

Mrs. Guy Fairfax Cary and her daughter, Miss Eileen Burden, who have been in Europe, returned this evening on the Aquitania.

DOROTHY E. BRINKLEY AND HELEN RITCH ARE APPLAUDED AT RECITAL

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Dorothy Evans Brinkley, soprano, and Helen Ritch, pianist, pooled their artistic resources in a joint recital at Curtiss hall last evening, and each succeeded in impressing the audience that she had a right to appear in public. Miss Brinkley is agreeable in both voice and personality, quite evidently a painstaking student into the bargain. As a result her first group of songs in the Italian language were loudly applauded, a fate probably applying to the others as well, though another musical event made it impossible to stay for them.

Miss Ritch was heard in a modern group by Griffes, Debussy, Turina, and de Falla, a rather unusual set for a young artist. She, however, proved herself equal to all demands.

The International Harvester Choral society gave a part-song concert at Orchestra hall last night under the direction of Richard B. De Young. As its name indicates, the choir is composed of employés of the commercial organization whose name it bears, and these are drawn together by the desire to learn choral music in rehearsal and present it in concert. As last night's appearance showed, the members justify themselves in both ambition and realization.

They were assisted by two solo artists. Jacques Gordon, who is just closing a brilliant phase of his career as concertmaster of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, played two groups of short but attractive numbers, and Pedro Espino, a highly talented young tenor, sang in Spanish and English.

The Event of EVENTS—Opportunities to Save Beyond Your Fondest Hopes!

MANDEL MONTH

. a store of youth
. a store of fashion
. a store of moderate price

Hear Libby Holman of the "Little Show" on the Air—Mandel's March of Progress brings you this famous star in a program of popular songs. Over Station W-G-N; Sunday at 7:30 to 8:00 o'clock.

It's Mandel Month! Drooping wardrobes and tired purses rejoice, for here's the medicine they've both been looking for! It's a great month-long event in Mandel's 75-day 75th Anniversary—an event that brings you the very newest of fashions at prices that give you no idea of their real values! Be here early, as the early shopper has a truly great advantage!

You MUST Have a Suit!

Wool crepe suits like these will go everywhere you go—from now on through Summer. And these suits agree to a Mandel Month price that will amaze the most disgruntled of purses.

The Most Important Suit Fashions Have Peplums and Capes

They're beautifully tailored . . . of the new wool crepes . . . with tuckin crepe blouses (both long and short-sleeved!) In Pirate blue and black. Sizes 14-20.

Mandel's Ensembles—Fourth Floor—Wabash.

Choose a Silk Blouse or Two For Your Suit!

$3.95

Many Others in Both Sleeveless and New Short Sleeve Styles

Mandel's Blouses—Third Floor—Wabash.

Coats for the Miss

Copy Exciting Fashions at an Exciting Price!

$48

The coat-with-fur is a most important fashion for Chicago! And this year furs and fabrics get together to make this fashion as perfect for later warm days as it is for the cool days now.

Wool Crepes with Broadtail . . . Fitch . . . New Favorites

These swanky wool crepes are lightweight and slim and are so becoming to your figure! And these furs make fascinating "dressmakerish" collars. In blue, black. Sizes 12 to 20.

Mandel's Misses' Coats—Fourth Floor—State.

SILK SUITS---Chic As the Junior Miss Who Wears Them

$19.75

Vogue says, "The outstanding fashion for street wear when Summer weather comes will be the silk suit . . . " and these little silk suits are already walking out on Smart Young Things. That's the reason we planned this event NOW . . . and Mandel Month is the reason for the price!

Both Printed And Plain . . Both One-Piece And Two-Piece!

Some have cunning frocks with long coats. Some have little jackets and crisp blouses of batiste or linen or crepe. And the little skirts do all sorts of exciting things! Of course, they're simply amazing things at this price of $19.75. Intriguing new colors . . . and sizes from 11 to 17.

Mandel's Junior Miss Frocks—Fourth Floor—State.

Young foreheads furrowed with care over the problems of a Summer wardrobe need have no more worries! For distressing thoughts of the cost of a new dinner-frock . . a new "in-between" frock . . a new street frock . . just fade away at the sight of this Mandel Month Price of $28.

Jacket Frocks . .
New Lace Frocks . .
Fluttery Chiffons, Too!

Pretending to be tailored with jackets on—and amusingly gay with jackets off! Sophisticated little affairs of crepe Elizabeth . . darling chiffon things . . and gorgeous lace frocks for either afternoon or formal wear! Spring shades . . sizes 14-18.

Mandel's Misses' Frocks—Fourth Floor—State.

Tear Drop Jewelry

A Colorful Array of Jewelry — Designed by Chanel, Priced for Mandel Month!

It's the gayest we've seen and it does all sorts of charming things to your Summer frocks. Called "tear drop" because of its clusters of tiny drops. Chokers in the new 18-inch lengths, some with bracelets to match. Each, $1.95.

Others priced $2.95 and $3.95.

Mandel's Jewelry—First Floor—Wabash.

Hats That Top Fashion

But Keep Their Prices DOWN—For Mandel Month!

$5

It's much easier to afford a hat for every costume when hats are only $5! But it's not always easy to find the right hat for every costume—at $5. But you will in this Mandel Month event!

Bakus . . . Ballibuntls Lacy Straws . . . Felts Pastels at Just $5!

They're copied from expensive wide-brimmed models . . . uplift brims . . . unusual berets . . . in all headsizes. Just $5.

Mandel's Millinery Salon—Fifth Floor—State.

These Tennis Frocks

Are Paris Copies That Don't Often See This Price!

$14

The two Jane Regny copies have tiny capelets. The Chanel copy is sleeveless and shows her favorite bows. (Sketched at right). In cool pastel shades and white. Sizes 14-20.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 2. — Bud Clancy with two homers, a triple that was longer by a hundred feet than either of the homers, and a single was the big shot along with Teddy Lyons when the White Sox took the New York Yankees on a dizzy merry-go-round ride here this afternoon. It was a shutout until one was out in the last of the ninth, and the final score was: Chicago, 10; New York, 1.

BUD CLANCY.

While Clancy was the star on the offensive and Lyons the heavy gent on the defensive, it cannot be said that Bill Cissell, currently the American league's leading hitter, was in the shadow of an eclipse. Bill contributed a triple and a single in three times at bat, scored four runs, walked twice, stole second and stole third. He also started one of the three Chicago double plays.

Bill's batting mark for the season to date is .447, and there hasn't been a game of the eleven the Sox have played in which Cissell hasn't made at least one hit. And speaking of batting averages, Mr. Clancy himself is straggling with a mere .438.

Bud Starts Early.

The first blanket that Clancy threw on the spirits of some 20,000 customers who didn't have to work this afternoon was a homer into the right field stands with Cissell on in the first inning. His next effort was a clip foot triple off the center field screen which drove in Reynolds from first in the third inning. He singled in the eighth to drive in Cissell, and in the ninth, with Cissell on second, he got his second homer, again in the right field bleacher, well toward center field.

The Sox made eight hits off two Yank pitchers. Kamm got one of those not propelled by Clancy and Cissell, and Harris got the others. Both were singles. Johnson struck out seven during his eight innings, six of them in the first three innings.

Lyons allowed only six hits, and none of them figured in the one run acquired by the New Yorkers. Three of the hits were nullified by double plays and two were wiped off the slate in the third as a result of a fine bit of work by Johnny Riddle.

Thomas Choice Today.

Tommy Thomas is scheduled to go after his third victory of the season tomorrow afternoon and will be opposed by a left handed gentleman, either Zachary or Wells.

Today's contest started with a pass to Cissell, who stayed on first while Ruth came in to short right to get Reynolds' fly. Clancy then perpetrated his first gigantic swat, a homer that went into the Ruthian bleacher, well inside the right foul line. Cissell came in ahead of Bud, of course. Jolley then fanned, and so did Harris.

It was three up and three down for the Yanks in their first.

In the Sox second Kamm fanned, making it three strikeouts in a row for Johnson. Smith, apparently seeking to avoid a strikeout, bunted and was thrown out by Chapman. Riddle struck out, making it four out of five for Johnson.

Again it was three up and three

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Philadelphia came to town yesterday for its first game of the year with our Cubs. And the rival "murderers' row" picked up where they quit last season. The Cubs won, 11 to 8, proving they could outrun the Phils although they didn't outhit them.

Thirty-three thousand, the largest crowd since opening day, saw the base hits bounce in all sectors. Most of the throng were women taking advantage of the pass gate.

Hal Carlson was touched for 15 hits, one more than the Cubs secured from a trio of Burt Shotton's pitchers, but he had better command when hits meant runs. There was only one error behind Hal while three misplays by the Phils helped the Cubs' cause.

Lou Koupal started for the easterners, but he went away after Cubs hit safely in the sixth inning. Old Pete Alexander marched on from the bull pen with two runners on base and subdued this uprising, but thereafter Alex did not fare so well. After another oldtimer, Cy Williams, had batted for him in the eighth, and singled, a young lefthander, Milligan by name, finished for Philadelphia.

O'Doul, Cuyler Get Four Hits.

Lefty O'Doul ran his string of hits to four before the Cubs finally got him out. His record at the plate was tied by Kiki Cuyler, but Cuyler's blows lacked the distance, only one being for two bases. Three of Lefty's were doubles.

For those who like home runs, the first of the ninth topped the afternoon's entertainment. With the Cubs leading 11 to 5, Carlson permitted two circuit clouts, which, with a single in between, counted the Phils' final three runs.

Chuck Klein, first up, drove the ball over the right field fence inside of the flag pole for his fifth home run of the season. Hornsby threw out Whitney, then Hurst singled and Sigman followed with a long fly which barely cleared the screen to drop in front of the first row of right field bleachers.

Philadelphia did not waste any time scoring. After Thompson had filed to Wilson in the first inning, O'Doul lined into left field and pulled up at second. Klein singled to score O'Doul. Then Carlson put on the brakes.

Cubs Take Lead.

The Cubs got that run back and another besides in the second. After Wilson had lined to Sigman in center, Cuyler hit past first base. Kiki then decided to steal second, and when McCurdy's throw hit Kiki's foot and bounced into left field he continued to third. On the next pitch Grimm doubled over O'Doul's head, Cuyler scoring. Bell's high fly wasn't of any assistance, but Hartnett's was. Thompson let the ball fall behind him, Grimm scoring and

EARL OF DERBY.

DERBY CANDIDATES

Something about the starters in the $50,000 race at Churchill Downs which will be renewed for the 56th time on May 17.

BY FRENCH LANE.

SYDNEY—Former Senator J. M. Camden of Kentucky has been trying for almost half a century to win a Kentucky Derby. He doesn't seem to have much of a chance to do it this year, although the colt Sydney will carry his red, white and black silks in the big race.

Chicagoans may be just a bit partial to Sydney. They watched him score a stake victory at Hawthorne last year when he beat Try Too, Gallant Knight, Lightning Jones, and a dozen others. But after that victory Sydney didn't amount to much, although he did manage to win a race later in the fall at Laurel from an ordinary band.

On breeding lines Sydney is just another race horse. His sire, Craigangower, was imported by Mr. Camden from England at a big price. Since coming to America Craigangower has sent many sons and daughters to the races. Many of them have won races, but not one has reached greatness. Sydney's mother was Rima, a daughter of Ben Brush. Most of old Ben's sons, grandsons and great-grandsons have traveled on to fame, but Sydney has never qualified in that class. Rima's dam was Proud Daisy, and Proud Daisy was also the mother of Miss Joy, a fair kind of a horse that raced in this country a few years back. But except for Miss Joy I can't find another relative of Sydney that could possibly do much damage in a Derby combat.

Sydney, during his 2 year old campaign and his brief 3 year old activities, has been beaten by too many bad horses to be given much consideration in the Derby. Yet he doesn't look quite as bad as Donerail did back in 1913, and Donerail won the Derby that year and paid his few loyal followers almost 100 to 1.

BE IT DERBY OR DARBY, THE EARL IS HERE TO SEE IT

Insists on Pronouncing Name His Own Way.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 2.—Lord Derby, who pronounces his name Darby, and protests in a mild way against the American pronunciation of the name, arrived here this evening on the Aquitania to visit some friends and attend the running of the Kentucky Derby, which he calls the Darby.

There was a little confusion about the pronunciation, but it finally came to be understood that when he said Darby he meant Derby and that when the American horse race and ship news reporters said Derby they meant Darby. It seemed to be a point on which the two schools of pronunciation ought to be able to get together on some compromise and his lordship agreed to compromise on his way.

Family Godfather to Race.

"My family is godfather to the Derby," said he, using his own pronunciation, and here Mr. Joseph E. Widener, the man who saw him first, so to speak, and induced him to come over, broke in to say that his lordship would go on the air at Louisville on Derby day—and you may call it Chumley if you like—to explain why the name does not strike the ear in the same way that it meets the eye.

His lordship is a thick built man with a figure and face which, as he said, lend themselves very much to caricature.

"But," he said, "I want to plead with the artists of the press not to make three very common mistakes. They often draw me wearing a monocle and spats and smoking a large cigar. May I say that I do not wear a monocle; that I have never worn spats, and that I smoked a cigar once, 45 years ago, and lay down for dead?"

Mr. Widener Wears a Derby.

Draw a span of mutton chop whiskers on Lord Derby's picture and a union jack across his vest and you have a fairly accurate representation of the John Bull of the political cartoons. His face is of a roast beef complexion and his neck, encased in a high collar that was almost a sleeve, is the thick neck of a hearty old party who must have been a mighty man in his subaltern days.

There was a bit of a contrast between the baggy informality of his get up and that of Mr. Widener and of Grovery Whalen, who went down the bay on the Macom, the royal barge of the Tamany dynasty, to meet him. Mr. Widener wore a dark, mouse colored, almost black, business suit, a black tie and a black derby or darby as the case may be. Mr. Whalen, since this was to be an informal reception, went just as he was, in a gray suit, a gray felt hat and a blue shirt, and looked as though no more than two or three valets had turned him out.

"Awfully Jolly," He Says.

These two went aboard the Aquitania as she lay off quarantine with two mail boats tied up at her stern and the mail bags tumbling down long canvas tubes into their holds. They took an elevator to B deck and there, as they stepped off, they ran plump into his lordship. He wore a blue suit with exceedingly high water trousers, and, if he hadn't exclaimed, "Awfully jolly," it would have been hard to accept him as an English earl.

"Hello, hello, your lordship!" Mr. Widener exclaimed.

"Hello, hello, Mr. Widener; awfully jolly seeing you," said his lordship.

"Your lordship," said Mr. Widener,

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: The City of Chicago built the tunnels under the river in Washington and La Salle streets for vehicular and pedestrian traffic. At the time they were called holes in the ground and frequently were referred to as representing a waste of that much public money.

Charles T. Yerkes, then of the street railway lines, saw how those tunnels might be utilized as a means of avoiding the open bridge nuisance for his street cars. He obtained their use under the terms of a council franchise whereby his street railway cable system built and donated to the city two double steel bridges across the river at Wells and Clark streets. The cost was $300,000.

The Wells street bridge was opened to traffic in August, 1888, and the Clark street bridge in September, 1889. F. R.

The first time I ever saw a colored person was toward the close of the civil war. Word reached our household that a wagon train of Negroes, headed north, would pass through Chicago on a certain day. I climbed to the top of a high board fence on State street between what is now 60th and 61st streets, and watched the unusual sight of wagon after wagon passing, all filled with refugees from the south. The wagons were of the covered type, and made up a procession nearly five miles long. They were drawn by mules, and guarded by Union soldiers who rode on horseback with rifles resting on their saddle pommels. F. F. B.

In the '80's in the month of March there was a heavy snowfall which covered the streets. At that time there was no adequate provision or implements for removing snow, and street car traffic was interrupted for two days. Hannah Simon.

The Spring has been backward, but we still expect to see
The bees a-holdin' riot in the bloomin' apple tree;
The hummin' bird will flutter, like a flash, from flower to flower,
And the wren will entertain us as he chatters by the hour.

Yes, Nature may be fickle but we know she still is good,
She'll bring us all her blessings when she gets in proper mood;
We'll have as many riches as the grasses in the sod,
And through the flood of bounties we'll be lookin' up to God. B. G. Green.

What's the Matter with Cubs?

So many fans have been asking that question because the north siders have won only about half the games thus far played that Expert Vaughan felt impelled to answer there is nothing wrong except a belated start and injuries.

The Cubs figure to win the flag again. Even Expert Vaughan's answer and the dope, however, does not mean necessarily they will do so. The pennant race is a long, stern struggle, with several other teams having hopes almost as high and chances nearly as great as ours. It is too early to be either discouraged or over sanguine as many were before the season opened. Then, just think if we were the New York Yankees, or even the World Champion Athletics!

EIGHT RECORDS FALL AS OHIO RELAYS OPEN

Columbus, O., May 2.—[Special.]—Eight records were broken today in the first day's program of the seventh annual Ohio relays, one a world's record.

John Wonsowicz of Froebel High school, Gary, Ind., led the record breakers when he pole vaulted 13 feet 4 inches, bettering the world's interscholastic record of 13 feet 3¾ inches. Wonsowicz cleared the bar at the record breaking height on the first attempt but could do no higher.

Other records broken today were in the quarter mile relay for prep schools, won by Newark; shot put by Davis of Cleveland Tech, of 51 feet 2¼ inches; a high jump of 6 feet ¾ inches by Juseks of Cleveland John Adams school. Universities broke records in the Ohio college 100 yard event, Lombacher Ohio Wesleyan running the distance in 9.9 while other Ohio college relay teams lowered three other meet records.

Seven universities relays, five college relays, nine special events and the weight event triathlon are scheduled for tomorrow, with the 100 yard dash as the high spot of the meet with George S. Simpson, Ohio State world's record holder, matching strides with Eddie Tolan of Michigan, Claude Bracey of Rice and Norm Lombacher of Ohio Wesleyan.

Northwestern Tennis Team Beats Michigan State, 9-0

Lansing, Mich., May 2.—[Special.]—Led by Capt. John Curtiss, Northwestern university's tennis team defeated Michigan State college, 9 to 0, here today. Curtiss, playing No. 1 position for the Wildcats, beat Capt. Kane of Michigan in straight sets. Northwestern meets Michigan at Ann Arbor tomorrow.

Illini Catcher Ineligible; Has Too Many Credits

Champaign, Ill., May 21.—[Special.]—Philip W. Engvall, regular catcher on the Illinois baseball team, was declared ineligible today because he was too energetic as a student. Engvall earned sufficient credits for graduation in three and a half years. The Western conference rules provide that no student may compete who has sufficient credits for graduation.

Waukegan Woman Bowls Into 7th Place in Singles

Louisville, Ky., May 2.—(AP)—High scores already rolled up in the Women's International Bowling tournament withstood the attacks of representatives of nineteen cities today, and the best showing made was that of M. Gesell of Waukegan, Ill., who rolled into seventh place in the singles. Her score was 557—211, 196, and 150.

Lexington, Ky., May 2.—(AP)—J. M. Barker, 67, for many years prominent as a breeder of thoroughbred horses, died at his home here today. He was stricken with paralysis last September. For years he was associated in the horse raising business with Dillard Hill, but retired ten years ago.

BOYS! ROGERS HORNSBY'S YOUR TEACHER TODAY

Gives Pointers on Hitting at Wrigley Field.

BY ARCH WARD.

This may be your day with somebody else, but it's Rogers Hornsby's day with Young Chicago.

At 9:30 o'clock this morning the Rajah, next to Babe Ruth the highest salaried man in baseball, will take charge of the third lesson in THE TRIBUNE'S baseball school for boys.

Class will be held at Wrigley field where last Saturday 5,500 lads watched Gabby Hartnett demonstrate the points that have made him one of the game's outstanding catchers.

Every boy is invited to attend. There is no age limit. All you need for admission is a free ticket, which appears in this morning's TRIBUNE. Gates open at 8:30. There will be music to entertain you until class time.

Chance to Win Bat, Balls.

In addition to the opportunity to learn baseball from a master teacher, boys today will be given a chance to win a Hornsby bat and two baseballs autographed by the Cubs' great hitter. Ten students will be summoned to the batter's box. Each will take three swings at balls pitched by a Cub hurler. The one who in Hornsby's opinion shows the best form will be awarded the bat and balls.

No boy interested in improving his hitting can afford to miss today's lesson. Where could you find a greater teacher than Hornsby? He has risen to greatness that falls to the lot of few men in baseball. He has been a great hitter, a great fielder, and a great manager. He is known as a genius of the playing field, a Napoleon of the diamond.

Star Since 1915.

Hornsby came into the major leagues in 1915. He stepped into the spotlight the following year by hitting .313 for the Cardinals. Since then he has amassed a list of records that has painted the sky with his name. He has led the National league in hitting in seven of the last ten seasons. In 1924 he established an all time league record with a mark of .424. The next year as player manager of the Cardinals he won the first world's series championship that ever went to St. Louis by defeating the Yankees four games to three. He has been voted the most valuable player in the league twice, in 1925 and 1929. Few deny it was the Rajah who made the Cubs National league champions last season. His all time major league batting record follows:

1917—St. Louis	.327	1925—St. Louis	.403
1918—St. Louis	.281	1926—St. Louis	.317
1919—St. Louis	.318	1927—New York	.361
1920—St. Louis	.370	1928—Boston	.387
1921—St. Louis	.397	1929—Chicago	.380
1922—St. Louis	.401

Other Cubs to Help.

While Hornsby is the professor in charge of today's instructions, he will be assisted by a distinguished faculty. His aids include Capt. Charley Grimm, Lester Bell, and Woody English. There also will be a pitcher and catcher. Coach Jimmy Burke, who helped Hartnett conduct last week's class, also will assist Hornsby.

THE TRIBUNE and the students who avail themselves of the lessons are indebted to the Cub players and management for their coöperation. You can show your appreciation by good behavior in the classroom. No one will be allowed on the field except the ten chosen to compete for the bat and balls.

English's double to the flagpole in left started the Cubs off to two more runs in the third. Heathcote scored him with a single to right. Hornsby walked and Wilson was safe when Thompson booted an easy double play ball, filling the bases. While Cuyler was hitting into a double play Heathcote scored. Grimm popped to Whitney to end the round.

English came to the Philadelphia's assistance in the fifth. With two down O'Doul hit his third double down left field foul line. Klein grounded to English, who juggled and then threw to Bell at third in an effort to get O'Doul. Whitney followed with a double to left center, scoring O'Doul and Klein. Hurst's grounder to Grimm retired the Phils.

Drive Koupal to Cover.

Scoring was resumed in the Cubs' sixth. Wilson lined over Thompson's head for a single. Cuyler repeated on the first ball pitched, Hack stopping at second. Grimm bunted perfectly along third base, beating it out, to fill the bases. Bell hit to center, driving Wilson and Cuyler over the plate.

This was enough for Koupal, and Alexander relieved him. Alex struck out Hartnett and Carlson popped to McCurdy. English then drove the ball to Thevenow's right. The shortstop took it on the run and tossed to Whitney at third, forcing Grimm.

In the seventh, after Alex was out, the Phils hopped on Carlson. Thompson doubled to the right field screen. O'Doul's single to center, his fourth hit, scored Thompson. Klein singled sharply through Grimm's legs, sending O'Doul to third. Whitney then bounced to Carlson, and O'Doul was run down. Klein reached third on the play. Hurst singled past Grimm, scoring Klein and putting Whitney on second. Sigman was hit by Carlson, filling the bases. Hal then knocked down Thevenow's smash and threw him out.

Bruins Pick Up 3 More.

The Cubs came back with three runs in their half of the seventh. Heathcote singled to center and Hornsby beat out a bunt. After Wilson had fanned, Cuyler bounced the ball off Thevenow's chest for a single, filling the bases. Grimm's single to right scored Heathcote and Hornsby Cuyler stopping at third. While Thevenow was kicking Bell's grounder Cuyler sneaked over the plate. Hartnett and Carlson popped out and brought the inning to a close.

Lefty Milligan pitched the eighth for Philadelphia. In between outs Heathcote and Wilson walked. Cuyler's double to center scored them. Then came the ninth and three harmless runs for the Phillies.

ORDERS STADIUM TO CHANGE ITS LIGHT SYSTEM

Officials of the Chicago Stadium have been ordered by Michael J. Kennedy, commissioner of gas and electricity, to alter the electric lighting system to conform with the city electrical code. The order, which was sent out April 10, states that unless the changes were made within 30 days the city would take out the meters and cut off the current.

Charles K. Creiger, chief electrical inspector, said yesterday that the Stadium is not equipped with an emergency lighting system for use in case the regular circuit becomes defective. He also said the lighting system does not conform with that portion of the city code that requires the exit lights to be on a circuit separate from the other lights. The electric mains, he asserted, are being overloaded by the use of lights calling for power beyond that for which the system was designed.

Another inspection of the lighting system will be made by Creiger on May 10. He said that if the changes have not been made the current will be cut off.

Platers Give Aurora Ladies' Crowd Thrill

BY FRENCH LANE.

Most of the 7,500 spectators in the ladies' day crowd at the Aurora race track yesterday will remember for a long time the stretch runs which two old selling platers, Anaconda and Alto, made to win the two best races on the program.

Anaconda, now 7 years old, ran like the Anaconda of three and four years ago. Coming from last place at the head of the stretch, ne got up in the final strides to overcome the favorite, Sandy Hatch, by half a length.

Alto's drive was a beauty. When Anaconda's great run, When Alto sailed on past Bob Rogers a sixteenth from home and then went on to win by five lengths, he turned back the shortest priced favorite of the day.

Double for "A" Horses.

It completed a double for those system players who back the horses' whose names begin with the letter "A," and altogether it was a profitable afternoon for that brand of system players. When Anaconda dropped his nose in front, he paid a little more than 5 to 1. Alto was at 4 to 1. Some of the "A" system players parlayed the bet and took down more than 30 to 1 on the big play.

When Bob Rogers failed, it was the hardest blow the crowd took on the chin. Bob has no excuses except that a recent arrival from the east called Favorite ... ran him bowlegged for seven furlongs, and when Bob finally took the lead at the head of the stretch he didn't have much left. This made it fairly easy for Alto, which had been rated behind the fast pace in the early stages. In the stretch Alto was running away from those behind him. Tanist staged a late rally and wound up in third place.

Circles Field to Win.

Anaconda experienced bad racing luck before he got into a real stride. The field was half way down the stretch when he made his first move. Then, coming on the outside and going around the entire field, he gained in every stride and was up just in time to head the fast running Sandy Hatch. The time for the six furlongs was 1:15 2-5. An early morning rain made the track slow.

Jockey J. W. Frye, a youngster from New Orleans, was the hero of the ladies' day crowd. He rode brilliantly to get Mother's Choice up in time to win the 6 furlong second race, and it was his well judged saddle effort that made it possible for Alto to take down the day's feature.

SOX OVERWHELM YANKEES; CLANCY HITS TWO HOMERS

Lyons and Cissell Aid in 10 to 1 Victory.

Sox Score 3 More.

Ted Lyons started the third with a strikeout, making it five out of six for Johnson. But Cissell tripled over Combs' head. Reynolds struck out, giving Johnson six out of eight, but this one distressed him mightily, for the third strike got past Dickey to the screen. Cissell scoring and Reynolds reaching first. At this point Clancy came up with his Herculean triple, scoring Reynolds. Jolley tapped to Lazzeri and Harris fouled to Dickey.

The Yanks started a modicum of excitement in their third. Chapman popped to Smith and Dickey flied to Reynolds. Johnson then got credit for the first hit off Lyons when Cissell fell as he sought to retreat for a pop to short right. Combs doubled to right center but Johnson, trying to score, was out at the plate, Reynolds to Cissell to Riddle. The play involved a nice bit of work on the part of Riddle, who picked up a grounded throw and whirled in time to get Johnson by an eyelash.

The Six went hitless in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings, and the Yanks were just as helpless in the same span, except that Combs got his second hit and the third off Lyons after Johnson had struck out in the sixth. But the blow didn't develop into a threat, for Koenig forthwith hit into a double play, Smith to Clancy.

Double Play Foils Rally.

It was three up and three down again for the Sox in the seventh, but the Yanks again thought they had started something in their half. Ruth walked after a 3 to 2 count, amid the violent protests of Lyons and Riddle. Gehrig popped to Smith but Lazzeri singled to left, Ruth stopping at second. Durst grounded to Cissell and a snappy double play was executed, Cissell to Smith to Clancy.

Bud Does It Again.

In the ninth, with McEvoy pitching, Cissell singled with one out and stole second. Reynolds popped to Koenig, then Clancy got his second homer, again scoring Cissell ahead of him.

In the Yanks' ninth Combs flied to Watwood. Koenig walked and went to second on Lyons' second balk. He went to third unmolested and scored while Cissell was throwing out Ruth.

KNOX TEACHES NOVICE HOW TO GROOVE SWING

BY HARLAND ROHM.

George Knox, professional at Calumet, devoted the second lesson of Randall Granquist, one of THE TRIBUNE'S novice golfers, to grooving the golf swing he had taught the lad in the first lesson. Most of the time was devoted to the mashie, for Knox is a firm believer in the axiom, "If you master a mashie, you master golf."

Starting again on the fundamentals of the grip and stance, Knox corrected a tendency of young Granquist to grip the club too tensely. "Grip a golf club too tightly and you feel its weight in your hands," the professional said. "Grip it easily and you feel the weight in the club head, like a ball on the end of a string.

Don't Need Strength.

"You don't need strength to hit a golf ball," Knox continued. "The club weighs only 13 or 14 ounces, but 13 or 14 pounds, and it's the speed of the clubhead when it hits the ball that brings distance." Stopping for a moment he corrected Randall's desire to grip too tightly with his right hand, saying, "Don't be afraid to cover the left thumb with the right hand. If you grip the little finger of the right hand tightly over the left forefinger you destroy the value of the overlapping grip."

Stopping often to correct the boy's stance, grip and swing, Knox continued by telling him to find the most natural position to address the ball. "Everybody's built differently," the pro said, "and while there is a good set stance with the feet rather close together, the best stance is the same as if you're starting to walk down the street—in which you feel best balanced."

As Randall began to hit balls, Knox praised the boy or told him what was wrong with each shot. "Don't be afraid to let the club head go through,' he would say after a weak shot. "the clubhead will pick the ball up if you hit down on it. Always swing the club in line with the object you're hitting at, and don't look up too soon after the impact.

Keep Your Head Still.

"It isn't even necessary to keep your eye on the ball, if you'll keep your head still," the professional continued. "It's moving the head, not the eyes, that shifts the body and makes a missed shot. Don't swing out and around. Swing down and hit through the ball. Let your arms go with the shot.

"Don't quit the stroke as the club head hits the ball, but carry on through. The finish of the stroke is exactly the opposite of the top of the swing; your left arm is straight out at the start of the down swing and the right arm should be out at the finish of the swing. You'll never go wrong following a shot through.

"Imagine your left arm and the club are one piece, and swing smoothly. You can't hit a golf ball with jerks. You sliced that one," Knox said as Randall took a practice swing, "you hit too much with your right hand. Use your left arm to start the shot down, the right will come in anyway. You can't keep it out. Get your right hip into the shot and turn it with the swing."

Indians Rally to Beat Red Sox, 8 to 3

Boston, Mass., May 2.—(AP)—Cleveland won its fourth straight game today by scoring six runs in the last two innings to beat the Red Sox, 8 to 3, in Boston's first east-west game of the season.

Joe Sewell's record for consecutive games played ended when he was forced to remain in bed today with a temperature of 102. Starting in 1920, Joe had played 1,102 consecutive games for Cleveland.

MAKING GOOD

Thumbnail sketches of new major league baseball players of promise—where they were developed and their attainments.

Benjamin Rudolph Frey of the Cincinnati Reds' staff isn't in the big show merely to beat the Cubs. The fact that he has pitched 25 innings against them and allowed them only two runs since he came up might indicate this, but Benjamin really is serious about beating 'em as they come.

Frey happened into major league circles late last fall as the result of an exceptional year under Clarence Rowland at Nashville. The kid rolled up a mark of 22 victories against 11 defeats and the Reds ordered that he be delivered promptly. He was, and the first thing he did when he arrived last September was to lose a 1 to 0 game to Charley Root.

His stock in trade is what the trade calls a fast sinker. In other words, it's a "screw" ball with speed. The Cubs, after seeing him twice this spring, getting only one run in eighteen rounds, admitted it was hard to hit. He also has a curve worth while, but doesn't make much use of it.

Bennie as they call him, just turned his 24th birthday, and for his baseball background has high school experience as well as minor league. He pitched two seasons with the Jackson, Mich., high team and also played basketball. Then he broke out in 1923 with a paying job in the semi-pro ranks at Angola, Ind. His labors there induced the Toledo club to sign him and he remained there through the 1926 season, after which Nashville took charge of him and developed him into big league timber.

Loyola Routs Six Pitchers; Defeats Weber Nine, 17-5

Loyola pounded six Weber pitchers yesterday to win, 17 to 5, in the second game of the season in the north section of the Catholic league at Blues' park. The six hurlers were good for a total of 15 hits. The victors scored seven runs in the third inning, and came back in the fourth to score four more. Score:

Batteries—Belniak, Kush, Bates, Lechowski, Kula, Meniek, Ryazek, and Stepnkowski; Le Comte, Hogan, Dilion, and Elden.

Be It Derby or Darby, Earl Is Here to See It

Then they were presented to Lady Maureen Stanley, the daughter-in-law of Lord Derby, who typifies the American conception of the English girl, being blonde and very fair.

His lordship said he would be back in a moment as he just had to say good-by to the captain and some pals and get his umbrella, although the day was the hottest of the year and the sky quite clear.

Now they all got back into the elevator and piled off the big ship, across the narrow gap of water by way of a short plank and aboard the Macom, which promptly cut loose and proceeded up the bay toward the municipal pier. Mr. Widener and Mr. Whalen retired to the stern under the awning and conversed for a few minutes with Lord Derby, pronunciation optional.

Kentucky Meets Opposition.

Presently the newspaper chaps were summoned to the stern under the awning to interview his lordship and he, with the manner of a game fellow, with a hard situation no longer to be averted, hopped up from his chair and began a talk that was almost an oration, and very fast.

"I was saying," he said, "that I'm quite willing to answer questions, but I am out here in America to enjoy myself and"—quite a few words lost here owing to rapid delivery.

"What inspired your visit?" asked Col. Walter Moriarity, a Kentucky colonel of the staff of Gov. Flem Sampson. He had in his pocket a telegram from the governor instructing him to see that his lordship wanted for nothing in the U. S. A. But Col. Moriarity had encountered superior forces. He represented Churchill Downs, but Mr. Widener is interested primarily in Belmont Park and is running a special race in his honor at his place on the Monday following the Derby.

His Own Derby's Best.

"Mr. Widener is the inspiration of my visit," said his lordship. "I came out to America to visit the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Park and to renew an acquaintance with him."

Another question was asked.

"The best Derby I ever saw naturally was the one I won myself, with Sansovino, in 1924," the earl replied. "The next best, I think, was the one where I backed the winner at 50 to 1. The winner was Common. The first derby I ever saw was the dead heat between Harvester and Gatien in 1884."

What did he think of the influence of American horses in England?

"Croker won the Derby with Orby. His name appears in a good many pedigrees but he wasn't a first class horse and I am not sure it was a good thing to have his blood in there."

"How do you call it?" he asked. "Ree-Count or Rye-Count. Ree-Count is it? I think he was a first class horse and it was an awfully sporting thing to send him over. Our racing is entirely different from yours and the jockey may not have been familiar with conditions. You haven't what we set tremendous store by, the turf to race on. It was madness to send Papyrus out here. Damaged his reputation. The only way to run English horses on the American track is to send them out as yearlings before they are fully developed."

"What," a voice put in, "do you think of our skyline?"

"Yes," said Mr. Widener and Mr. Whalen, "come and have a look at our skyline."

So they went forward to the pilot house and closed the doors and hid.

Anglers! 1930 Michigan Fish Code Is Ready

BY BOB BECKER.

Michigan's new digest of the 1930 laws governing fishing are ready for distribution. Anglers planning on a trip to the Wolverine state may get a copy of this digest by writing to the conservation department at Lansing. Because of the changes in the regulations as provided by the last session of the Michigan legislature every fisherman should read the new digest before wetting line in Michigan's streams or lakes.

The Michigan trout season opened Thursday. But where it is legal to fish for trout is another question, because Michigan has a complicated system of opening and closing streams. The new digest of laws lists all the open streams, so it should be mighty handy for the devotees of the long rods who figure on a May trip for a mess of brook or rainbow trout.

Streams are listed by counties, and full details of how much of each so-called open stream may be fished are included. For example, in Alger county part of Hickey creek was open to fishing May 1, and the new digest lists this section as follows: "Hickey creek down from highway M 94."

This year the general fishing season [bass, etc.] opens June 25, instead of June 16, in the lower peninsula, another fact that should be kept in mind by those planning fishing excursions to Michigan. In the upper peninsula July 1 is the opening day.

Maroons to Meet Indiana Nine Here This Afternoon

Chicago and Indiana baseball teams will meet this afternoon on Greenwood field. The Hoosiers trimmed the Maroons 7 to 1 at Bloomington in the first conference game. Will Urbon, a right hander, will be on the slab for Chicago and will probably be opposed by "Lefty" Veller, who held the Maroons to four hits at Bloomington.

REDS SCORE 7 RUNS IN SECOND; BEAT GIANTS, 9-8

Cincinnati, O., May 2.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds put on a big burst of hitting in the second inning today and opened their stand against eastern clubs by beating the New York Giants, 9 to 8. They made eight hits, among them a double and a triple by Heilmann, off Fred Fitzsimmons and Ralph Judd in the one inning.

ABE 'n' ANDRA saw Them All and √ √ Double Checked This One

18 CUNNINGHAM AVENUE, ST. ALBANS, HERTS.

Gentlemen,

After carefully examining each shoe, I quickly picked this one. I was then told that this type was also Andra' Kirkaldy's choice.

I am not surprised, for I know that Martin Calf skin upper and stout leather soles with genuine Scotch Tacketts, combine to make the finest Golf Shoe it is possible to build.

With their low broad heels and comfortable forepart this pair of shoes will 'follow through' from the first to the last tee of any match.

Yours faithfully,
Abe Mitchell.

ABE MITCHELL
Premier Golfer of England and a member of the famous Ryder Cup Team, selected this Golf Shoe from a group of the best custom models in all England.

THE ROYAL & ANCIENT GOLF CLUB OF ST ANDREWS, FIFE.

Dear Sirs,

After carefully looking over the various shoes submitted to me by your representative, I have picked this one. In my opinion it is as good a shoe for golf as ever I saw.

"Ye canna wear these oot and they will hold the ground like a squirrel on a tree."

Yours faithfully,
Andrew Kirkaldy

If according to the latest statistics there are three million golfers in the U. S. A. it is a safe bet that a good many of them this year will follow the new 1.68 golf ball with a new pair of $6.60 Golf Shoes.

Our representative spent a month roaming around all the famous courses of England and Scotland, sketching styles as they stepped up to the first tee, talking with the players at the 19th hole, making notes of Leathers, Lasts, Patterns, Rubber and Leather Soles, Linings, Wing Tips, Plain Toes and Moccasin types.

With this information, our man went to London and bought 22 pair of golf shoes, ranging in price from $10 to $42 in American money, and took this collection of high-priced golf shoes direct from London to Abe Mitchell's home in St. Albans.

The shoes were placed on a table—the price marks and labels removed, and when Abe Mitchell selected this shoe, he did not know the Price or name of the Maker, but after carefully examining every shoe, he picked up this shoe made by Bunting of Dover Street and said, "This pair of shoes will follow through from the first tee to the last of any match."

Abe Mitchell liked the broad low heels, spoke of the comfortable forepart of the last, the Upper Leather, Sole Leather, Scotch Tacketts, etc., and said, "The whole combination makes this the finest golf shoe that it is possible to build."

The Upper Leather in the Original is a new water-proofed calf-skin tanned by Martin of Glasgow. Our man made a special trip to Scotland and saw Mr. Martin, and purchased the entire first American Importation of this new leather.

Bunting's $32.76 Original is made with a hand sewn moccasin type vamp—full leather lined—with a double sole—steel slugged leather heels and the sole is set with Genuine Scotch Tacketts (spikes). Every feature of the Original is faithfully copied in the $6.60 Regal Reproduction, even to the real hand sewn vamp and broad comfortable last.

And this is only One Style of the greatest line of Sport Shoes in America. White, Brown and Grey Buck—Black, Tan and Natural Calfskin—Smoked Elk and Soft Norwegian Grain—Rubber, Leather, and spike soles—60 different Styles—All One Price $6.60.

LEGGE DERIDES AND DEFIES HIS C. OF C. CRITICS

Farm Board's Policy Will Not Be Altered.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Chairman Legge of the federal farm board today asserted his intention to continue present policies regardless of yesterday's declaration by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in opposition to alleged governmental interference with private business.

"The chamber of commerce proposes to make the farm board impotent and would sponsor another national conference to adopt some more resolutions of sympathy for agriculture," said Legge.

"That action simply confirms what we told the membership of that organization Wednesday—they are for something to help the farmer only until they find out it works.

Prefers to Fight in the Open.

"Naturally, we had hoped they would support our efforts to aid agriculture, but if they are going to oppose us we are glad they have come out in the open. It's much easier to deal with an enemy who is squarely against you than one who pretends to be friendly but fights you behind your back.

"Our client is the farmer and we are going to continue to serve him just as the agricultural marketings act intended we should—for his benefit, not the benefit of someone else."

Supporters of the farm board appeared satisfied with the outcome of the controversy in the chamber of commerce convention. One theory was that farmers will be more ready to join coöperatives when they realize that the farm board program has incurred the displeasure of the grain interests and other business groups.

Mr. Legge's part in the controversy seems to have strengthened him with agriculture. He was commended today by Representative C. W. Ramseyer [Rep., Ia.], in a speech in the house.

HUFF ANSWERS ATTACK.

The United States Chamber of Commerce is making a snap judgment on the efforts to solve the farm problems. This was the comment made here yesterday by C. E. Huff, president of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, concerning the adoption of a resolution by the chamber in Washington condemning farm board policies.

The work of the farm board, the Washington resolution stated, imposes hardship upon business enterprises which are thrown into competition with the government.

In Mr. Huff's opinion the latest suggestion for an investigation of the agricultural situation is really inspired by a desire to check the present rapid advance of the coöperative marketing movement.

Mr. Huff returned yesterday from the northwest and announced that St. Paul, Duluth, and Minneapolis are being considered for the seat of the spring wheat area branch of the organization. A decision, regarded of considerable importance because of the large amount of grain that will be handled through the corporation's stockholders in that territory, will be announced within a few days, Mr. Huff said.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Hunted

It's Gay Night on Radio; Dance Tunes Fill Air

Listener Finds Number of Enjoyable Programs.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

Last evening's radio programs must have been especially satisfactory in homes where informal social gatherings were held, and especially in homes where there was dancing, for there was not much else but dance music and light entertainment on the air.

The new Friday evening 9 to 10 W-G-N miscellaneous program, provided by dance and symphony orchestra, double male quartet, and vocal and instrumental soloists, is top notch stuff of its type. Henry Selinger directs this program, and he well knows how to create and project it.

The Northwestern singers presented a lively program from WMAQ, 9:30 to 10.

From 9:30 to 10, also, a program through WBBM, originating, I believe, at WCCO, Minneapolis, attracted attention. Organ solos added a certain amount of individual color, and the popular numbers by a male quartet had a catchy lilt.

Mozart's Symphony in G minor was played from WBBM at 8:30, and there is nothing heavy about this morsel of fancy work.

Funeral Services Are Held for Lamp Co. Official

Funeral services were held yesterday for Alfred E. Foley, vice president of the Coleman Lamp and Stove company, who died in Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, on Tuesday following several months' illness. He had been with the Coleman company since 1906, and was manager of the Chicago branch. He was a member of the Beverley Country club, South Shore Country club, and Progressive lodge, A. F. & A. M. He is survived by his widow, mother, two sisters, and a brother. Burial was in Oakwoods cemetery.

Builder of Two Chicago Railroads Dies in Canada

TORONTO, May 2.—(AP)—George Beeks, railroad builder in the United States and Canada, died yesterday at 72. He laid the rails for the Michigan Central from New York to Chicago, and the Illinois Central from Chicago to New Orleans, and had just finished for the Canadian government the laying of tracks giving a rail outlet to Hudson bay in northern Manitoba. He was a native of Canada.

LUIGI, GENIUS OF FAMOUS LONDON CLUB, DROPS DEAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 2.—Fashionable London was shocked today to learn that the suave, silver haired Luigi, famous figure in the capital's clubland, dropped dead early this morning shortly after returning home from the renowned Embassy club in Old Bond street. This pleasant little Italian was the friend of kings, princes, noblemen, diplomats, and millionaires, and died practically a millionaire himself, although 35 years ago he was obliged to take a job at $1.50 per week until he learned English.

But Luigi Naintre knew how to make money. Everything he touched turned to gold. In 1920 he bought the Embassy club for $30,000 and sold it to a syndicate three years later for $210,000, retaining a part interest as well as a position as manager with a salary of $30,000 yearly.

Under his direction the Embassy club averaged $450,000 in ten months of the year. He issued 25,000 memberships with an entrance fee of $100 and annual dues of $40. The finest foods and wines were obtainable. The secret of Luigi's success was to make each one feel as though he was the only one who counted.

"The Runaway" Tonight

Another of those gripping radio romances tonight by the W-G-N Players! Tune in between 8 and 9 o'clock. A thrill in every line. A romantic drama of pastoral life and blackmail in high Washington society.

Soap 'n' Water Brigade to Fore

Tonight at midnight, they march out with soap and brush, those Knights and Ladies of the Bath, led by Coon-Sanders and their whoopee-making Nighthawks. The party lasts until 2 —or after.

Dance Music as It Should Be

By B. A. Rolfe and his Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra tonight, between 9 and 10 o'clock. All your favorite dance tunes and some old popular successes played and sung just the way you like them. A sparkling half hour!

And These Tonight!

At 10:10, Louie's Hungry Five . . . the Ashley Sisters, harmony queens, at 7 o'clock, together with the Goldketters and the W-G-N Symphony Orchestra . . . Hal Gillis, in those old minstrel songs at 10:30 . . . a feast of listening!

C. A. WILLIAMS, COURT MASTER, IS DEAD AT 61

C. Arch Williams, a master in chancery for 19 years and former chief attorney of the sanitary district, died last evening at his residence, 4830 Drexel boulevard, of an illness which had kept him from his duties for several months. He was 61 years old.

Born in Bryan, O., Mr. Williams came to Chicago as a youth, studied law at Lake Forest university, and was admitted to the bar in 1894. In 1910, while a member of the law firm of Bradley, Williams, Kearns & Farrell, he was appointed master in chancery of the Superior court by Judge McSurely, a post he retained until his election as attorney for the sanitary district in 1919.

Resigning the latter appointment two years later, he was appointed master in chancery of the Circuit court by Judge Rush and retained the post until the present time. He was a member of various Masonic orders and a past grand regent of the Royal Arcanum, fraternal insurance organization. His widow, Gay Wilbor Williams, survives him.

Funeral Rites Monday for Mrs. H. Simons, Pioneer

Funeral services will be held on Monday at 10 a. m. at the chapel at 3021 Fullerton avenue for Mrs. Hannah Simons, 82 years old, a resident of Chicago for 65 years, who died yesterday at the home of a daughter at Charlotte, N. C. Mrs. Simons' first Chicago home was at Harrison and Wells streets. A son, Herman H. Simons, resides at 4828 North Kimball avenue. Interment will be at Waldheim cemetery.

Dentist for 30 Years on North Side Dies Suddenly

George D. Mitchell, 60 years old, 7523 Sheridan road, a dentist practicing on the north side for more than 30 years, died suddenly last night while at dinner in a restaurant at 1950 Irving Park boulevard. Patrons of the restaurant called a physician, but Dr. William J. Mitchell, 3957 Lincoln avenue, pronounced Dr. Mitchell dead on his arrival.

CHRYSLER CORP. FIRST QUARTER EARNINGS SAG

Reflects Slump in Auto Industry.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The pall of unfavorable earnings statements by big corporations in varied lines continues to hang over trade and industry. And it affords rather cold comfort to say the reports square with expectations. While they are "water over the dam," still they exercise a current influence.

W. P. CHRYSLER.

The Chrysler corporation yesterday joined other big automobile concerns in showing the drastic slump in that industry during the first three months of this year. And the industry had several lean months in the latter part of 1929. Chrysler net earnings for the first quarter were only $180,717, which was equivalent to 4 cents a share on 4,431,575 common shares. However, the company maintained its dividend by drawing on surplus for $3,142,956. In the first quarter of 1929 net earnings were $8,838,173, equal to $2 a share on 4,411,990 common shares, and surplus after dividends was $5,529,181.

Betters Position.

"Net operating profits for the twelve months ending March 31 were $13,244,712," President Walter P. Chrysler stated. "This shows that, notwithstanding the current recession in business, the corporation during the last twelve months has earned its dividends, reduced its debt and substantially increased its net current asset position.

"Conditions in the automobile industry now are more stabilized and the industry probably has turned the corner for the better. There has been a marked shift in the character of automobile business toward lower priced models and the Chrysler corporation is in a position to improve progressively its share of the changing market."

Pullman, Skelly Oil Report.

In other lines, the Pullman company and the Skelly Oil company both reported sharply reduced earnings. For the first quarter of this year Pullman had net earnings of $1,366,898 from its transportation division, compared with $2,229,450 in the first quarter of 1929. These earnings, however, do not include those of the manufacturing division. First quarter earnings of Skelly Oil were $547,510, or 50 cents a share on the common stock, compared with $1,170,208, or $1.07 a share, in the corresponding period last year.

"The decline in earnings is attributable to lower prices for crude oil and refined products," President W. C. Skelly said, "but since the beginning of the second period material improvement in this condition has been realized and it is expected to continue."

Steel Prices Decline.

The sagging tendency of steel prices continues. The American Steel and Wire company, subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, yesterday made cuts of $2 to $3 a ton on wire rods, nails and plain wire. These reductions were in line with those made by competitors. Heavy melting scrap steel was reduced 25 cents a ton in the Chicago district and a further reduction is expected. Ore shipments from upper lake ports totaled only 107,559 tons last month, compared with 2,516,241 tons in April, 1929.

The weekly mercantile reviews are rather cautious in tone; but one reports bank clearings 8.6 per cent below a year ago, and another finds business failures fewer than last week but more numerous than a year ago, and a third reports building construction improving but still 14 per cent below a year ago.

"With the beginning of the fifth month of the year, some additions to business recovery appear, although a general return of activity is still deferred," Dun's Review says. "Appraisals of the situation stress the many contrasts which exist and sentiment in the different trades varies according as the immediate trend is favorable or otherwise."

Sales of Butter and Egg Futures Ahead of 1929

Total sales of butter and egg futures on the Chicago mercantile exchange for the first four months were 12 per cent above the corresponding 1929 period in value, and over 10 per cent greater in volume, according to Business Manager Lloyd S. Tenny. The combined value this year was $97,610,691, comparing with $87,171,909 a year earlier. The volume was 30,117 cars, against 18,213 cars the first four months of 1929. April sales on the exchange increased in volume for butter, but slightly decreased in value, owing to lower prices this year, while eggs declined in both.

Federal Public Service Report Tells of Expansion

Expansion made by the Federal Public Service corporation was reflected in the annual report of the company just issued. Gross revenues for 1929 are reported at $3,209,523 as against $1,389,504 in the previous year. The statement shows a balance of $779,154 available for depreciation, amortization and miscellaneous income charges, after provision for funded debt and preferred dividends. The company which is controlled by H. M. Byllesby & Co. and the American Equities company, acquired twenty-four additional public utility properties during the year.

Tells of Big Sum Spent in Steel Battle

Youngstown, O., May 2.—(AP)—Testimony linking Bethlehem Steel corporation officials with the purchase of Youngstown Sheet and Tube company stock during the proxy fight over the merger of the two companies was related in a deposition today by William J. Morris, Sheet and Tube treasurer, in the suit brought by Myron C. Wock Jr. of Youngstown to enjoin the merger.

He said he bought 23,576 shares, paid for by G. M. P. Murphy & Co., New York bankers, whose senior partner was a Bethlehem director. The brokers deposited $3,950,000 to his credit in the Union Trust company, Pittsburgh. He spent $3,678,758 for the stock, which was voted for the merger.

Consults with Hoyt.

Morris also said he consulted with Elton Hoyt II., partner in Pickands, Mather & Co., of Cleveland, ore shippers, about stock purchases. Hoyt previously had told of buying large amounts of Sheet and Tube stock during the fight, which ended with approval of the merger with a margin of 58,000 shares.

Morris testified he did not know whether Charles M. Schwab, Bethlehem chairman, had negotiated for the purchase of 5,422 shares at $180 a share, from Julian Kennedy, Pittsburgh engineer. The stock had been offered to Morris by a Pittsburgh banker and was purchased by him at $180 after conferring with Hoyt. The hearing here adjourned this afternoon until next Tuesday. Tomorrow the attorneys will go to Cleveland for resumption of the hearings at Cleveland.

See Unique Situation.

New York, May 2.—(AP)—The New York Stock exchange today was notified by the management of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company that the minority stock which opposed merger of Youngtown Sheet and Tube with Bethlehem Steel corporation had been suspended from transfer.

The effect of the order was to render practically nonnegotiable some 330,000 Youngstown Sheet and Tube shares held by Cyrus S. Eaton, Otis & Co., and other minority stockholders.

It was said in Wall street circles that the order created a situation unique in corporate annals. Holders of the shares charged that not only would trading be hampered in the "dissenting stock" but that such shares would be affected if used for collateral. Traders expected that the stock would seek an immediate readjustment for the relief of the stockholders affected.

Illinois Absorbs 22,416 New Autos During April

A total of 22,416 new cars were sold in Illinois in April, according to figures from the research department of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce. The state's total for the first four months of 1930 is now 69,588 new passenger automobile sales, as compared with 85,419 for the first four months of 1929. Sales for April, 1930, were ahead of the preceding month by a total of 1,477 cars and the total was only slightly more than 6,000 cars behind the April, 1929, figures which were the highest of the year. The figures also revealed the fact that Illinois is one of the most active states from the standpoint of new car sales this year.

Announce Stock Offering of Phillips Petroleum

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 2.—An offering of 675,709 shares of unissued capital stock of the Phillips Petroleum corporation to stockholders of record May 15 on the basis of one share for each 4 shares of stock held at $32 a share was announced today by Frank Phillips, president. The offering, which has been underwritten by a group headed by Bancamerica corporation and Chatham Phenix corporation, will provide additional funds for extending the gas, public utility, manufacturing, transportation and marketing divisions of the company.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Storm Ruins Things.

Bulls on Radio Corporation of America got all perked up at first yesterday on an analysis by one of the leading brokerage houses of Wall street, tending to show that the company's common shares were sadly underpriced, and then the storm came along and ruined everything.

Hiram Walker.

Apparently the much heralded business depression has been affecting the consumption of alcoholic beverages, as Hiram Walker's sales are reported to have been falling off during the last few months.

Wins Honors.

Kroger Grocery was among the stocks acquitting themselves with honors on the day. According to a statement issued by a member of the board of directors no change in the dividend rate is contemplated.

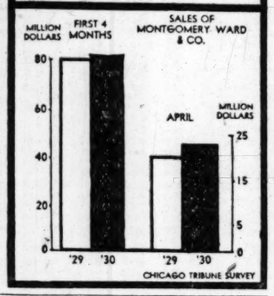
Scent Mystery.

Wall street had another of its periodical mysteries to deal with yesterday, in the shape of Manhattan Electrical Spply. That stock had been an active feature in market activity recently, and had been turned over in relatively heavy volume yesterday. Yesterday, however, no trading was done in the stock and report was current that for the moment there was no ready market for it.

Hear of Negotiations.

It was understood yesterday that the Appalachian Gas corporation is negotiating for the purchase of about 300,000 shares of the stock of the Memphis Natural Gas company, in which National Power and Light company has held substantial minority holding. The acquisition of 300,000 shares would give Appalachian about one-half interest in the company.

MONTGOMERY WARD HAS SALES GAIN OVER LAST YEAR



SAYS MINNESOTA P. & L. WROTE UP PROPERTIES BY ABOUT $21,500,000

Washington, D. C., May 2.—(AP)—Continuing its investigation into the financial structure of American Power and Light company subsidiaries, the federal trade commission today heard testimony of a recorded increase in the value of properties of the Minnesota Power and Light company of over $21,500,000, or 126 per cent.

Arthur E. Lundvall, an accountant for the commission, made the statement. In describing the acquisition of the Minnesota Power and Light company by the American Power and Light, Lundvall said the latter had received securities from the Minnesota company valued at $39,200,000 in exchange for property and securities valued at $21,214,997, a difference of approximately $18,000,000.

In addition, he said, the Minnesota company had written up property transferred to it valued at over $17,000,000, to a total of over $38,700,000, or approximately 126 per cent. The writeup of $30,232,000 by the Florida company. Lundvall said, was made in difference on book value during a reorganization.

APPELLATE COURT AFFIRMS SALE OF CHICAGO & ALTON

The decree of foreclosure and sale of the Chicago and Alton railway, issued several months ago by Federal Judge Carpenter, yesterday was affirmed with a slight modification by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The decree held that $22,000,000 in first mortgages are a prior lien on all property of the road, while the higher court excluded fifteen miles of trackage acquired by the company after its consolidation.

Exception to the decree of the lower court was taken by the United States Mortgage and Trust of New York, trustee of general mortgage bonds of $17,000,000 which were made subject to the priority of the first mortgage bonds.

The decree and the higher court's decision do not affect the status of $45,350,000 in refunding mortgage bonds of which the Farmers' Loan and Trust company of New York is trustee. There has been no foreclosure of these bonds. Sale of the properties of the line, valued at $100,000,000, are expected to follow the decision of the Appellate court, under a reorganization plan.

Approve Stock Increase for Missouri Life Co.

New York, May 2.—Approval of stockholders of the Missouri State Life Insurance company of the proposal of the directors to increase the capital stock from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 has been given, it was announced today by Hillsman Taylor, president. The increase, which is subject to the approval of the insurance commissioner and the Missouri secretary of state, will be effected through the issuance of an additional 100,000 shares of $10 capital stock. The right to purchase these additional shares will accrue to stockholders at the rate of one new share for each four shares held. Right certificates will be issued May 24 and will expire June 28.

Ford's World Output for First Quarter Is 399,321

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 2.—The Ford Motor company reports world production of cars and trucks in the first quarter was 399,321, against 439,956 in the 1929 quarter. In March the production of 174,585, compared with 181,894 in the month last year. The daily average production in March on the basis of a five day week reached 8,313 and topped that mark in April.

Favor Use of Ill. Coal for Chicago Area

BY SCRUTATOR.

The coal market of the Chicago switching district, the largest consuming center of this fuel in the world, belongs by geographical right to the mines of Illinois. An intensive effort is being made to convince the coal users in this territory that it will pay them to go back to exclusive consumption of the state's production, which fell off for a variety of reasons during the post-war years.

F. C. HONNOLD.

First of all, as Dr. F. C. Honnold of the Illinois boal bureau has pointed out, the richness of the market has encouraged competition from other fields. If a Chicago sphere of influence is extended to take in southern Wisconsin, eastern Iowa, northern Missouri and all of Illinois, together with northern Indiana, it is apparent that no other similar area in the country ships out so varied a list of industrial products; possibly no other one ships as much in volume.

Aids Competitors.

Because 40 per cent of the railroad mileage of the United States centers here, the other coal fields found ample means of transporting their output here. Illinois coal found its competition coming from all sections and from all types of fuel.

The outsiders consolidated their place in this market during the labor trouble period extending from 1920 to 1928. Illinois was more thoroughly unionized than other states. Miners' demands for higher wage scales, regardless of their merits from the standpoint of good living conditions, created a situation which allowed the eastern coal to come in at comparatively low prices—low enough, in fact, to overcome such differences in freight rates as existed.

An additional cause, a logical result of the troubles between workers and operators, was intermittent operation of the mines and a lack of certainty of supply from many Illinois counties.

Dr. Honnold this week reported at the state geological survey's anniversary celebration that a workable wage contract, lasting until 1932, now exists, and that labor has come to the realization that it has been harmed as least as much as any one else by this loss of markets.

Labor Costs.

To show how important labor cost is in coal production, he asserted that 87 cents of every dollar paid for coal at shaft mines goes directly to labor, either in wages, in dues paid to miners' unions, or in amounts expended under the compensation act. He added that it was a rare year when the operator of a mine obtained as much as 5 cents out of each dollar paid by the ultimate carload buyer, and that 40 per cent of all the coal produced in Illinois now fails to return even the production cost to the mine owner.

Dr. Honnold believes that other states, like Kentucky and West Virginia, must pass through the troubled period that Illinois coal already has behind it. He believes, moreover, that this state's fuel is just as satisfactory as any other if proper combustion methods are used, and that its cost even now is 50 to 75 cents a ton lower. One of his principal suggestions is that technical experts, universities and makers of combustion machinery combine their efforts to make the public understand that the smoke nuisance can be conquered mechanically and that ancient methods of firing are not successful in beating it even with the best of eastern bituminous coal.

BEARS ATTACK CHICAGO LIST; PRICES BREAK

Grigsby Down 2⅝ in Heavy Trading.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Determined bear raiders made a last minute attack on the Chicago stock list yesterday messing up completely a rally party which had been going on since noon.

The market was soft during the morning, then rallied. Until the selling began about 1:30 it looked as if the market would steady, but by 1:45 the tide had definitely turned. Sales volume for the day expanded to 430,800 shares.

Grigsby, which had performed creditably during most of the day went down under heavy offerings in the late trading to close with a net loss of 2⅛ points. Sales in Grigsby exceeded 53,000 shares. Wextark Radio gave 2¼ points. Ken-Rad was steady around 12.

Sharp Breaks Recorded.

High priced stocks throughout the list broke sharply. Commonwealth Edison lost 15, Auburn fell 6 points, Great Lakes Dredge lost 10 and Public Service no par on an odd lot sales closed off 6½.

General Theaters Equipment was the target of a good deal of short selling, but the issue was well supported and was down only a fraction at the close.

Among the industrials losses ranged up to 3 points. Winton Engine on light sales declined to 60, while Majestic Household and Electric Household Utilities each dropped more than 2. Merchants and Manufacturers sold down to 33¼.

Cities Service Off 2⅝.

Cities Service sold under 38 during the day under the weight of heavy offerings, but recovered to 38⅜, down 2⅝ for the day. United Gas was off nearly 2 and North American Light and Power closed at 74¼ for a net loss of 2¾. Central and Southwest was off about a point.

Heavy trading in Corporation Securities resulted in no price change. Other investment issues were easy.

Automotive stocks were not heavily traded in and were moderately depressed. Bendix lost 1½, while Borg Warner lost a fraction.

FOX FILM VOTES DIVIDENDS OF $1 ON 'A' & 'B' STOCK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 2.—Directors of the Fox Film corporation today voted the regular quarterly dividends of $1 on the class A and B stock. The last dividend voted by the corporation was $1 in script, payable Jan. 15 to holders of record Dec. 31.

It was explained by Harley L. Clarke, president, that the dividends were not declared at the regular meeting on April 15 because the old management had become practically inactive and the new group had not yet taken control. The company has also called for the redemption on May 15 of the script, which was issued in lieu of cash in the distribution of the previous dividend, Mr. Clarke said.

Franklin Auto Sales for April Are Above Last Year

Retail deliveries of the Franklin Automobile company in the first four months of 1930 totaled 3,779 cars, a gain of 4 per cent over the same period last year, and the best four months in the company's history.

April shipments for Cadillac and La Salle cars were 27 per cent ahead of March; 576 sixteen-cylinder V-type Cadillacs were shipped in April, a new record, and an increase of 34 per cent over the preceding month.

Lake Shore Bank Today Celebrates Tenth Year

The Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank today observes its tenth birthday. Since 1920, when the bank was organized, resources have grown to more than $10,000,000. William S. Kline, who came to the bank in 1921 as vice president, is now president. Craig B. Hazlewood is chairman of the board.

Easy Money Policy Seen Bearing Fruit

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 2.—The easy money policy, instituted six months ago by the federal reserve system, has not yet had its full effect in stimulating business, according to Norman Merriman, economist for Ungerleider Financial corporation, who addressed the business policy forum of the school of business administration of the College of the City of New York.

While this easy money policy has been an undoubted aid in stimulating certain types of business, particularly the construction of public works and utilities, Mr. Merriman said that in another six months the favorable effect of this policy upon general business activity would be much more important than it has been up to date.

"Although interest rates on collateral loans have declined sharply during the last six months," stated Mr. Merriman, "rates paid on loans by customers of banks have not as yet had the decline that is ultimately to be expected, particularly in cities outside of New York.

"Normally, it takes a long time for a stream of federal reserve credit, such as has been emitted in recent months, to have its full effect on business. The first effect is usually felt by security markets, as illustrated by the advances in leading stocks and the sharp upturn in the average of high grade bonds during recent months.

"The improvement in the bond market has, of course, made it possible for investment bankers to dispose of increasing quantities of new issues of high grade bonds on a basis which costs the borrower a considerably lower rate of interest than he would have had to pay six months or a year ago," he declared.

"In conclusion, it seems proper to say that so long as the present policy of the federal reserve system is adhered to, it is entirely probable that business will be in vastly better shape at the close of 1930 than it has been at any time since last fall."

Portugal Negotiates for Swedish Match Co. Loan

LISBON, May 2.—(AP)—The government has opened negotiations with the Swedish-American Match company for a loan of $12,000,000. The announced object of the loan is the stabilization of the escudo.

STOCK DECLINE IS WORST SINCE FALL COLLAPSE

Selling Avalanche Swamps Prices.

BY FRED HARVEY.

New York, May 2.—An avalanche of selling orders poured into the stock market in the late trading today, breaking prices from 2 to 18 points throughout the list. Active industrials lost on the average more than seven points, while the average dip in the rail division was around 3 points.

It was the worst decline since the big crash of last autumn.

Such favorable developments as the reduction in the reserve bank rate to 3 per cent, the consequent easing of the open market money rates, and the reassuring statement of President Hoover on general business conditions were ignored in a stampede to sell shares of all descriptions. Such big time trading favorites as Radio, Westinghouse, General Electric, Johns-Manville, and American Can were dumped overboard in huge blocks and prices melted away several points at a time on some of them.

Volume Expands.

A total of 5,986,330 shares were traded in, more than 2,000,000 of them during the last hour.

Bear forces found some of their most vulnerable targets in the specialty department. Allied Chemical and Dye dropped 16 points on sales amounting to only some 3,000 shares. Case Threshing Machine took a nose dive for 12 and Electric Power and Light tumbled 13½. National Power and Light was off 9½; Houston Oil,

THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM

Its Origin and Growth

By PAUL M. WARBURG

Far-reaching changes in the Federal Reserve System, of interest to every banker, industrial leader, economist, and legislator, are advocated in this new book by Mr. Warburg. "... the judgment of an originator of our new banking system, himself both a practical banker and a member of the Reserve Board during its first four years, will be studied with close attention," says The New York Times. The author presents not only a complete story of the System's evolution and operation, but a very illumjnating and constructive analysis of the Wall Street debacle and the System's connection with it.

10 years of PROGRESS

IN EVERY walk of business there are pathfinders.
Pioneering calls for keen vision and sound judgment.
Before the migration of big business and finance to Chicago's near north side, a group of substantial business men (our Board of Directors) sought a bank location to give expression to their vision and judgment. . . . That was ten years ago.

Today, this institution, founded upon an ideal of integrity and service, stands in the very heart of business activity—a monument to their foresight.

Estimate receipts at Chicago today, 400 cattle, 6,000 hogs, and 6,000 sheep.

Hogs sold freely at 10@15c higher prices yesterday, both the top and general average prices showing 10c gain at $10.30 and $10.05, respectively. The latter equals the highest in nearly two weeks. The clearance was the earliest in many weeks, small packers and city butchers paying the advance readily on the strength of a mild upturn in the market for fresh pork.

Outsiders bought more than 60 per cent of fresh arrivals after directs had been deducted. Only 2,000 pen holders and inferior classes were left at the close. Five markets today expect 18,500, against 16,200 last Saturday.

Hog Futures Steady.

The market for hog futures held generally steady yesterday. May mediums sold at $10.00 and September mediums at $10.20. September light were bid $10.30 and offered at $10.50 at the close. Heavy grades for May delivery were bid $9.60, for June $9.75, and for September $10.10.

On the "to arrive" market, 170@210 lb lightweights were bid $10.30 for Monday's delivery. Mediums averaging 210@260 lbs carried bids of $10.10 for today and Monday. Heavy grades averaging 260@310 lbs were bid $9.80 for Monday and $9.50 for all week.

Yesterday's meager supply of 1,000 cattle sold at steady prices. Quality was lacking and few sales were made above $11.00. A load of 1,040 lb yearlings of fairly good quality topped the market at $12.00, while 1,170 lb averages sold at $11.75. Prime weighty beeves were quoted up to $14.65 on the strength of a sale of these kinds at the price two days ago.

With the exception of top quotations the market is closing 50@75c lower than a week ago. Butcher stock sold slowly at weak to slightly lower prices. Calves were scarce and steady. Stockers and feeders were quiet.

Lambs Bring $11.10.

Additional gains of mostly 25c yesterday carried top wool lambs to $11.10, a new high on the present bulge. Wool lambs sold largely at $10.75@11.00, with prime 103 lb averages at $10.35 and odd lots of extreme weights downwards to $9.75.

Shorn stock also moved to higher levels, the top reaching $9.90 at the close, while most sales were at $9.50@9.75. Aged sheep and yearlings were scarce and steady. A few native spring lambs sold at $13.25, averaging 43 lbs.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 400 cattle, 6,000 hogs, and 6,000 sheep, against 230 cattle, 5,405 hogs, and 13,336 sheep the previous Saturday and 266 cattle, 5,038 hogs, and 6,566 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for Monday are estimated from 38,000 to 50,000. G. W. Chandler and R. W. Thorne marked 38,000, F. Knutzen 39,000; F. W. Young, H. C. Carlson, A. W. Trotter, C. Southwick, and J. T. Brown 40,000, F. M. Sherwood and W. T. Renecker 42,000, J. M. Waters 44,000, S. Lund and H. Pattison 45,000, R. B. Ellis 48,000, and A. G. Welhener 50,000.

Austria Plans Big Loan of $100,000,000 Next Fall

Austria would float an international loan of $100,000,000 in September, largely in the United States if Great Britain consents, it was reported yesterday in financial circles. It is understood British consent would be necessary because of Austria's reparations' obligations. The American part of the loan probably would be floated through J. P. Morgan & Co., with France taking nearly half of the remainder. The loan would yield 6 or 7 per cent, depending on the money available for investment in the autumn.

National Recording Pump Plans Recapitalization

A proposal calling for the elimination of the convertible preferred stock and the managers' stock and an increase in the common to 55,000 shares will be voted on by stockholders of the National Recording Pump company at a special meeting May 9. The proposed recapitalization is aimed to facilitate the company's expansion program, according to J. P. Hanna, president.

STOCK DECLINE IS WORST SINCE FALL COLLAPSE

Avalanche of Selling Swamps Prices.

12; Eastman Kodak, 12½; Vanadium, 7½; Byers, 7¾; Columbian Carbon, 6¾, and International Telephone and Telegraph, 6¾ points.

The selling movement got under way in the early trading, forces committed to the reaction pitching into the pivotals with more or less destructive effect at the very outlet. There were half hearted rallies at various intervals, however, and it was not until the final hour that the pressure reached such tremendous proportions. Toward the last it became a veritable storm and the closing gong found most of the list in headlong retreat.

Utilities Suffer.

U. S. Steel broke through to 174¾; General Electric touched 79½; Johns-Manville, 100¾; American Can went to 136½, and Radio dropped to 56½. On closing figures Steel showed a net loss of 2¾ points; Radio was off 6⅞; Westinghouse, 9⅜; Johns-Manville, 7½; General Electric, 4¼, and American Can, 4¾ points.

Utilities, the recent leaders of the list, were swamped in a body, some of the sharpest losses of the day being registered in this group. Amusement shares were under heavy pressure and oils came in for a tremendous shelling from the bear side. Standard of New Jersey, the late leader of this division, going off the deep end for a loss of more than 4 points.

The list of stocks dropping to new lows for the movement was numbered by the scores and many lows for the year were registered. As usual, the list of lows was liberally sprinkled with specialties and railroad issues. However, be it chronicled to their credit, the rails on the whole offered the best resistance to the selling pressure they have in some time in spite of the losses they suffered as a group.

The worldwide reduction of rediscount rates was reflected in a series of cuts by New York dealers in yield rates on bankers' bills. The new rates are 2⅝ per cent bid, 2⅝ asked for thirty, sixty, ninety and 120 day bills. 1 per cent bid, 2⅞ asked for five and six months' bills.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE

Money in Chicago firm at 4½ to 5½ per cent on collateral, 5 to 6 per cent over the counter; commercial paper, 3½ to 4½ per cent; bankers' acceptances, 2⅜ to 2⅝ per cent. Chicago clearings yesterday were $113,400,000, compared with $93,300,000 a week ago and $115,000,000 a year ago. New York clearings were $1,621,000,000.

NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—Call money easier; high, 2½ per cent; low, 2 per cent; ruling rate, 2½ per cent; close, 3 per cent. Time loans easier; 30 days, 3½ per cent; 60 days, 3⅝ per cent; 90 days, 3¾ per cent; 4 months, 4¼ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 4¼@4½ per cent. Bankers' acceptances unchanged. Bar silver, 42⅛c.

WHEAT TRADING QUIET; PRICES CLOSE UNEVENLY

Stock Market Weakness Has Some Influence.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat market was a tame affair yesterday with prices holding within a range of around 1c and the local element disposed to go slow on either side.

There was evidence of supporting orders in the May from the government, while cash interests bought May and sold July and September, changing over hedges, and the May gained fractionally on the July, the spread at the last being 2c against 2¾c on Thursday. Final trades were ¾c higher to ½c lower, with May, $1.01⅝@1.01¾, and July, 1.03⅝@1.03¾.

Weakness in the stock market in New York had some influence on the deferred deliveries toward the last, and houses with eastern connections sold the July rather freely several times.

Sentiment was bearish, and the private crop estimates suggesting a yield of 543,000,000 bu, or 7,000,000 bu under the government April figures, and 35,000,000 bu less than harvested last year were generally ignored as a market influence, although there was 10.5 per cent of the acreage abandoned. Murray estimates that the spring wheat acreage will be cut 7.3 per cent, and in the three Canadian provinces there will be a decrease of 4.8 per cent. In all the total North American wheat acreage promises to be 3,750,000 acres less than last year.

Foreign Demand Less Active.

Foreign demand for cash wheat was rather inactive, and according to messages from the seaboard the bulk of the business is being done by the Canadian pool. Less hard winter was sold than of late, some exporters saying they had the poorest day in weeks. Total sales in all positions were 500,000 to 600,000 bu, largely Manitobas.

Liverpool wheat showed more strength than expected, closing ⅝d higher to ¼d lower, the latter on October. Expectations are for somewhat larger world's shipments than the previous week. Rains have fallen in parts of Australia, but other sections remain dry. Broomhall reported that France was offering wheat to the United Kingdom at equal to 98¾c per bu.

Corn Lacks Support.

Locals were on the selling side of corn and the market lacked support until buying developed against the bids. Final sales were at net losses of ⅞@1¼c, with May, 78⅞@79c, and July, 80⅝@80¾c. The decline was in the face of a good eastern shipping demand, sales aggregating 167,000 bu, while country offerings were small and the spot basis steady to ½c higher.

May oats went to a fractional premium over the July at the start, with cash houses buying the nearby futures, but the difference widened out again toward the last with May ¼c under July at the finish. Final sales were ½c higher to ½c lower.

A cargo of 245,000 bu rye cleared from Chicago Thursday for Owens credited with having sold May during the day, while spreaders bought and the finish was ¼c higher to ⅜c lower, May being 58¼c, and July, 63½@63¾c.

GAIN IN LAND STOCKS

Lard stocks at western packing points increased 3,181,000 lbs last month, against 1,673,000 lbs the same time last year and 11,530,000 lbs two years ago. Stocks are 66,475,000 lbs, against 29,295,000 lbs last month and 124,731,000 lbs last year.

Stocks of meats decreased 17,711,000 lbs, against an increase of 14,406,000 lbs last year and a decrease of 5,398,000 lbs two years ago. Total stocks are 246,182,000 lbs, against 337,515,000 lbs last year and 341,844,000 lbs in 1928.

Bellies were offered sparingly with May bid up 40c, while other deliveries were 20@30c higher. Cumberlands and Liverpool were 2s lower. Exports of bacon were 85,000 lbs. Prices follow:

EGGS AT NEW SEASON'S LOW

Yielding to heavy storage movement, May egg futures dropped ¾c to a new season low at 24¾c on the Mercantile exchange. November also eased ⅛c. Sales were 74 cars and receipts 31,240 cases.

Lower spot market and liberal storings sent May butter down ¼c to 36¾c but a similar drop in November was recovered at the finish. Sales were 25 cars and receipts 10,299 tubs. Cheese interests failed to find common price levels. Prices follow:

WHEAT CROP REDUCED

Winter wheat crop as shown by the average of the private estimates suffered greater damage by the recent drought than anticipated by the grain trade. The crop is placed at 543,000,000 bu, or 35,000,000 bu less than harvested last year.

R. O. Cromwell estimated the prospective yield in the 11 leading states at 401,000,000 bu, against 438,000,000 bu last year, giving Kansas 139,000,000 bu; Nebraska, 59,000,000 bu; Oklahoma, 39,000,000 bu, and Texas, 29,000,000 bu. Comparisons follow:

Seneca Copper Mining.

Seneca Copper Mining company was incorporated in Delaware in February, 1925, as a reorganization of Seneca Copper corporation. It owns 2,465 acres of copper bearing land in Keweenaw county, Mich., and a mill site of 347 acres on the shores of Lake Superior.

Mining operations did not amount to much for several years prior to 1926, but in that year about 5,000,000 pounds of copper were mined. Operations continued at that pace until June, 1927, when the mines were shut down. They were reopened in the fall of 1928.

The company has operated at a loss for several years. Net loss for 1929 amounted to $287,970, which meant a deficit of 46 cents per share on 630,000 no par shares. Net loss in 1928 was $221,231, against net losses of $405,784 in 1927, and $429,824 in 1926.

During 1929 the company produced slightly less than 3,000,000 pounds of copper, for which it received an average price of 18.353 cents per pound.

The company has for several years failed to earn interest charges on its funded debt, which accumulated to $1,482,500 at the close of 1929. Current assets as of Dec. 31, 1929, were $437,270 and current liabilities were $45,849, leaving a net working capital of $391,421, which compares with $450,884 a year before.

Warren Brothers.

Kindly give me a report on Warren Brothers new common, also information as to dividends paid and whether the extra paid is in cash or stock.—Mrs. G. P.

Warren Brothers company is engaged in the laying of pavements and the manufacture of bituminous paving. It was incorporated in 1900 and is the largest road building organization of its kind. Through subsidiaries it does airport construction work as well as piling and dredging.

Net income in 1929 was $3,002,238, equal after preferred dividends to $18.17 per share on 156,742 common shares, compared with $12.79 per share in 1928, $11.53 per share in 1927, and $8.65 per share in 1926.

During 1929 profit and loss surplus was increased from $2,183,156 to $3,733,737. At the end of the year current assets were $14,065,747 and current liabilities were $7,201,934, against $9,780,236 and $4,468,564 respectively a year before.

On April 8, 1930, stockholders approved a plan of voluntary capital reorganization, by which the stock, both common and preferred, was split three for one.

The dividend rate on the old common was increased from $4 to $8 per annum in January, 1930. Extras of $1 per share have been paid in each of the last four years. The common deserves a fairly good rating.

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

FREE! 100 GALLONS OF GASOLINE WITH ANY USED CAR PURCHASED!

Here is the sale of sales. We need extra room for more trade-ins, so we drastically reduced the price of every used car in our stock. In addition we will give every purchaser who buys today or tomorrow a 100 gallon gasoline book good at any Standard Oil Station in town.

NASH CABRIOLET. 1929 series 400 conv. Coupe with rumble seat. This is one of the snappiest sport cars in Chicago. Has low slung lines and an attractive paint job. The motor runs smoothly and quietly, and the equipment includes 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. At our price of $545 it will not remain 24 hours.

ESSEX COACH. 1928; lacquered a beautiful navy blue. It received very little mileage, so it's in new car condition today. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, shutter front, shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Will not remain long at $285.

STUDEBAKER BROUGHAM. Spec. 6 equipped with heater, trunk, spare tire, snubbers, two spotlights, etc. Has nice mohair upholstery. $95.

DODGE ROADSTER. 1929, only driven a few thousand miles. Has beautiful orange wire wheels, side mounts, trunk rack, shock absorbers, bumpers, windshield wings, etc. Has khaki top and rumble seat. This is one of the sportiest looking roadsters in Chicago today, and it's brand new in every respect. $785.

FORD COACH. Late model A that's in topnotch condition throughout. The finish has not a mar on it and the tires are in good shape. 4 whl. brakes, wire wheels, Houdaille shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $395.

STUDEBAKER COMMANDER. 1928 five pass. Sedan finished an attractive bottle green. The Big Six motor is smooth and powerful. The upholstery and carpets are in dandy condition. Has 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Special for $450.

GRAHAM-PAIGE SEDAN. 1929, with 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. The owner of this car drove it exactly 11 mos. and then decided what he wanted was a Victoria. So he sacrificed this car at a low figure. His loss is your gain, so you now have an opportunity to get a practically brand new Graham-Paige at only $695.

CHEVROLET COUPE. Here is an ideal car for the business man. Has exceptionally good tires and many extras. Motor was carefully checked over. A pickup at $125.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN. Std. 6 with expensive mohair upholstery and many extras, including Lovell spotlight, shutter front, spare tire, bumpers, etc. The finish is bright and shiny. Has excellent tires. Will be sold immediately at our price of $250.

BUICK SEDAN. Mast. 6 seven pass. with 4 whl. brakes, heater, spare tire, bumpers, etc. It was oiled and greased every 500 miles by the original owner, so it's in top-notch condition today. Has exceptionally good rubber. Only $445.

REO SEDAN. This is the car noted for its long life. The finish, upholstery and tires are in dandy condition. $145.

STUDEBAKER DICTATOR. A late 5 pass. Sedan that we recommend as one of our very best buys. The finish, upholstery and tires are all in wonderful condition, and the motor is very efficient. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Reduced to $385.

CADILLAC SEDANS.

We have two Cadillacs in stock that are very attractive buys and we offer them at remarkable savings. One of them is a 1929 model 341 5 passenger sedan; it's equipped with shock absorbers; spare tire; and other extras; every feature in the original new condition; in fact, this Cadillac was driven so little that we edefy anybody to distinguish it from a brandnew model. The other is a 1928 model 341 5 passenger sedan with hundreds of dollars' worth of extra equipment; has very low mileage; the finish sparkles like a new dollar and the upholstery appears unworn; motor is very smooth. Both of these Cadillacs are priced unusually low; liberal terms. PIERCE-ARROW, 2345 S. Michigan-av.

Chicago and Lake County Suffer in Midwestern Storm Which Caused Many Deaths and Big Property Loss

WHERE EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS DELEGATES WILL MEET NEXT WEEK. Cathedral of St. Louis at Carthage, Tunisia, named for Louis IX., French king, who died there in 13th century, for which 16,000 Catholic pilgrims from all parts of the world are bound.

LIGHTNING HITS SMOKESTACK OF SCHOOL. Wrecked chimney of the Farnsworth school, Balmoral and Luna avenues, which perils building until it is torn down. The pupils are now on a vacation, but return to school Monday. (Story on page 7.)
